Miller has Expo's Best of Breed doe

BY SHEILA MILLER

HARRISBURG — Ann Miller of Furlong, Bucks County exhibited her grand champion Toggenburg doe in milk to Best In Show during Thursday's Farm Equipment Exposition Spring Classic Goat Show.

GCH Rockspring Pharoh Look At Me, who will be three-years-old on March 27, took grand champion in her breed before going on to top the other five champions of the show. As her name implies, the doe commanded a long look from Judge Dana Holder of Fairfield, Adams County, who praised the champ's mammary system and overall conformation.

This is not the first Best In Show honor for Look At Me, according to Miller. The doe has achieved this distinction three times in the past two years on the show road in Pennsylvania.

Miller, who's been raising goats for the past 30 years and now has 30 head on her 5 acre farmette, explained Look At Me was her first artificially inseminated offspring. She recalled how she serviced her home-bred doe, Rock Spring Turk Laurel, to Sunshine Photopia Pharoh II, a buck she has high hope for in her breeding program.

Look At Me has been recognized as a Six-Star milker and has been given her permanent grand championship, signified by the GCH in front of her name, said Miller. The outstanding doe has recently completed a 305-day DHI test with a record of 2950 pounds. At Thursday's show, she was 340 days into lactation and will be kidding May 25.

Taking the reserve grand championship in the Toggenburg show was ML Farm Coco's Tourmalina, exhibited by Gail LeCompt. The doe in milk was the reserve senior champion. LeCompt also exhibited the Toggenburg reserve junior champion, ML Farm Candy N Caeser Winny.

In the recorded grade show, Karen Pensack of Lebanon, N.J. exhibited the grand champion, Larch Lane's Black Satin, the senior champion in milk. Gail LeCompt took both the reserve senior championship and the reserve grand championship with Ebarb Bridgets Marvel.

Joanne Dominick, R1 Fogelsville, showed the junior champion in the registered grade show, Lyon-Dale Nanessa. Judge Holder followed with the second place doe in class for reserve junior champion. The purple ribbon went to Gail LeCompt's ML Farm Echo-Bo Palma.

Thomas Hope and James Farlee, Hopewell, N.J., swept the

New U.S. corn pest confirmed locally this week

BY CURT HARLER

CHESTERTOWN, Md. — A corn pest so new to the United States that it doesn't have an official name, was positively identified for the first time this week on a Kent County, Md. farm.

Lancaster Farming has learned that Heterodera zeae, being called corn cyst nematode" for convenience, was confirmed by researchers at USDA's Beltsville lab.

Previously, the pest was known only in India, Pakistan, and Egypt, although officials say it could have been present but undetected in the U S.

While officials at USDA say there is little hope for eradication of the pest, they say there is no need for panic. Early guesses show it may become economically significant in American corn fields, although control may not be difficult.

The pest was identified in a 200 acre Kent County corn field which was sampled as part of the Delmarva Nematode Survey. Kent County is located on Maryland's Upper Eastern Shore, directly South of Lancaster and Chester Counties in Pennsylvania.

A soil assay was done on the farm and an established corn cyst nematode population found.

USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service plans to meet Thursday, March 12 to discuss the situation.

At that time they will review the biology of the pest, the current situation in Maryland, and make recommendations on how to proceed.

USDA said first steps will be to notify neighboring states, the Canadian and Mexican governments.

Corn cyst nematode first was described in India in 1970. Later it was found to be widely diestributed in six Indian states.

The Indians say it causes economic damage on their maize, or corn.

DER finds PCBs on Chester farm

BY DEBBIE KOONTZ

GLENNMORE — A hushed investigation is being conducted into the discovery of PCB contamination on a Chester County farm owned by Cris Esh.

Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources Thursday said five drums of oil contaminated with polychlorinated biphenyls were discovered on Esh's Wyebrook Farm in West Nantmeal Township.

According to DER there is a "substantial possibility" other farmers in this area may have received the contaminated oil and may be unknowingly jeopardizing their livestock and crops.

Concentrations of PCBs in the oil ranged from 2500 parts per million in one of the drums to almost pure PCB material in another

Concentrations of PCBs also have been detected in the soil and sand in an area about 75 by 120 feet on Esh's property and in a chicken egg produced on the farm.

Investigation began due to earlier rumors of possible PCB contamination from the same oil source, which Esh, officials of DER, and the Ag Department refused to identify pending completion of the investigation by DER

Bruce Beitler, DER's Solid Waste Operations Supervisor, said attorneys in the State Justice Department have ordered all parties to remain silent until the investigation is concluded.

On Friday, meat and tissue samples from Esh's livestock were analyzed at the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Summerdale Lab for possible contamination Results are not yet available.

Esh said he was unaware that the oil, used to lubricate his equipment, contained PCBs.

"I thought something was wrong, though, because of the smell," he said.

Marilyn Hewitt of DER's Solid Waste Operations admitted the oil source has been under question before due to PCB contamination.

Other Chester County farmers who received waste oil from local industries are asked to contact Bruce Beitler or Marilyn Hewitt at Solid Waste Operations at 1875 New Hope St , Norristown, 215/631-2413, so their soil can be examined for possible contamination.

Dairymen told to control debt

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

LANCASTER — This will be a year to get better not bigger.

This message was conveyed and repeated a number of times on Tuesday before a full-house crowd at the Lancaster County Dairy Day program at the Farm and Home Center

Glenn Shirk, Lancaster dairy agent, set the tone for the meeting by explaining that times are changing and things may not be as easy for the dairy operator as before

He was the first to utter the better not bigger theme

It s a time to protect the profit margin with better production, ' he said

And control that debt load. If you borrow, make sure you're doing it to get better production."

He reminded the attending dairymen that to get good producing cows you must care for the heifers

Mistreating a heifer is putting a cap on her production, Shirk said

She may have inherited the potential to be a 17,000-lb producer, but only milk 15,000 lbs because of what we have done to her

Also, he urged protecting the dry

From chick to cage, we formulate feeds and feeding programs with your profit in mind.

At Pennfield Feeds, our basic goal is to help our customers make more money. We believe we can accomplish this for you, too.

Unlike many other feed companies, we develop custom feeding programs for each individual operation.

It all starts with a Pennfield man reviewing your operation with you. Your goals. Your records. The health and overall condition of your birds. Whether you grow chicks or buy pullets. The type of equipment you use. The production potential of your flock. Your management practices. And other factors that have an effect on your profit potential.

With the aid of computers, we then design a feeding program specifically tailored to your birds' needs — a program that can improve your profits by reducing expenses, increasing production, or both.

And we're a local company. We buy our feed grains locally. Shipping savings are passed on to customers. Our feeding programs are developed through test work and field trials based on local conditions.

These and other Pennfield advantages are helping hundreds of customers increase their profits. We can do the same for you. Phone or write us today.

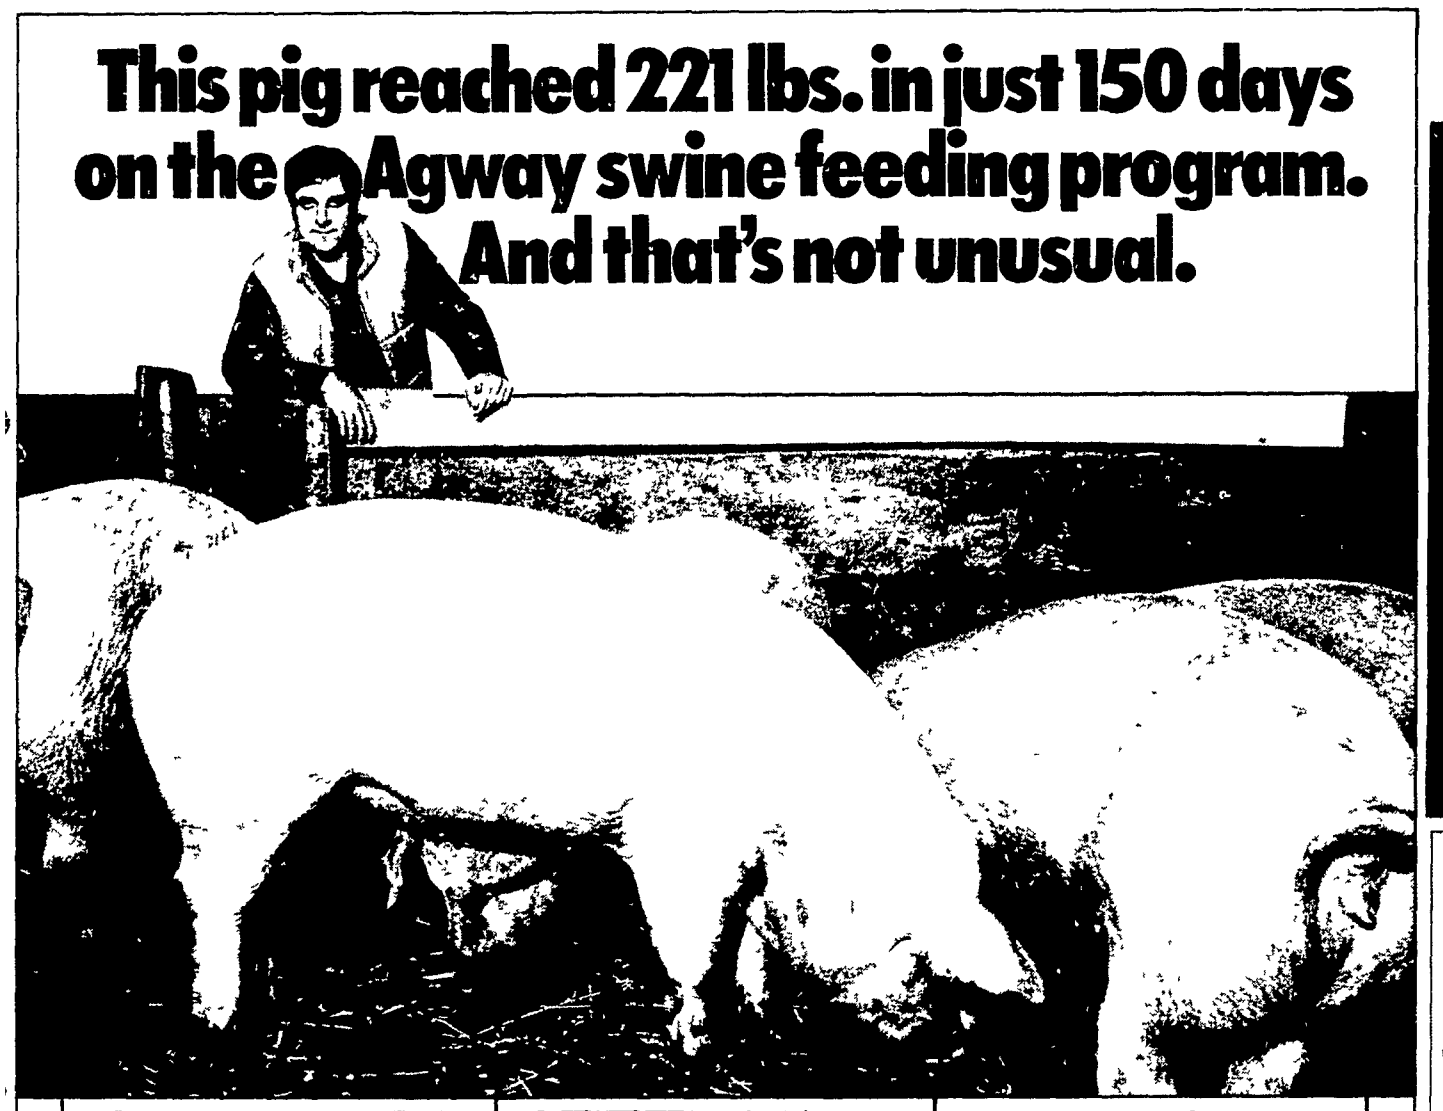
This pig reached 221 lbs. in just 150 days on the Agway swine feeding program. And that's not unusual.



It's no secret that feed is the single biggest cost in producing pork. That's why it pays to make sure your feeding program gets your pigs to market weight in the shortest possible time.

From Agway Squealer Pellets to Agway Pork Finisher, there's a farm-tested Agway feed nutritionally formulated for each stage of a pig's growth. Agway complete swine feeds provide all known nutritional needs, including energy, protein (amino acids), minerals and vitamins.

COMPLETE AGWAY SWINE FEEDS	% Protein	% Fat	% Fiber
Squealer Pellets (MX)	18	4 0	3 0
Pig Starter Pellets (PT-MX)	18	3 5	4 5
Hog Feed (T 20)	14	3 5	5 0
Pork Finisher (T 20) 4	12	3 5	5 0
4 of 8 Agway swine feeds available

The farm tested Agway swine feed program can help make each of your pigs an ideal pig

BACKED BY FEED TRIALS ON 1800 PIGS ANNUALLY.

Agway, in conjunction with other cooperatives, runs feed trials on 1800 pigs annually at the Agway Swine Research Farm in Lexington, Ill.

New feed ideas are constantly tested and proven, and the results incorporated into the Agway swine feeding program.

The ideal hog as defined by the American Pork Congress attains a weight of 220 lbs in 150 to 165 days It requires no more than 3 lbs of feed per each pound of gain and delivers a loin 30 inches long with a loin eye of 5 square inches

In the past, Agway Squealer Pellets and Agway Starter Pellets were developed as the direct result of this program.

YOUR AGWAY SWINE EXPERT CAN TELL YOU MORE.

Lancaster Farming says...

Pay a fair wage

What's more difficult to find than a cow that will produce 20,000 pounds, a lamb that'll reach 100 pounds in 90 days, or a field yielding 175 bushels of corn per acre?

The answer is a good hired hand

We can find little sympathy for the farmer who is looking for new help every six or nine months On an operation like that, the problem rests with management and not the hired labor

Even on the best of farms there is a wide difference between what the help receives in pay and what they deserve

It is to farming's shame that the worst treated workers often are those who aren't hired outsiders, but rather are members of the operator's family

It's no secret that farm operators realize less return than other small businessmen And farm labor likewise receives less income But there is a limit to how little a hired hand and family can receive and still survive In some cases it seems the hand must be a better money manager than the boss

Worse yet, the figures for pay on Pennsylvania's thriving farms are poorer than for the nation as a whole

The Crop Reporting Service this week put farm wage rates, for all methods of pay converted to an hourly rate, at $3 73 That's less than $7500 per year, less than an average secretary makes sitting in an air conditioned office

The national farm wage average was $4 12, up 43 cents from 1980

But even when it comes to wage increases, Pennsylvania farm employers were stingy Hired hands received an average 18 cents per hour increase over the last year That's a six percent boost in times of 12 percent inflation

Field workers received a whopping two cents per hour average increase An offer like that has to be seen as an insult to the hired hand

Surely a good combine operator, running a $50,000 machine, is worth as much as a union scale trucker

But those field workers, who average $3 64 per hour, are well off compared to their fellows on livestock operations

Livestock workers took home an average $3 14 per hour, well below current minimum wage Their only bright spot was they came up from deep in the financial cellar with gains from average wages of $2 80 per hour last year

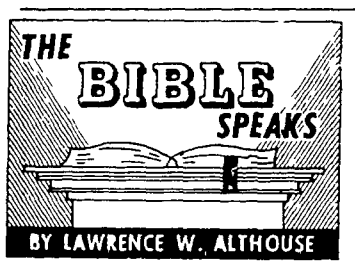
Most painful is the realization that more enlightened farm managers are paying their employees a fair living wage So, there must be some hired hands living well below the poverty line

Is it any wonder, then, that it is next to impossible for some farmers to get and keep good help?

The answer on some operations has been to put the children to work without compensation Some observers, pointing to agriculture's exemption from child labor laws, claim this common practice is one step above slavery for one's own offspring

While that is going too far in most cases, the results show up in a child's attitude toward farming Is it any wonder, then, that so many of our young people flee the burden of hard work long hours, and low pay for more attractive jobs?

The laborer is worthy of his hire There can be no pride in U S agriculture's record as a food producer until the farm community learns to take care of its own members rather than have them suffer to the benefit of American's cheap food policy



IS GOD FAIR?
March 8, 1981

Background Scripture:
Matthew 20
Devotional Reading:
Leviticus 20 22-26

How would you feel if your employer were to pay you the same amount as he paid a fellow employee doing the same task but for considerably fewer hours? I'm sure you'd be outraged at the employer's unfairness I would

That's what makes Jesus' parable of the workers in the vineyard (Matthew 20 1-16) so difficult for us The householder in this parable seems utterly unjust — not to mention unwise — in the way he treats his workers He hires workers at 8 a m , 11 a.m , 1 p m , and 3 p m Yet he pays them all the same wage! It is not hard to understand their angry response These last worked only one hour, and you have made them equal to us who have borne the burden of the day and the scorching heat!

I Choose To Give

But the reply of the householder puts the whole matter in a different light

Friend, I am doing you no wrong, did you not agree with me for a denarius? Take what belongs to you and go" (20-13) The crux of the matter is, not that the longer-term workers were denied what they were promised, but that they begrudged the employer paying the short-term workers the same wage. I choose to give to this last as I gave to you Am I not allowed to do what I choose with what belongs to me? Or do you begrudge my generosity? (20 15)

Yes, they did begrudge his generosity Their unspoken charge of unfairness' stemmed, not from any failure for him to keep his agreement with them, but in that they resented someone else getting what they did and for considerably fewer hours Yes, they begrudged the householder s generosity and so would most of us — as secretly we may sometimes begrudge the grace of God freely given to those whom we would judge as being unworthy of the same salvation promised us

Actually, Jesus is not talking about a householder in this parable, but God He is not advocating that employers conduct their affairs as the householder in the parable, for the employer and the God of the universe do not stand on the same level What the workers in the parable receive is not really a wage, but something more — something that goes considerably beyond what they deserve What God 'pays them, therefore, is not a wage, but grace. All of the workers would be due considerably less than they were paid if they received only what they were worth

Beyond Fairness

It is not a matter, then, of God or the householder being 'fair' but of being gracious to all workers/children None of us deserves the grace of God Therefore, none of us has the right to begrudge that same grace being given to others. We are not able to judge as to whom should God bless and whom he should condemn

Nothing is more self-condemning than for the person who is the beneficiary of God's grace to begrudge that same grace to someone else God is not 'fair' (not by our standards, anyway), God is love

TO USE WOOD ASHES... burning stoves and fireplaces be popular at this time in order to save fuel costs The ashes from wood are useful as a soil conditioner, and to some extent, as a fertilizer These ashes will be alkaline, rather than acid, and therefore, should not be used near acid-loving plants such as azaleas, hollies, or rhododendrons In addition, folks growing pototoes should not use wood ashes on that soil. However, for most other crops on the farm or in the garden, wood ashes will provide some potash and will help break down a heavy, clay-type soil These ashes should be applied and worked into the topsoil before any planting is done

TO FILE INCOME TAX REPORT EARLY... Why wait until April 15th to file your income tax report? One good answer might be for the person who has money to pay – put it off as long as possible. However, there are several good reasons to file early, many folks already have sent in their report If you are due a refund the sooner you get that money and use it, or put to work, the better In addition, when you file at the last minute you're more likely to rush and make mathematical mistakes Also, it takes longer to get a refund when you are among the 'big rush" at the deadline date Income tax returns are expected from all of us and we might as well get the report made and sent in without penalty

TO BE CAREFUL WITH DISCARDED PESTICIDES... What are you doing with left-over spray materials, or containers? These need special attention in order to prevent poisoning and pollution In the first place, any left-over pesticide should be used as intended, if it is still legal to use If not legal, you have a problem of disposal because it is unwanted everywhere. To bury it away from any water supply has been one suggestion One thing that should not be done is to throw it into an old stone quarry or sink-hole This will very likely get into someone's water supply in the near future Our state officials, such as DER, are looking for violators using this disposal system Containers in which pesticides have been stored and now empty, should be punctured, or flattened so they cannot be used for any other purpose This is very important to eliminate pesticide accidents Be careful with all spray materials and containers

TO MANAGE SEPTIC TANKS... The spring of the year is a very common time for septic tank trouble No doubt this is due to the extra moisture in the drainage field area after snow melt and spring rains In most cases the septic tank should be cleaned out every three to five years. This will depend upon the size of the family and the size of the tank. Drain fields need kept free of all shrub and tree plantings, the roots from these plants will seek out the moisture in the drain field and fill the area with additional roots Willow trees are especially bad for clogging drain fields and cesspools If both the septic tank and the drain field are kept in good condition, they should perform for years However, a filled up septic tank will permit the solids to get out into the drain field area and clogg the system Good management should aim to prevent trouble rather than try to correct the trouble after it appears

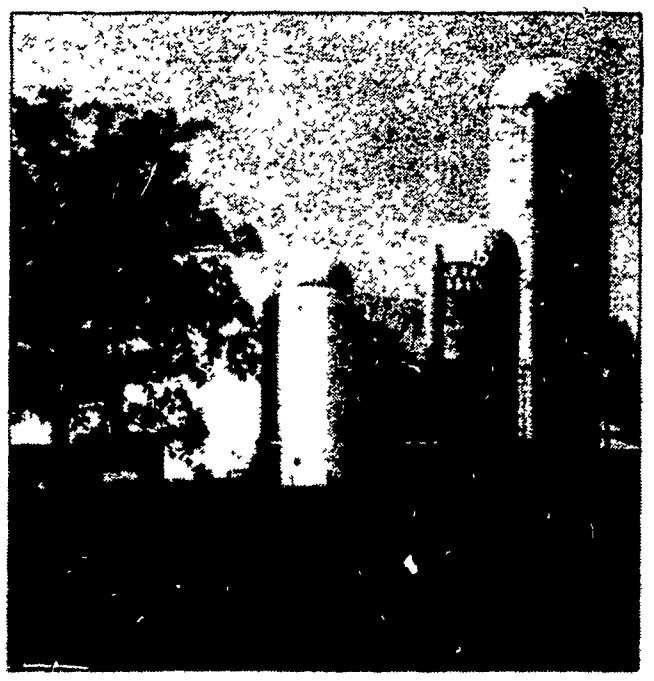
WE'RE NUMBER ONE!



Per Bale or Per Silo
Preserve Hay and Haylage Nutrients with BEACON PRE-SERV* Products!

If you use hay by the bale, Beacon Hay Pre-Serv lets you bale it at 25% moisture. This allows you to bale earlier in the day, later at night, and well before rain can damage it while drying. Baling at higher moisture levels means you get tougher hay with less leaf shatter . . .hay that cows definitely prefer, with as much as 20% more nutritional value!

If you ensile hay into hay crop silage, Beacon Silage Pre-Serv controls the fermentation process by speeding it up. Therefore, a stable silage condition is reached much sooner. Less heat is produced during the fermentation process. The reduced temperatures can lessen the chance of protein being heat-damaged.

That means more nutrients in the haylage where they can be used to make more milk. And that means less feed to buy.

Hay Pre-Serv. Silage Pre-Serv. Both are blends of food-grade mold inhibitors, anti-oxidants and flavors. They improve palatability and digestibility while they reduce spoilage. And both are easy and inexpensive to apply. Find out more about these great products now. Per bale or per silo, you'll get more milk production, and that means more profits!

Delaware to hold several farm meetings

NEWARK, Del — Now is the time of year for meetings The Delaware Extension Service and local dairy industries have scheduled several events for this month and March

George Haenlein, extension dairy specialist at the University of Delaware, says meetings are more than just gatherings; they provide opportunities for farmers to increase their education and receive new ideas

Haenlein says dairy farmers should be aware of these upcoming events.

March 10 Tour of the Mason Dixon farm in Pennsylvania to see the biogas facilities

Biogas is fuel made from the methane in manure. This gas can be used to power tractors, heat homes, and to generate electricity.

March 28. Open house at the Ed Fry farm near Galena, Md, to view new milking and waste disposal methods.

The Dairy Herd Improvement Association has also scheduled several meetings in March which will survey the progress of dairy farms in the state:

March 3: Annual meeting of the New Castle County DHIA in Pencader Grange in Glasgow at 7 00 p.m.

March 11 Kent County and Sussex County DHIA meeting in Felton Fire Hall at 7.00 p.m

March 14 to 22. National Annual DHIA meeting Tour of California dairy farms, and a look at leading dairy herds in the United States.

Programs have also been scheduled for young farmers.

Regional Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University 2-day educational workshop. An opportunity for outstanding 4-H'ers and FFA'ers in the five-state region to attend classes and practice sessions on dairy reproduction, including A I. and ova transplant

Five students from Delaware were chosen to attend the VPI workshop this year: Lee Emerson, Middletown, Susan Blendt, Townsend; Susan Deputy, William Penn High School FFA; Doug Cavender, William Penn High School FFA; and Maurna Haven, also of William Penn High School FFA. They will be accompanied by Herman Cook, adult 4-H leader from Newark

For further information about any of the meetings, contact any Delaware county extension agent

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor,

I'm finally getting around to writing this one month after the article on the Farm Show steers was printed January 24

As a Simmental breeder and mother of a 4-H'er, I have to ask why should there be a weight limit? There should be a fat limit but not a weight limit. Why should a kid be penalized because his steer grew fast and big as long as he grades? Why should a kid have to coast a steer at all?

Several years ago, my son showed a crossbred Simmental steer to reserve champion He weighed 1300 lbs. at 15 mos and graded high good. If he could have gone on beyond the weight limit I have no doubt he would have graded choice.

Isn't the 4-H program supposed to teach kids how to raise beef to make a profit? Well, if nobody else can see that getting a 1300 pounds 'zoo animal' to market in 15 months with a 65 percent yield isn't better than getting an 1100 pound one in 18 months, I sure can!

And, I have noticed lately in the market reports in the Lancaster Farming that Fatty Herefords are knocked down $1 to $2 a hundred!

Elanco to offer welding class

BLUE BALL — The Eastern Lancaster County Adult Farmer Program will offer a five week arc welding course to interested persons.

Instruction for the course was developed by the Lincoln Welding Company and is for non-welders, beginning welders and other welders who are interested in improving their welding skills.

Instruction will cover welding in the horizontal, vertical, and overhead positions Welding of various types of metal, cutting, brazing, soldering, and hard-surfacing with the arc welder will also be included in the course.

Classes will be held in the Vocational Agriculture Shop at Garden Spot High School Wednesday evening starting March 25 from 7.30 p.m. to 9.30 p m.

The class will be limited to the first 18 persons registered.

A small fee will be charged to cover the cost of materials.

Anyone interested in learning to arc weld should contact Bob Anderson at the Union Grove School by phoning 215/445-5041

Greenwood farmers to talk woodlots

GREENWOOD — On March 12 at 7:30 Dennis Meiser, Local Consulting Forester, will present a program on managing farm woodland and how the services of a forester can be used.

The meeting, held in the Greenwood High School Library, will provide needed advice to farmers and other woodland owners on how woodland can be managed and harvested to provide good quality timber for the future.

Recent events, namely the threat of gypsy moth damage and the use of wood for fuel, have increased the interest of woodland owners in harvesting timber.

There are several different ways in which stands of timber can be harvested and still provide potential for the future. Also, too often cutting timber is done in such a way that the quality of the future stand is greatly reduced.

Farmers in the Greenwood area are invited to attend to become aware of the pros and cons of woodland management and how the services of a forester can be used to the benefit of the woodland and the landowner.

Elanco to talk soybeans

TERRE HILL — The Garden Spot Adult Farmer Program will sponsor a soybean management meeting on Tuesday, March 17, 1981, at 7.30 p.m., at the Union Grove Alternative School.

Speakers will include Homer Martin from Stanford Seed Company and Adult Farmer Instructor, Donald M. Robinson. Topics to be discussed will include cultural practices to grow full-season and double cropped beans with special emphasis on weed control and row width.

Recommendations on no-till seeding in small grain stubble will be examined as will the use of a wick bar applicators for herbicides.

The results of Shattercane control in corn will be briefly discussed and plans for similar work in soybeans described.

Those who need update certification for Private Pesticide Applicators License for 1981 can be re-certified at this meeting

All interested persons are invited The Union Grove Alternative School is located on Route 625, two miles north of Route 23. For additional information call Don Robinson at 215/445-5041.

TO THE DRAWBAR . . . HOW?

USES ALLISON "AUTOMATIC" TRANSMISSIONS

HT 740, HT 754 Automatics . . .
Transmissions That Get The Job Done

The Allison HT 740 and HT 754 offered in Steiger Panther PTA Series tractors from 295-350 Horsepower, offer these unique features for performance and profitability.

- Provides eight or ten ideal field and transport speeds when combined with Steiger's two-speed power divider.
- Converter and automatic lock-up positions in each of the forward ranges. Converter permits tractor to start off with implement in the ground. Lock-up provides maximum efficiency in engine operating range.
- Fully automatic upshifting and downshifting in all forward ranges under full throttle and full load, as drawbar requirements dictate.
- Driveline repairs are significantly reduced.
- No downtime due to mechanical clutch replacement and repair.
- Ease of operation reduces fatigue and improves driver efficiency and comfort.
- Smooth transmission of power extends driveline life by reducing harmful shock loading.

Adams Countians meet legislators

HARRISBURG — Adams County Extension members met with state legislators at a banquet recently in Harrisburg as part of the fourth annual State Capital Day

The banquet, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Council of Extension Associations gave committee members the opportunity to visit with legislators ar ' discuss the impact of Extension programs carried out across the state and at the county level

Adams County delegates who took part in the day's activities were Mrs Freida Johnson, Daniel Winters, A ee Keefer, Daniel Hoffman, 'arolyn Burboraw, Mary Grim and Mr and Mrs Dale King

State Capital Day is an annual event that provides PCCEA the chance to thank legislators for their support The organization is comprised of representatives of county extension executive committees who serve in an advisory capacity to local extension programs

In Adams County and across the state, PCCEA functions primarily to provide advice to Penn State so the extension service can develop programs that will improve the quality of life for Pennsylvanians

At the Legislative banquet, Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture, Penrose Hallowell, welcomed the committee members and read a statement sent by Governor Dick Thornburgh

'The Extension Service provides valuable information and educational programs in the areas of agriculture and natural resources, family life, and 4-H youth and community development," said Hallowell quoting from the Governor's message

"Last year, over two million citizens were the direct recipients of these services which provide information that can benefit all Pennsylvanians

"Capital Day provides an opportunity for legislators to become further acquainted with the vital work of the Cooperative Extension Service in the hope that even more citizens will take advantages of its programs during the coming year," Hallowell concluded

Hallowell thanked the legislators for their enthusiastic support and stressed the important role Extension plays in Pennsylvania agriculture

The Secretary was introduced by Mary Grim, mistress of ceremonies, and PCCEA representative from Adams County Other speakers on the program included Christy Bail, Washington County state 4-H public speaking winner, Enos Sage, chairman of the Legislative Committee of the PCCEA and Rolland Herring, President of the organization

While in Harrisburg the Extension executive committee members also met informally with the legislators in their offices to discuss Extension accomplishments and concerns

Pork Congress to open Wednesday

KANSAS CITY, Mo — Pork producers from across the country will gather at the American Pork Congress Opening Ceremony to hear National Pork Producers Council President Bill Buller's annual report to the membership and to view a spectacular multi-image presentation tracing the history of the NPPC

The Opening Ceremony is scheduled for March 11 at 9 a m in the Music Hall of the Municipal Auditorium, Kansas City, Missouri.

The 1981 American Pork Congress, March 11 to 13, is expected to attract 16,000 pork producers and industry representatives from across the nation

Concentrating on the Pork Congress theme of ' Challenging the Future, ' Buller will address not only the challenges of the past year, but will also predict the challenges that will face pork producers in the future

NPPC will also premiere 'Giants Under Fire', a multi-image presentation about the Council's origins and development Created especially for the American Pork Congress, 'Giants Under Fire" profiles the early leaders and recreates pork producers' early battles, including establishing the voluntary pork checkoff, organizing state units and assembling a national staff

'Pork producers need to take a look back at their heritage to see where they've come from. Once we've looked back, we can more clearly see where we need to go and what needs to be done So 'Giants Under Fire' is therefore not only a look back, but a glimpse into the future,' Buller said.

Welcoming pork producers to Kansas City during the ceremony will be Jim Boillot, Director of the Missouri Department of Agriculture, and Kansas City Mayor Richard Berkley

York urges cooperation in dairy industry

LEWISBURG — John C York, a veteran dairy industry specialist and consultant, has urged cooperation and long-term measures as solutions to current dairy industry problems

York said he believes the dairy industry is one of the most efficient in the country and getting more efficient each year

The time required to work to purchase a half-gallon of milk has gone down from 10 9 minutes in 1967 to 8.9 minutes last year, said York We should not act out of haste and hysteria to fix something that is working well in reference to the dairy industry

Scare tactics employed by some during the seasonal spring heavy milk production period has surfaced year after year This year such tactics are again before us Those persons lacking maturity and experience who are speaking out on dairy issues can cause serious damage to the industry

Undue skepticism, fear and emotion will only result in depressing handling allowances, reducing the manufacturing of products, and discouraging the industry from carrying an inventory reserve of manufactured products This is the time when the industry should demonstrate courage, wisdom and a sense of unity not only among producers but handlers as well.

The abundant supply of milk can evaporate as quickly as it developed One must recall what happened in the sixties, or even as late as the seventies, when United States milk production dropped by 4 5 billion pounds in one year from 1972 to 1973 It will happen again

The current supply of milk has largely been created by factors outside of the industry but closely related to it. Those factors are —low grain prices occasioned by the Russian grain embargo, —relatively low beef prices, and

—non-attractive alternatives to dairying during the past two years.

The above factors are likely to change significantly during the year which, in turn, will reduce the pattern of milk production dramatically in the next 36 months. This is not to mentin what effect rising fuel costs, interest rates, and the high investment necessary to enter the business will have upon future milk production

Milk supplies will likely increase during the year before they come down Measures suggested in the past to insure milk supplies to more closely fit market requirements have not met with favor Surpluses and shortages are part of the system

It is regrettable the industry has not been expressed to the public fairly or realistically. The reserve supply of storable dairy products should be considered as an asset to our national and international needs.

The cost of the dairy support price program has been grossly exaggerated. The figures that are being peddles, ranging from 1 3 to 1 5 billion dollars for this fiscal year, do not take into consideration the inventory value of the products held by the Commodity Credit Corporation under the dairy support price program

The net net cost is only a fraction of what is being publicized It will be close to 300 million dollars or about 15 percent of what is so often mentioned. It is a small price to pay to maintain a stable food industry so vital to the economy of the nation

The dairy industry can talk itself into trouble by scare tactics The nation cannot afford another experience like the one the United States auto industry is currently going through, concluded York.

N.Y. firm loses license

FANCHER, N.Y. — A New York firm, Howard Farms, Inc., of Fancher, has become ineligible to operate in the produce industry under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act as a result of its failure to pay a reparation award of $92,134.

The award was issued by USDA in favor of a Texas shipper from numerous lots of cabbage shipped during April and May of 1979. Howard Farms, Inc. answered the shipper's charges, but based on evidence, the U.S Department of Agriculture ordered payment of the amount claimed

The firm may not operate in the produce industry under the PACA until the award is paid. The firm's officers, directors, and major stockholders, V. Brodie Howard, Theodore M. Howard, and Stephen D. Howard, may not be employed by or affiliated with any PACA licensee without USDA approval.

Charles Brader, an official with USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, said the act provides for damages to be paid by those who fail to meet their contractual obligations in buying and selling fresh and frozen fruits and vegetables.

Governor Dick Thornburgh told Japanese cattle buyers they couldn't go wrong buying state dairy animals. Listening to the Governor are, from right, R. Ishida, K Okada, F Fukumoto, and Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell. The Japanese group visited several Pennsylvania farms to look into purchase of five or six Holstein bulls.

Officials welcome Japanese on Holstein buying trip

BY CURT HARLER

LITTLESTOWN — The Governor of Pennsylvania, the Secretary of Agriculture, and officials of the State Holstein Association were on hand Tuesday to honor members of a Japanese cattle buying group.

The Japanese, representing Japan Holstein Breeding Service Company, Ltd and Nosawa, a Japanese trading company specializing in agriculture, were touring the United States and Canada in search of bulls to improve Japanese breeding stock

The ceremony took place at Penn Gate Farm, R2 Littlestown, owned by Robert and Jean Gitt.

Earlier in the week, the Japanese group also visited the Lancaster County's Sunny Craft Farm, and Galen Crouse; Charles Plushanski, Kutztown; Starbright Holsteins, home of 31 Excellent cows, Lester Poust; George Bridenbaugh's to see the Dunwood Carmel cow, Windy Ridge Farm; George Knight's operation; and another Littlestown dairy owned by John Reinhart

The Japanese said they are looking for plus-proven bulls with good confirmation; deep, strong pedegrees showing two or three Excellent dams with 25,000 pound records; and well known bulls in the animal's history.

At Penn Gate the Japanese group looked long and hard at Penn Gate Wallie Skystar, not quite a four year old bull.

Thirteen of Skystar's daughters were lined up on the right side of the barn, including a Farm Show junior champion who finished second in the open show.

During the trip, the Japanese looked at about 60 bulls They hope to buy five or six.

Members of the Japanese trade delegation included Kazutoshi Okada and Nori Yanagawa, both with the Japan Holstein Breeding Service Company; and Ray Ishida and Frank H Fukumoto, both with Nosawa.

The Japanese said their herds average 22 cows, with 14 milking. Herd averages run around 10,000 pounds.

Herds in Hokaido, Sapporo, tend to be larger, averaging 35 cows per herd. When the Japanese described Hokaido as the "Japanese Wisconsin," State Holstein Director Bill Nichol was quick to correct exporting to Japan is that our milk production has increased even though the number of cows in our herds has decreased," Thornburgh said

The Governor relied on Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell, himself a Bucks County dairy farmer, to explain pedegree charts and point out the sound qualities of the cattle in the Gitt herd.

Yanagowa, a breeding specialist, said he was looking for production first and type next.

He said the Holsteins in Japan generally are smaller than U.S. cows.

"We are looking for tall cows with good butterfat. We want good udder attachment and good strong feet," he said.

The high production argument was graphically illustrated in Penn Gate's barn where only 40 cows occupy 70 stalls.

"That's to help the surplus," Robert Gitt explained.

"Why were we chosen to host such a distinguished group?" Jean Gitt asked as the Governor and the Japanese prepared to leave.

"Class always tells," Thornburgh explained.

The Japanese certainly saw a lot of Holstein class at Penn Gate and at the other Pennsylvania dairies they visited.

"You mean the Japanese Pennsylvania," he said.

Otherwise, the project to trade cows for Toyotas went smoothly.

Nichol said Pennsylvania farmers can consider themselves fortunate to sell one or two bulls at most to the Japanese team.

In a friendly exchange with the Japanese, State Governor Dick Thornburgh told them, "The dairy industry is this state's leading agricultural industry."

He spoke of a trip he took to Japan and recalled the courtesy of the Japanese hosts He added that Pennsylvania has many good things to ship to the Japanese.

"One strong piece of evidence that we have dairy cattle worth

Elanco to hold pseudorabies session

BLUE BALL — Pseudorabies, a hog disease that has been causing livestock losses to hog and cattle feeders in Lancaster County and surrounding areas, will be the topic of an Adult Farmer Meeting to be held on March 12, at 1:30 p.m. in the Union Grove Alternative School.

Pseudorabies, a disease without an affective treatment, will be discussed by a panel of veterinarians including Dr. George Zimmerman, Dr. Robert Graybill who have have their own veterinarian practices, and Dr. George Landis, veterinarian with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

The panel will be discussing the extent of pseudorabies in the area The symptoms of the disease and what animals can be affected by or carry the disease will be discussed along with how the disease is spread into Pennsylvania and from farm to farm.

How to prevent the spread of pseudorabies to uninfected farms, what should be done if you think you may have the disease, and how the disease is confirmed will also be discussed by the veterinarians.

All hog and cattle farmers are encouraged to attend this meeting so that pseudorabies can be halted before it becomes a state wide problem.

The Union Grove School is located two miles north of Route 23 on Route 625 between Blue Ball and Bowmansville.

Further information can be obtained by calling Don Robinson or Bob Anderson at 215/445-5041

If you're out to beat anthracnose

That's what SARANAC AR is all about!

in anthracnose country, it's the best alfalfa you can plant.

Even in sticky, hot, humid weather when anthracnose is sweeping neighboring fields, Saranac AR goes right on producing as though anthracnose had never been heard of.

Saranac AR even stands up to Race II anthracnose, the super-virulent disease strain that can wipe out other alfalfas that have resistance to ordinary anthracnose. In fact, Saranac AR is the accepted standard for resistance to Race II anthracnose. It's bred for your kind of land and your kind of weather. Bred to meet your highest goals .. even when ordinary alfalfas are curling over and turning yellow.

Saranac AR meets hard winters and bacterial wilt head on... and comes out on top. It's bred for anthracnose resistance, fast recovery and long-lived stands. Pre-inoculated, of course It's the only one to plant where anthracnose or anthracnose Race II is a threat. After all, that's what Saranac AR is all about!

How Penn Gate Farms breeds top Holsteins

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

LITTLESTOWN — Bob and Jean Gitt have spent several decades breeding, milking and showing a topnotch herd of registered Holsteins at their Penn Gate Farms, Littlestown R2.

Merchandising those purebreds has been a major part of the Penn Gate operation, through regular advertising, consignments to sales and numerous showring winnings

Tuesday afternoon, the Gitt's cattle merchandising program meshed with similar goals of the Thornburgh administration in promoting Pennsylvania agriculture products, and the Pennsylvania Holstein Association's international marketing of purebred black and whites

As Governor Dick Thornburgh, Secretary of Agriculture Penrose Hallowell, four Japanese agriculture trade officials, and representatives of the state Holstein Association braved chilling winds whipping around the Penn Gate barns, a farm leadsman brought out one of the objects of all the attention

Standing 66 inches at the shoulder, Penn Gate Wallie Skystar is a powerful and impressive 4-year-old bull, scored EX-93 His good-natured temperament, for a one-and-a-half-ton mass of muscle, was apparent

As Governor Thornburgh grasped the bull's nose lead, to joke with the Gitt family, friends and reporters, Skystar stood patiently and calmly for pictures with the trade delegation.

Sired by Lazy-L Skyliner Wallie, the bull has performed well in showring competition. He placed second in the 1979 Pennsylvania All-American show as a two-year-old and was later Honorable Mention two-year-old bull in the 1981 All American awards

His maternal brother at Penn Gate, Beech Hill Elevation Jet Star, was also on the potential purchase list of the Japanese trade delegation

Jet Star is a seven-year-old son of the famous Round Oak Rag Apple Elevation and is scored EX-92 The newly-released 1981 Holstein Association Sire Summary shows him carrying a plus-proof on milk of 784, and a plus on fat of 26, for a total production index of plus-192

Dam of the pair is Beech-Hill Admiral Twila, a 15-year-old brood cow occupying an exclusive box stall next to her sons in the Penn Gate barn

Twila was sired by Irvington Pride Admiral and is scored VG-89 Her long list of high production lactations includes a 7-year record of over 26,000 milk and 1029 fat in 305 days, with lifetime credits to date of 170,035 milk and 6749 fat

Grandam is Beech-Hill Star Man Tess, classified VG-86 At 11 years

Cattle buyers from Japan who visited several Pennsylvania dairy farms this week looked at cattle with a discerning eye At Penn Gate Farms in Adams County they looked at Skystar, a bull approaching four years old and saw 13 of his daughters lined up inside.

Tess made a 305-day record of 20,920 milk and 829 fat, with a 4.0 percent fat test She has lifetime credits of 187,932 milk and 7628 fat

The Gitts also milk a sister to the bulls, Penn Gate Raven Tulip Tulip is scored Very Good and has a 4-year record of over 18,000 milk

One of the Gitt's homebreds, Penn Gate Fond Reflection, sold many years ago to Curtiss Breeding Service and another Penn Gate bull went to the American Breeders Service

Trade delegations, like the one visiting Penn Gate herd and several other Holstein operations in Pennsylvania, and across the country, are an important part of the merchandising of American agriculture exports

According to Frank Fukumoto, the Japanese trade delegation

Lots of note taking and pedigree checking assured the Japanese they saw good Holstein breeding stock at Penn Gate Farms. The four Japanese, from left, are: N. Yanagawa, F. Fukumoto, K. Okada, and R. Ishida. Looking on in background are Bill Nichol, Pennsylvania Holstein Association; and Robert E. Gitt, Penn Gate owner.

N. Yanagawa of the Japan Holstein Breeding Service measures Penn Gate Wallie Skystar as Pennsylvania Governor Richard Thornburgh, right, and Skystar's breeder Robert E. Gitt look on.

Penn Gate

visits the United States two or three times yearly on buying trips for top animals.

Fukumoto is livestock specialist with NOSAWA, a Japanese trading company specializing in international agriculture trade. He was key spokesman for the group, which also included Dr. Kazutoshi Okada and Nori Yanagawa, representing the Japan Holstein Breeding Service, and Ray Ishida, director of NOSAWA

The Japanese Holstein Breeding Service looks for good type and conformity in potential sire purchases, perferably bulls scored Excellent. They must carry a strong, deep pedigree, ideally with two or three Excellent dams, or Very Good dams with records over 25,000 milk. Their sires must be well-known and plus proven

The few bulls that the delegation will ultimately choose on this trip will be flown from San Francisco to the stud at Sapporo, on Hokkaido, the northern island of Japan. There are currently 35 U.S. Holstein bulls at Sapporo now, including an Elevation son of Northcroft Elevation Ella. Ella is owned by York Countian George Knight and was selected the Supreme Champion cow at the Madison, Wisconsin, Central National Show last Fall.

According to the delegation members, about 95 percent of all cattle breeding in Japan is done by artificial insemination, a larger percentage than in the U S

There are approximately 120,000 dairy herds in Japan, with an average number of about 12 cows and an equal number of heifers being raised.

On Hokkaido, which is the prime agriculture and dairy production area of Japan, dairy herds range closer to double that national average.

Production per cow is about 10,000 pounds milk and payment is made at a 3.5 butterfat level

Fukomoto says that Japanese dairy farmers receive about twice the price for milk now being paid to American dairymen.

Then with a hint of a teasing grin he adds, "But then we have to buy all that expensive United States grain, too."

Corn and grass silages can be made in Japan, but a large portion of the grain ration must be imported. Much of the dried hay must also be shipped into Japan as well, with Fukomoto guessing that price at about 17 cents per pound, or $340 per ton.

In spite of high feed costs, Japanese farmers share the U.S. domestic problem of overproduction and milk surpluses. Strict base amounts are set on milk production per farm and excess milk produced over that must be used by the farmer, most fed to calves.

That milk surplus has had a dramatic effect on the export market for U.S. Holsteins. Some 1500 head were purchased in 1979, while in 1980, that figure dropped to only 630.

The Best Equipment For Converting Old Poultry Houses To Maximum Density

Thinking about making better use of your old poultry houses? Here's the answer

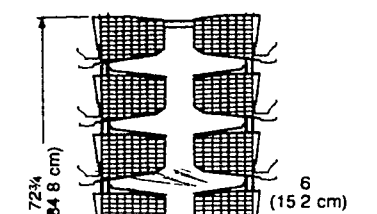
With Diamond's 4 High Stacked Layer Cage System you can increase the bird density of an old stair step cage house from 30 000 birds to 108 000 And that's without adding a single square foot of floor space The system 811 is just 73' high and 60 wide

If ceiling height permits you can increase bird density even more up to 135 000 birds with the 5 High System 812 or 162 000 birds with the 6-High System 813

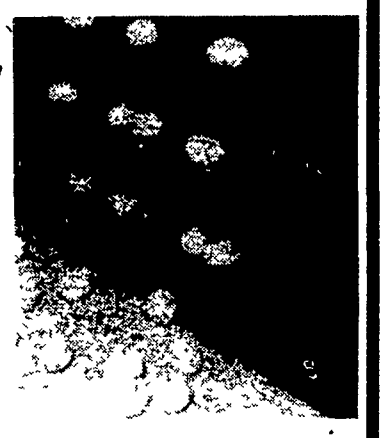
With new construction you reduce your over all investment per bird by putting more birds in a building and utilizing the otherwise wasted vertical space

The Diamond Stacked Layer Cage System is available with your choice of three feeding systems the Flat Chain F 80 Deep V or Link Chain And three watering systems troughs cups or nipples Doors are located on front of all cages Installation is fast and easy

Three feeding systems



Manure is deposited on rust proof fiber glass manure chutes under each tier of cages and removed automatically by a Diamond manure removal system proven over 12 years



Eggs are collected automatically by a special high capacity system designed for the Stacked System Plastic or woven fabric belts are available

"I need every cent I can get from every acre I farm. That's why I plant these Pioneer® brand hybrids."

This superior performer has lots of high yield punch. And at harvest 3535 shells out load after load of medium hard-textured, high test-weight grain. It's a real winner under stress of heat, drouth and high population. 3535 is bred to take a lot of punishment and come out on top. This means more corn for you ... more money per acre.

3382

Many claims are made about seed corn. Some are sold on promises. But 3382 is sold on tried and true yield performance. This new breed of hybrid has proven big yield potential under modern farming practices. High population and well-fertilized soil really unleash the genetic potential in 3382. It dries fast. Standability is excellent. You'll get your money's worth. Try it.

3184

This hybrid just won't quit when it comes to stalk strength and high yields. There's nothing better than this firmly established leader hybrid in its maturity zone. Farmers really like it around here. It's adaptable to most any soil type or farming practice. 3184 takes drouth and stress. Make sure you include this outstanding hybrid in your planting plans. It's a winner.

Food is not weapon, Stone tells NFU

ORLANDO, Fla. — Making his first annual report as president of the National Farmers Union, George W Stone declared that U S. food power should be used as a constructive force for peace rather than a negative diplomatic tool

Speaking at the 79th annual convention of the organization being held at the Hyatt Orlando Hotel, Stone asserted that world grain and food supplies may tighten considerably by the end of the year

"Because the U.S. will likely have the principal available grain stocks, we will have food power but we need to handle this responsibility wisely," he said "Food should be the last thing, not the first thing, we use as a political weapon. The food pipeline should be the last commercial link which should be severed when there are seemingly insoluble problems between nations."

The Farmers Union official said there should never again be an instance, like the 1980 embargo on grain shipments to the USSR, in which food is singled out as the principal political weapon.

"There would have been little criticism of the Russian grain embargo if it had been part of a general embargo such as was the case with Iran," he explained "No one complained even though a half-billion-dollar export market was being closed off."

Stone urged the Russian grain embargo be terminated at once so that negotiations can begin on renewal of the five-year grain agreement which expires in September

"As for trade with Iran, the initiative will have to come from them, but should they at some point wish to make cash purchases of rice, feed grain, vegetable oils or other foods, we should not close the door to such a request," he stated.

Stone maintained that U S. food power strategy "should include a revitalized Food for Peace Program, stressing humanitarian, economic aid and market development goals.

"Even if grain and food stocks become tight, a portion of our food resources should be earmarked for aid to food-deficit countries We must not ignore famine and hunger in the needy countries — that would be the quickest way to push non-aligned nations into the Communist orbit," he added.

While the immediate motivation should be to alleviate famine and hunger, "it should not be overlooked that Food for Peace assistance has helped create markets for U.S farm products," Stone continued.

There are 10 countries who are now billion-dollar customers for our farm exports," Stone ex-

Lebanon extension members meet legislators

LEBANON — Lebanon County Extension members met with state legislators at a banquet in Harrisburg as part of the fourth annual State Capital Day.

Alletta Schadler, County Extension Director said that the banquet, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Council of Cooperative Extension Associations, gave committee members the opportunity to visit with legislators and discuss the impact of Extension programs carried out across the state and at the county level

Lebanon County delegates who took part in the day's activities were Warren Bucher, Claire Gerberich and Victor Zeigler

State Capital Day is an annual event that provides PCCEA the chance to thank legislators for their support The organization is comprised of representatives of county Extension executive committees who serve in an advisory capacity to local Extension programs

In Lebanon County and across the state, PCCEA functions primarily to provide advice to Penn State so the extension service can develop programs that will improve the quality of life for Pennsylvanians

At the Legislative banquet, Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture, Penrose Hallowell, welcomed the committee members and read a statement sent by Governor Dick Thornburgh.

The Extension Service of Penn State University provides valuable information and educational programs in the areas of agriculture and natural resources, family life, and 4-H youth and community development," said Hallowell quoting from the Governor's message

"Last year, over two million citizens were the direct recipients of these services which provide information that can benefit all Pennsylvanians

"Capital Day provides an opportunity for legislators to become further acquainted with the vital work of the Cooperative Extension Service in the hope that even more citizens will take advantages of its programs during the coming year," Hallowell concluded

Hallowell thanked the legislators for their enthusiastic support and stressed the important role Extension plays in Pennsylvania agriculture

The Secretary was introduced by Mary Grim, mistress of ceremonies, and PCCEA representative from Adams County Other speakers on the program included Christy Ball, Washington County state 4-H public speaking winner, Eric Sage chairman of the Legislative Committee of the PCCEA and Leland Herring, President of the organization

The program also included a slide show entirely narrated by PCCEA members

State farm grounds available for leasing

HARRISBURG — Family farmers interested in renting the farmlands and buildings at the seven state-owned farms which have been phased out of operation by the Agriculture Department in the past year should contact the Bureau of Real Estate in the Department of General Services on or before March 20, 1981.

State Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell said the seven farms, at Allentown, Laurelton, Mayview, Selingsgrove, Somerset, Wernersville and Woodville are now available for leasing. The farms had been transferred to the Agriculture Department by Govenor Thornburgh in an executive order on May 7, 1980.

The parcels of land and several residences on the seven phased out farms will be leased at the highest responsible bidders within the next several weeks, so that the farms can be utilized for the 1981 crop year, Hallowell said.

He noted legislation signed by Governor Thornburgh last year permits leases for an initial term of three years with two-year renewal options available.

"Family farmers who would carry on the farming tradition on these lands will be a credit to themselves and the commonwealth," Hallowell said. "We are particularly encouraging young individuals and those who desire to start a career in agriculture to apply for these leases."

The three farms at Norristown, Danville and Polk Center will continue operations within the Agriculture Department for another year, under revision signed by the Governor on February 23.

In that order, Governor Thornburgh noted "seven of the ten farm operations are on schedule for phaseout. However, various alternative uses for the remaining three farms have been proposed which require additional time to fully investigate and consider."

Hallowell said the intention in the original transfer was to phase out the ten operations to the best financial advantage of the state as well as to benefit the communities surrounding the lands.

He noted continued operation of the three, farms would not be a drain on the Department's budget because, "the farms will be self-funded through sales of products from all three operations."

Hallowell said dispersal sales of livestock at the Allentown farm (March 17) and Selinsgrove farm (March 20) would go on as scheduled.

More information on the leases for the seven farms is available by contacting James A. Keys, Bureau of Real Estate, Department of General Services, 503 North Office Building, Harrisburg, PA 17125, or by calling 717/787-4394.

Columbia diaryman receives Land Bank nomination

LEWISBURG — Richard Kriebel, a prominent Columbia County dairy farmer has been honored by being nominated as a candidate for a 3-year term on the board of directors of the Northeastern Federal Land Bank Association and Production Credit Association of Lewisburg which has six branch offices and covers a 16 county area in Northeastern Pennsylvania.

The Kriebel farm is a family operation with the 37-year-old husband, and wife, the former Janet Burkwalter, and three of their four children very much a part of the agri-business Faith (17), Scott (15), Wendy (13), according to Mr. Kriebel, are the important cogs that spell success for an operation this size.

He added, "Mrs. Kriebel is not only a housewife and dedicated mother, but she's at the barn, or wherever I need her to help."

Richard Kriebel

The dairy farm operation consists of a total of 322 acres of which 182 are owned and 140 rented.

The 72 head dairy herd presently includes 23 registered Guernseys and 49 Holsteins. The Guernseys ranked 4th in the state of Pennsylvania with an average of 13,414 pounds of milk and 626 pounds of fat and 18,047 pounds of milk and 677 pounds of fat for the Holsteins.

They also have 56 heifers and calves to provide future replacements.

Kriebel is presently serving on the Columbia County Agriculture Stabilization Conservation Agency Committee and vice chairman of the Columbia County Planning Commission.

Kriebel is a graduate of Collegeville-Trappe High School and the Kellogg Foundation Public Affairs Leadership Course with a travel seminar to Europe and North Africa.

The family resides one mile north of Benton on Route 2.

The Agway DNI feeding program gives these hens the nutrients they need. And without wasting dollars.

The Agway Daily Nutrient Intake (DNI) feeding program gives your birds the nutrients they need for maximum production at the lowest possible cost. The simple and efficient DNI system prevents overfeeding of expensive protein while meeting your hens' daily requirements for amino acids and other nutrients

Today there s no need to put more nutrients in your bins than your hens need

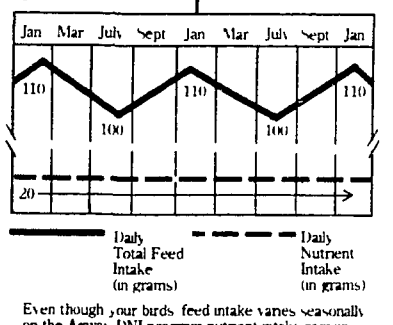
MAINTAINS A CONSTANT NUTRIENT LEVEL AS DAILY INTAKE CHANGES.

The idea behind the DNI program is simple: as feed intake varies, change feeds to avoid paying for more nutrition than your birds require

Suppose, for example, your flock is eating 100 grams of feed per bird daily (22 lbs./100 birds). Under the DNI program, your feed would be Agway High Layer 1000.

During cold weather, when the birds moved up to 110 grams of feed daily, you'd switch to High Layer 1100+ to maintain daily nutrient intake at the required level. Paying for more protein than necessary can significantly affect the profitability of your business.

By monitoring your flock's intake, you'll know when to change feeds (such as Agway High Layer 900 when birds are eating just 90 grams of feed/day, or High Layer 1100+ when birds are consuming 110 grams of feed/day).



Even though your birds' feed intake varies seasonally on the Agway DNI program nutrient intake remains constant provided you change feeds based on intake

YOUR AGWAY POULTRY SPECIALIST CAN HELP SET UP A DNI PROGRAM FOR YOUR OPERATION.

Agway Poultry Enterprise specialists are available to help you set up a DNI program for your operation You'll find that DNI is simple. All you do is watch your birds' feed intake and adjust feeds accordingly

So contact your local Agway today for more details on the DNI program —the system that makes sure your birds get the nutrients they need. without wasting dollars.

Lions adopt Leader Dog Puppy program

BY JANE BRESEE
Staff Correspondent

TOWANDA — The Lions 4-H Leader Dog Puppy Program was officially adopted for the first time in Bradford County at a recent dinner meeting held at the Elks Club here Representatives from each of the eight Lions Clubs gave their enthusiastic nod

Mrs Jody Sweeney, 4-H coordinator of the Leader Dog Puppy Program and the featured speaker at the Lions Club meeting, explained that the Leader Dog Puppy Program was started in Pennsylvania in 1978 Five German Shepherd female dogs, carefully chosen for temperment and conformation, are kept at Penn State specifically to have puppies to be future Leader Dogs

The puppies are farmed out to 4-H kids in various counties for a year and after passing physical and obedience tests are sent to the Leader Dog School in Rochester, Michigan to be further trained and given to blind people

The Leader Dog School is supported financially by Lions Clubs International and is known as one of the largest and finest Leader Dog Schools in the world

Mrs Sweeney brought an eight week old female German Shepherd puppy with her The dog, well-behaved and quiet, won the hearts of the 50 Lions present This particular dog will be delivered soon to a 4-H member in another county

One of the most important parts of training the dog in the first year is socialization,' Mrs Sweeney said The 4-H member will be expected to take the dog to town, to fairs, to church, and other public places in order to expose him to all types of situations he might experience as a Leader Dog The Lions Club members will help 'open doors ' for the dogs to enter where dogs are not usually allowed

Miss Levetta Roof, Bradford County 4-H agent, told the Lions that a committee will soon be formed to choose the 4-H kids who will be taking care of the Leader Dog puppies A special Leader Dog Puppy 4-H club will be started and the children will be carefully taught how to care for the dogs

The Lions committed themselves financially to help pay for dog food, and visits to the vet since the average cost of raising a puppy for a year is $200

According to Duane Fay, Big Pond Lion and district coordinator of the Lions Leader Dog Program, Lions in his district alone gave $55,000 to the program last year, so he felt finances will not be a problem

Mrs. Sweeney told the group that one of the dogs at Penn State named Hannah is expecting puppies by the last of March, and these puppies will be delivered to Bradford County the last of May Last time Hannah had 10 puppies, Mrs Sweenty said, so it is anybody's guess how many boys and girls she will be making happy this time

An eight week old German Shepherd puppy calmly poses with Duane Fay, district coordinator of the Lions 4-H Leader Dog Puppy Program at a recent meeting of Bradford County Lions. Levetta Roof, Bradford County 4-H agent, is organizing a special 4H Leader Dog Puppy Club in preparation for puppies to arrive in the county the last of May.

Agway to seat new president

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — William A. Hiller, 53, assistant general manager, will become president and chief executive officer of Agway Inc when Ronald N. Goddard retires July 1, 1981.

Hiller, a 30-year employee of Agway, a 123,000 member farm supply and food marketing cooperative, was named to the top management post by the Board of Directors at its March meeting in Syracuse, N Y.

Goddard, who has been CEO since 1969, will be 65 in the fiscal year starting July 1, his announced retirement date.

Hiller will head an organization with combined sale of $2.7 billion in its most recent fiscal year, ranking it 171st on Fortune magazine's list of the 500 largest industrial companies in the United States.

The Agway system includes 800 retail outlets, 24 livestock/feed manufacturing plants, 50 fertilizer production units, an insurance company, and a petroleum company with more than 450,000 customers and 130 bulk plants.

Although it principally serves the Northeast, Agway has facilities and operations in Indiana, North Dakota, Texas, Idaho, and Washington State.

Agway owns controlling interest in Curtice-Burns Inc., a Rochester-based food processing and marketing company; Texas City Refining, Inc., and in 1980, purchased control of H. P. Hood Inc., a Boston-based dairy and food marketing company.

Hiller, born and reared on a farm in Stroudsburg, was graduated cum laude from Upper Iowa University with a bachelor of science degree in biology. He holds a master of science degree in agricultural economics from Penn State

He joined Cooperative GLF Exchange, one of Agway's founding cooperatives, in 1951 as a manager-trainee.

After holding a number of management positions in various divisions, he became director of marketing in 1971 and was elected a vice president of Agway Inc. the following year. He was promoted to group vice president, distribution services, in July, 1973.

Hiller is a director and past president of Universal Cooperatives, Minneapolis, Minn.; board chairman of Texas City Refining, Inc.; and a director of H. P. Hood, Inc. He is a director and vice chairman of the Board of CF Industries, Inc., Chicago, Ill., which is owned by Agway and 18 other farmer cooperatives in the United States and Canada.

Hiller is a trustee of the Farm Foundation, Oak Brook, Ill. He also served on the boards of Curtice-Burns, Inc , and Agfoods, Inc.

He is president and a member of the executive board of Hiawatha Council, Boy Scouts of America, and is a trustee of Syracuse Savings Bank and Crouse-Irving Memorial Hospital, Syracuse.

Hiller and his wife, Joan, live in Fayetteville, N Y., and have three sons.

Goddard, who was elected to his present post in November 1969, is a 44-year Agway employee. Born and reared on a farm near Truxton, N Y , he joined GLF 1937 as a manager-trainee

After serving as a district manager in northern New York and as a farm supply division supervisor, Goddard was named manager of the retail division, with responsibility for operations of the cooperative's stores and dealers. He became sales division manager in 1957 and director of marketing in 1960.

With the formation of Agway in 1964, Goddard was appointed director of planning and elected a vice president the following year. In November 1965, he was named executive director of operations. He was elected assistant general manager in 1968.

Goddard is immediate past chairman of the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives; a director of New York Telephone Company, Lincoln First Banks, Inc., Lincoln First Bank, N.A., and Crouse-Irving Memorial Foundation; a trustee of Syracuse University, and a past chairman of the Greater Syracuse Chamber of Commerce He is a member of the Syracuse University School of Management Advisor Council

Goddard and his wife, Mary, live in Fayetteville, N.Y. They are the parents of a son and daughter

Farm Bureau endorses Reagan economic plan

WASHINGTON, D.C. — American Farm Bureau Federation Thursday endorsed President Reagan's four point program for economic recovery.

The program includes a budget reform plan to cut the rate of growth in Federal spending; a series of proposals to reduce personal income tax rates by 10 percent a year over three years and to create jobs by accelerating depreciation for business investment in plant and equipment, a far reaching program of regulatory relief; and in cooperation with the Federal Reserve Board, a new commitment to a monetary policy that will restore a stable currency and healthy financial market

During its regular March meeting in Washington, D.C , the AFBF board of directors released a statement saying. "We are pleased that these policies are to be pursued as a package and not piecemeal as has been the case in past administrations.

"We believe that the bold program recommended to the Congress by President Reagan is a good start for reversing the 15 year trend of government spending increasing faster than the gross national product.

"Farmers will take their fair share of federal spending cuts, but farmers must be assured that the cuts are targeted throughout all federal spending programs with special emphasis given to entitlement programs which are the central force driving federal nondefense spending.

"In the spirit of fair play, annual cost-of-living adjustments in all entitlement programs should be held to 75 percent rather than 100 percent of the consumer price index."

The farm group said they were "disapppointed that the president does not plan to achieve a balanced budget until 1984 and believe the Congress should insist that a balance be achieved in fiscal year 1981."

In the statement, Farm Bureau said the Soviet grain embargo should be ended.

"We urge the president to carry out his promise to end the embargo to the Soviet Union and refrain from such embargoes in the future. Economic sanctions are no substitute for military strength," they said.

plained "Seven of them are former recipients of Food for Peace aid"

"All of our major customers for nonfat dry milk and grain sorghum are graduates of the Food for Peace program, as well as eight out of 10 of our largest customers for wheat, cotton and rice and seven out of 10 of our largest buyers of soybeans, corn and feed grains. This should be remembered in planning our food power strategy"

Looking toward the adoption of a 1981 farm bill, Stone said the single most important provision would be a substantial increase in commodity loan levels

"Much less net cost to the Treasury is involved in the commodity loan program than in direct payments to farmers," he argued.

In addition, higher crop loan levels would enable farmers to keep pace with inflated costs, would make the farmer-held grain reserve work more effectively both for farmers and consumers, would enhance U.S export earnings and our balance of trade, and would make it possible to bring additional acreage into cropping as needed in response to growing demand"

Stone recalled that when shortages developed in 1972 there were 62 million diverted acres which could be brought back into production

"Now there is no cushion of set-aside acres," he asserted "We are not out of land, but the available acres tend to be less productive and will, therefore, require higher commodity prices to be converted to cropland use"

The USDA summary report on the structure of agriculture in the long term "may be more fundamental to America than most of us yet realize" National Farmers Union Vice President, Stanley M Moore of Jamestown, N D, told the organization's convention

In his annual report, Moore said the USDA structures report 'places into real perspective the challenges that lie ahead for the American family farmer" He said the report also outlines the challenges that face the nation and its position in the world "because it points out the trend of private and public policy that will determine who will control the land and in turn our food supply of this nation."

He emphasized the USDA study must be thoroughly reviewed by farmers and nation in the development of future farm policies, and those decisions must be made in the near future "Time is not necessarily on the side of the family farm, and the challenges are real It is time to choose

Moore said while the national farm group may not necessarily agree with all of the conclusions and recommenations of the USDA report, it is imperative that the farm group continue in a leading role to address the issues of land ownership, soil and water conservation, tax policies, commodity programs, credit policies, public research and extension policies, agriculture labor and trade policies which are outlined in the report He reminded the farm organization delegates that the national dialogue on the structure of agriculture was initiated two years ago in an address by former Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland at the National Farmers Union Convention in Kansas City.

Kenneth L Motz, treasurer of Farmers Union, said the group experienced its 11th consecutive year of membership growth in 1980

"We gained 8600 families in 1980, and we're proud of that increase at a time when our nation is losing farmers every year," Motz said He said membership increases occurred in Arkansas, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Wisconsin, New Mexico, Oregon-Washington and Pennsylvania

"With major membership recruitment now underway for 1981, I hope to be able to report an even larger membership increase at next year's convention," he said.

Motz said the National Farmers Union also had a good financial year he said income from dues, insurance fees, the budget fund, investments, subscriptions and service fees slightly exceeded the organization's expenditures in a budget of more than $2.2 million.

"I am proud to tell you that the budget of the National Farmers Union is used solely to promote the interests of family agriculture and the cooperatives that serve family farmers and ranchers," Motz said. "Our first consideration in every expenditure is what it will do for agriculture"

"With threats to the dairy price support program and other farm-related programs of the federal government, the work of the National FArmers Union and every one of our members will be extremely important throughout 1981," Motz said.

NFU delegates approve mushroom policy

ORLANDA, FLA. — Delegates to the 79th Annual Convention of the National Farmers Union Wednesday unanimously approved policy calling for quantitative limits on imported mushrooms

The Farmers Union is the first national farm organization to address the problems facing the mushroom industry with a specific policy statement. Most of the industry is centered in Chester, Berks and Lancaster counties of Pennsylvania

The family farm organization's position is that an absolute import quota of 30 percent of total domestic consumption of mushrooms be enforced, based on the previous year's volume.

This is the first time in the history of import problems in the mushroom industry that any farm organization has introduced a plank into their national policy,' said Margaret Edwards a Farmers Union member from Chester County 'I think it will be a great help to the mushroom growers because now we have someone to stand behind us."

Besides limiting imports, the policy position states that imports should meet the same health, sanitation, pesticide and species requirements imposed on domestic producers.

The policy position states that 'A tariff of 13 percent should continue to be imposed on imported mushrooms subsequent to the expiration of Executive Proclamation 4801," which was a tariff imposed by the Carter Administration on all imported mushrooms

'The tariff remedy is just not enough, we must find a way to protect these growers," James Brown, Pennsylvania Advisory Committee Chairman stated.

Introducing a guaranteed fixed-rate loan for farmers.

It's the American Bank advantage.

American Bank has been committed to helping farmers since the turn of the century. Because of our close association, we are aware that 1980 was a very bad year for you. So we're making a special limited 4-week offer of a fixed-rate Crop Builder Loan. This loan can be used to finance the growing of field crops for later sale or for use on the farm as feed.

The advantages of our Crop Builder Loan are many. Once your loan has been approved, you'll be assured of getting the money you need, when you need it. And since the rate is fixed, you won't have to worry about the volatility of floating interest rates. This will help you in determining the cost of producing a crop and will reduce your risk in the crop investment.

The Crop Builder Loan is available to all farmers who are eligible. You don't presently have to be an American Bank customer. To take advantage of this offer, contact Gene Richard or Bill Hughes in our Agri-business Department at (215) 375-5993.

Commitment to farmers. It's the American Bank advantage.

Supreme Court refuses pseudo-names appeal

DES MOINES, IA. — The U.S. Supreme Court has refused to hear an appeal by the National Pork Producers Council to deny the use of traditional names on uncured meat products

The courts decision means uncured meat products can carry the same names as traditionally cured products such as hot dogs and bologna

NPPC opposed the regulation out of concern for consumer safety because the products will not contain the preservative nitrite and will need to be handled as a fresh meat product

'Since the USDA and FDA have agreed that nitrites are not harmful and have been authorized for continued use as a preservative, we see no reason for this regulation which was to provide greater accessibility of nitrite free products," said Orville Sweet, Executive Vice President of NPPC.

NPPC is studying several options available to gain revisions or have the regulation withdrawn."

High Protein Cost Getting You Down?

With protein cost munching away at your wallet, the feeding value of your feed is of the utmost importance!

NOW is the time when ALFA-ZYME is really necessary to your feeding program. ALFA-ZYME will help your animals break down that important protein and help turn it into profit...instead of passing it off as expensive waste!

ALFA-ZYME - the product laden with live digestive enzymes - does well in extracting the maximum value from farm feeds.

A quick look at ALFA-ZYME under the microscope shows millions of tiny LIVE yeast cells...and millions of lactic acid organisms which we grow through the fermentation process at our plant.

ALFA-ZYME is not high in protein...but when added to your mixed feeds, it gives your feeds the aroma animals love!

- HOGS...ALFA-ZYME carries the essential amino acids hogs need to grow and stay healthy!
- STEERS...The aroma of ALFA-ZYME puts your steers to eating like they missed their last feeding!
- COWS...ALFA-ZYME works like the carburetor of a car .allowing proper intake and outputting maximum results!
- CHICKENS...See fast results for chickens (especially layers) by simply top dressing their feeds!

Ever notice how chickens and hogs do better in a barnyard with cattle. Why?...Because the chickens and hogs find cattle droppings loaded with valuable unused enzymes!

ALFA-ZYME provides valuable enzymes to you...whether your feeds are custom mixed, mixed at the mill, or you own a portable grinder. Remember - ALFA-ZYME is NOT an average ingredient! It is one that when mixed with feeds and supplements makes a TOTAL FEED...promoting healthy livestock as well as profitable returns!

championships in the Alpine show. Their milking doe, Ces Tout Fount J Noreen, was tagged senior champion before going on to take the grand championship of the show. And their Ces Tout Charity's Rockette was awarded the junior champion honors.

Kimberly Jurkowski showed the reserve senior and reserve grand champion Alpine, LaFerme DeChevre's Claudine, a milking doe

In the small LaMancha show, Dawn Spitler, Newmanstown, tied up the grand, reserve grand, senior, reserve senior, and reserve junior championships. Her milking doe, Kwik Draws Holly Hocks, was named senior champion and grand champion, while Spitler's other milking doe, Talisman Daffodil, took the reserve senior and reserve grand ribbons. Her reserve grand champ was Gi Gi's Jasper's Karis

Susan Miller, daughter of Ann Miller, Furlong, added a junior champion ribbon to the family's winnings when her LaMancha, Rockspring Vermouth Vibrant, was tagged junior champ.

The Nubian show, which boasted the largest entry numbers, was topped by Cheryl Eschbach's milking doe, Wintergrees DHJ Early Bird, also the senior champion. The reserve senior and reserve grand rosette went to a Hope and Farlee entry, Fox Hill Sun Vixen, the second place milking doe in class.

Gail LeCompt was in the money again with her Nubian entry, Chris Newfashioned Velvet, tagged junior champion by Judge Holder. And Karen Pensack showed the second place doe, Larch Lane's Burnt Sienna, to the reserve junior championship.

The grand champion Saanen was shown by Rosemary Heffner of Palm. The doe was a strong contender for Best of Show.

Despite the small numbers in the Saanen show, the doe selected grand champion was an outstanding animal and one which Judge Holder considered strongly for Best In Show. The championship trophy went to ERL Hopes Harriet, a milking doe exhibited by Rosemary Heffner, Palm. The doe was also the senior champ.

The reserve senior and reserve grand championship honors went to Gail LeCompt's milking doe Yarrow Hill Hopes Terri. She also exhibited the reserve junior champion, Newfashioned Snow of ML Farm.

Brian Blouch of R2 Bethel, exhibited the junior champion Saanen, Abbott Homestead Dandelion.

PUT MORE PROFIT IN YOUR ALFALFA.

Whether you grow for a cash crop or to feed your own livestock, you can't afford weeds in your alfalfa. They shorten stand life, lower protein content, lower TDN and reduce overall digestibility and palatability of your hay. In short, excessive weed growth just plain picks your pocket.

ORTHO PARAQUAT CL herbicide burns back weeds on contact. Apply PARAQUAT during the winter to dormant established stands. It's exceptionally broad spectrum and destroys weeds with extraordinary speed. Apply PARAQUAT with ORTHO X-77 Spreader.

DANGER: PARAQUAT is highly toxic if swallowed and should be kept out of the reach of children. To prevent accidental ingestion, never transfer to food, drink or other containers. Read the label carefuly and follow all directions, danger statements and worker safety rules.

Restricted Use Pesticide. Use all chemicals only as directed.

This was Jill Keeport's first experience at showing goats which she raises on her 3½ acre farmette in Dover. Altogether she has 5 goats — and they're all expecting, she said proudly. When asked why she chose to raise the two-spigot milkers, Jill smiled and said, "I just love goats. I guess I'm a reincarnated peasant girl." Jill and friends took home a red and yellow ribbon — not bad for the first time out.

The grand champion Alpine was exhibited by Tom Hope of Hopewell, N.J. The doe was also the senior champion in milk.

Dawn Spitler of Newmanstown, Lebanon County, exhibited the grand champion LaMancha, a breed of goats easily identified by their lack of "ears" which makes tatooing a challenge.

Molly Johnson is Pa. Cattlemen's Queen

BY SHEILA MILLER

STATE COLLEGE — A sparkling tiara was placed atop nineteen-year-old Molly Johnson's auborn hair on Monday evening during the annual banquet of the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association She was selected as the 1981 Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Queen and will be assuming the promotion responsibilities for the state's beef industry as Laura Weinberger, last year's queen, retires.

The beef industry is nothing new for the Penn State sophomore. Not only is she an animal production major in the College of Agriculture, but she hails from a beef and hog operation owned by her parents', Ruth Ann and Philip Johnson, near Nottingham. And, in her first Penn State Little International, Molly was chosen Champion Angus Fitter last year. She was a member of the 1980 Meats Judging Team at Penn State last year, too.

The attractive queen who stands 5 feet 9 inches tall said she wants cattle producers to understand she's not just another pretty face.

"I want to continue to work with consumers — but I want to work more with producers. I want them to know their queen does know something about cows. I'll be someone they can air their views through," she said.

After graduation from Penn State, Molly said she hopes to find a job in livestock production as a herdsman and added she hopes to someday own a farm. While a student at the University, she is getting practical experience working as an assistant herdsman at the Haller Research Farm.

Other contestants for the title of Pa. Cattlemen's Queen included. Laurie Dobrosky, 18, daughter of Anthony and Patricia Dobrosky, Glen Rock, York County, Linda Ebaugh, 21, daughter of Sharon and Paul Ebaugh, York; and Susanne Jendrowsky, 20, daughter of William and Eugenia Jendrowsky, Langhorne, Bucks County

Judges for this year's contest were Mary Wilson, Dave Seaman, Marlene Sovyak, all of State College, and Betty rode, with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture

STATE COLLEGE — Ralph Dotterer, a cattle feeder from R2 Mill Hall, Clinton County, was named Pennsylvania Cattleman of the Year on Monday during the annual banquet of the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association.

Dotterer, who is the retiring president of the Pennsylvania Beef Council and served as a past president of the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association, commented as he received the plaque from Harry Stambaugh, director, "This is a surprise and honor I don't know if I deserve it, but I'll accept it"

The fact Dotterer did deserve to receive the honor was not a question in the minds of the other cattlemen Dotterer, along with his sons Charles and Ralph, Jr., have developed a prosperous cattle operation from the roots of a former dairying and milk bottling plant

Dotterer received his Bachelor of Science Degree in Agriculture from Penn State in 1949. While a student, he was a member of the livestock judging team.

Now, Dotterer's operation feeds out 1500 head of crossbred steers each year. A brood cow herd of 165 crossbred cows roams the pastures of his 300 acre farm, plus additional rented pastureland, totaling around 150 acres.

Dotterer and sons raise their own feed on 1000 acres of cropland. His production record and methods of growing and harvesting his haylage, corn silage, and high moisture ear corn helped to earn Dotterer the recognition of 1980 Master Farmer.

Dotterer, who is also a member of the Grange, noted he supplements his feed ration for his steers with potato waste from Wise Potato Chip factory in Berwick. He noted the waste is "about like corn silage on a dry matter basis, but because there's so much water with it, it's expensive to transport."

Dotterer, who's been raising beef cattle since the 1930's, accepted the honor and recognition of his fellow cattle producer's with humility Looking on proudly and smiling as he received the award Monday evening was Verna, Dotterer's wife, a home economics school teacher. — SM

Farm bill hearings open to overflow audience

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Senator Jesse Helms, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry, opened hearings on the 1981 Farm Bill to an overflow audience Monday.

Helms said, "American agriculture and all who depend upon it will focus on this legislative package and our actions involving it. For this Committee, there is no greater task in 1981 than our work on this complex and delicate mix that has become known through the years as the Farm Bill."

The hearings are scheduled to continue through March 26, with different topics of concern to agriculture taken up virtually each day.

The hearings will serve as the basis for legislation on basic food and agriculture statutes which expire this year

Helms noted a few changes in the hearings' schedule, which has been announced earlier.

Agriculture Secretary John Block will appear before the Committee at 9 a.m., Wednesday, March 25, at which time he will give a detailed statement on the Administration's farm policy. That hearing will be held in the larger Foreign Relations Committee room, 4221 Dirksen Senate Office Building, instead of 324 Russell Senate Office Building, the Committee hearing room, where all sessions are being held unless otherwise noted.

Also, because of complications results from the absence of accurate budget data for fiscal 1982, the Committee will put off consideration of the budget until Wednesday, March 18, Helms said.

David Stockman, Director of the Office of Management and Budget, is expected to appear before the Committee at 9 a.m. on Tuesday, March 17, Helms said. This has made it necessary to cancel one day of food stamp hearings, Helms said. He said a larger hearing room will be sought for that day, also.

Forestry testimony has been rescheduled to March 19, beginning at 2 p.m., from the earlier date of March 26. Further, the March 12 hearing on general issues has been moved up to 1 p.m. from its original 2 p.m. time, Helms said.

Senator Edward Zorinsky of Nebraska said, "I hope we can look back and say we have written a better farm bill than has ever been written before." He said, "We must preserve and strengthen agriculture, our most vital industry."

Senator Thad Cochran of Mississippi noted that farmers' real income is down 25 percent and said Congress must "create an environment for profit for farmers." Cochran said he felt hearings on the legislation should also be held outside of Washington.

Senator John Melcher of Montana said a separate comprehensive farm bill he has introduced, S. 480 has as one of its main provisions and mechanism for giving "needed assurance there will be some stability in the marketplace" for farm products.

Also appearing at the opening session was Senator Charles E. Grassley of Iowa, not a member of the Committee, who said he favors continuing the present mix of price and income support programs. At the same time, he said government must allow the marketplace to serve as the biggest influence over farm prices

Witnesses heard the first day were:

DeVon R. Woodland, President, National Farmers Organization, accompanied by Charles Frazier, Director, Washington Office, National Farmers Organization;

Edward Andersen, Master, National Grange;

Marvin Meek, Chairman, American Agriculture Movement;

Ellen Haas, Director, Consumer Division, Community Nutrition Institute;

Hilton Bracey, Vice President, Government Affairs, Midcontinent Farmers Association, Columbia, Missouri; and

Edward Bowman, President, National Association of Farmer-Elected Committeeman, Oneida, Illinois.

NCA president-elect speaks to Pa. Cattlemen

STATE COLLEGE — Pennsylvania cattle producers attending the annual banquet of the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association heard first-hand news from the national organization's president-elect on Monday. Sam Washburn, who is known as the Eastern cattleman with the National Cattlemen's Association, spoke to the crowd on current trends in financing and marketing cattle.

"Marketing of cattle is going to change," said the third generation Charolais breeder. "With present fuel prices, it's too costly to move feeders all over the country."

Washburn projected in the next few years, cattle producers will see an increase in electronic stimulation of beef in the slaughter houses to improve meat tenderness, along with an increase in the adaptation of hot boning in meat processing. He also predicted a centralized marketing system with electronic marketing methods allowing cattle to be sold without stress and disease exposure.

Washburn aroused surprised reactions from some cattle producers when he exclaimed "live-selling of cattle is archaic." It's the least competitive way of marketing the product, he said, with no chance for the buyer to accurately evaluate what's being purchased until after it's bought and hanging on the rail.

"Even now, there is a growing trend for sellers to hold title to their cattle longer. They're maintaining title of the cattle on the rail — and some are even holding title of the boxed beef," Washburn stated.

The 1973 Master Farmer and 1978 National Cattle Feeder of the Year told the Pennsylvania producers the National Association is in support of the federal meat grading proposed revisions.

"By modernizing the grading to allow some of the good grades to fall into choice will provide the consumer with leaner beef that has as good of an eating quality as the old choice grade," he remarked.

Concerning beef promotion, Washburn said cattlemen need to encourage consumers to eat, not necessarily more beef, but the same amount at a higher price. This promotion, he said, needs to take place where the people are and not just where the cattle are raised to producers can see their check-off dollars at work.

Washburn noted NCA has been working on developing overseas markets, and has worked against beef imports which lower the price cattle producers receive for their products.

Two items cattle producers need to keep an eye on, said Washburn, are water supplies and capital.

"Interest costs and inflation are ravaging the American public," he warned. "Good management will be the key to survival. Cattle producers will need better records, accurate cash-flow plans, and computer record-keeping on the farm will become common-place as the need for instant financial information becomes essential."

Washburn closed by commenting, "Better government is less government. American cattle producers can do the job of producing more and better beef if they're given the chance to do what they know how to do best."-SM

DHIA adopts new logo

PENN STATE — The Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association adopted a new logo at their latest state board meeting in Penn State.

The new logo features the letters, "DHIA" and is presented against a black drawing the shape of the state.

According to Ray Pruss, DHIA administrative assistant, the new logo is not a major change for DHIA. "We have updated our program in so many areas we felt that a new logo is just another area that needed updating."

"Pennsylvania DHIA's old logo, adopted in 1957, was a smiling cow with a bucket and scales. We feel DHIA has come a long way since that date in 1957 with most cows being tested by metering devices rather than buckets and scales," Pruss says. "Another development has been the institution of the computer processing of records and central testing of milk samples with electronic equipment rather than the Babcock test."

Since its start in 1957, DHIA has become known as a record keeping system by which most management decisions on a dairy farm can be made and measured. DHIA testing can prove a feeding or health problem or even mastitis if a high somatic cell count is indicated.

But perhaps the greatest improvement since its beginning, is the increase of membership from 120,000 to 310,000.

Lancaster extension meets lawmakers

LANCASTER — Lancaster County Extension members met with state legislators at a banquet in Harrisburg as part of the fourth annual State Capital Day.

Max Smith, County Extension Director said that the banquet, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Council of Cooperative Extension Associations, gave committee members the opportunity to visit with legislators and discuss the impact of Extension programs carried out across the state and at the county level.

Lancaster County delegates who took part in the day's activities were. Kenneth Brandt, Representative, Donald Hershey, Extension Board, Doris Thomas, Extension Home Economist; Richard Snyder, Senator, Noah Wenger, Represenative, Clarence Manbeck, Representative, Mark S Hess, Extension Board and Carlton Groff, Extension Board

State Capital Day is an annual event that provides PCCEA the chance to thank legislators for their support The organization is comprised of representatives of county Extension executive committees who serve in an advisory capacity to local Extension programs.

In Lancaster County and across the state, PCCEA functions primarily to provide advice to Penn State so the extension service can develop programs that will improve the quality of life for Pennsylvanians

At the Legislative banquet, Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture, Penrose Hallowell, welcomed the committee members and read a statement sent by Governor Dick Thornburgh

"The Cooperative Extension Service of The Pennsylvania State University provides valuable information and educational programs in the areas of agriculture and natural resources, family life, and 4-H youth and community development," said Hallowell quoting from the Governor's message.

"Last year, over two million citizens were the direct recipients of these services which provide information that can benefit all Pennsylvanians.

"Capital Day provides an opportunity for legislators to become further acquainted with the vital work of the Cooperative Extension Service in the hope that even more citizens will take advantage of its programs during the coming year," Hallowell concluded.

Hallowell thanked the legislators for their enthusiastic support and stressed the important role Extension plays in Pennsylvania agriculture.

The Secretary was introduced by Mary Grim, mistress of ceremonies, and PCCEA representative from Adams County Other speakers on the program included Christy Bail, Washington County state 4-H public speaking winner, Enos Sage, chairman of the Legislative Committee of the PCCEA and Rolland Herring, President of the organization.

The program also included a slide show entirely narrated by PCCEA members.

Berks, Lebanon beef feeders hear market outlook

BY LAUREL SCHAEFFER
Staff Correspondent

MIDWAY — At present, the chances of feeding cattle, or any other livestock, for meat purposes profitably seems bleak. That was the outlook conveyed during the Berks-Lebanon Beef Feeders Meeting, held at the Midway Diner.

Lou Moore, Penn State Extension economist listed eleven "scary thoughts for beef producers" and discussed the present and past agricultural production records concerning beef feeders.

Moore explained how little retail meat prices have risen in the past year as compared to general food prices and disposable income. The latter two climbing about ten percent per year compared to approximately three percent in meat prices.

Per capita beef consumption has also dropped from a high in 1976 of 129 pounds to 106 pounds in 1980.

"We eat all of the meat we produce in this country," Moore explained. "We ration what we produce with price." Illustrating this point, the economist noted consumption of beef in this period dropped 23 percent while beef prices rose 59 percent

Beef producers are also competing with more pork and poultry producers because of the price spread between the different kinds of meat, Moore said. When pork was priced only a few cents less than beef, consumers bought a larger portion of beef But, as the price spread increased to about one dollar, consumers were more apt to substitute more pork in their diets for beef

Mentioning the cattle cycle, Moore stated under normal conditions, beef producers should be making a profit as cattle numbers are beginning to expand Last year numbers increased 1 percent to 111 million head. This year cattle numbers are expected to increase

Louis Moore

Lester Burdette

3 percent to 115 million head This expansion has not happened however, Moore stated, mainly because the price of grain has remained high and other production costs also have risen dramatically.

In looking at the prospects for feeding cattle profitably, Moore listed the following trends· the number of cattle on feed is dropping; the feeder supply is increasing; competitive meat production is dropping; production costs are rising, and prices are rising Whether these factors could raise the price of fat cattle enough to be profitable, was not predicted by Moore, but he said it didn't look good

Les Burdette, Penn State Extension beef specialist, discussed alternative feeds and least cost rations for fattening cattle.

The beef specialist explained the average Pennsylvania beef producer is also a farmer who doesn't always think about least cost rations as much as the large Midwest feedlot operators do. Feedlot operators usually don't keep large feed inventories on hand and can use computers to calculate which rations are cheapest for them to feed, he observed

Least cost rations provide the lowest total cost per unit of gain, Burdette explained. They should also meet the nutrient needs of the animal and keep them healthy.

The beef specialist gave comparative feeding value for several alternative feeds On a weight basis barley has 95 percent of the feeding value of corn. Oats have 65 percent of corn's feeding value but is always over priced for fattening cattle, Burdette remarked. Midbloom alfalfa has 32 percent of corn's feeding value, wheat has 100 percent, and molasses has 70 percent

Burdette recommended selling raw harvested soybeans and buying supplement rather than feeding the beans

He also advised coarsely ground feed, noting there is a larger problem with feed intake in finely ground grain because of dust, etc Even though farmers don't want to see corn kernels in cattle manure, it doesn't mean finely ground corn isn't there too, he commented

Burdette remarked how the feed additive Rumensin increases feed efficiency about ten percent by decreasing feed intake of cattle without reducing weight gains. This growth stimulator, marketed by Lanco, is a methane inhibitor producing a more desirable fermentation in the rumen of a steer.

He recommended it's use in fattening cattle over 500 pounds and cautioned beef feeders not to be alarmed if they notice their cattle reduced their feed intake 50 percent the first day

"It's an unpalatible product and it takes cattle awhile to adjust to it," he explained.

Burdette also advised beef feeders not to start cattle on Rumensin if they are closer then 90 days to market

Implants, antibiotics, vitamins, and minerals were recommended by the beef specialist 'On an average, most Pennsylvania farmers are deficient in at least one of these items," he noted

Discussing alternate feeds, Burdette listed several energy sources which can be utilized such as potatoes, apples, brewer's grains; bakery wastes, candy, grain dust, damaged grains, fat and wood fines, which are wood fibers so short they can't be used for paper manufacturing.

The beef specialist recommended limiting the fat content of a ration to four percent and told the beef feeders present that potato chips usually contain between 30 and 35 percent fat

Other recommendations included. limiting the energy by-products to between 20 and 40 percent of a ration, mixing them well with other ration ingredients; being careful of the "keeping qualities" of the ingredients; limiting the fat as noted above; and mixing dusty materials with moist feeds

Burdette cautioned the feeders that cattle fed high bulk and high moisture products may require a drying out period near the end of their feeding period of about 30 days so they lose their pot bellies, and look more appealing to cattle buyers

The beef specialist discussed protein alternatives and recommended the use of urea or other non-protein-nitrogen products for cattle over 600 pounds He told the area beef producers that urea added to corn silage will increase the bunk life of the silage by four or five hours in summer. If added to grain, it should be mixed well, he added. Other nitrogen sources cited were. anhydrous ammonia; brewer's and distiller's grains; milk by-products; and poultry litter.

Addressing the area beef producers were Kenny Rarick and Gerald Bowman, beef feeders using alternative feed ingredients.

Rarick, of Reading, is feeding apple pumice to replacement heifers supplemented with five pounds of hay and five pounds of grain per day He noted he has been pleased with the cattle performance and recorded an average of 1.78 pounds of gain per day.

It was noted other feeders using apple pumice found it hard on equipment, and storagability was very poor.

Burdette commented apple pumice has a TDN value of about 65 percent. If costs are below twenty dollars per ton, including hauling, it would have a place as a feed alternative, he said But costs above twenty dollars would make silage a better choice. Burdette warned apple pumice supplemented with NPN should not be fed to brood cows because ab-

When your new home is five years old, what fuel will be available to heat it?

Conventional heating systems tie you to a single fuel In these times of uncertain price and supply, that's a risky situation

HS Tarm Type OT boiler for hot-water central heating is different. It burns wood, coal, oil, or gas, and can heat with electricity as well. When you're not burning solid fuel, automatic controls switch to the backup fuel of your choice.

Red meat production drops

HARRISBURG — Commercial red meat production in Pennsylvania during January totaled 87 3 million pounds, down one percent from January 1980

Cattle slaughter at 65,200 head was up five percent, while calf slaughter at 22,000 head was down nine percent from last year

Hog slaughter at 278,200 head was down eight percent from a year ago

The number of sheep and lambs slaughtered totaled 13,400, up six percent from January 1980

Nationally, commercial red meat production during January totaled 3 42 billion pounds, an increase of one percent from January 1980 Beef production at 1.94 million pounds was up three percent while veal production at 35 million pounds was up six percent

Pork production totaled 1 43 billion pounds, down two percent from January 1980

Lambs and mutton production increased 11 percent to 30 million pounds

These four young Pennsylvania Angus exhibitors will represent their home state at the 1981 National Angus Showmanship Contest next July in Nashville, Tennessee. They are, left to right: Bill Wiley of Nottingham and Kaye Sweigard of Halifax, alternates; and Tim Kinsley of York and Christine Shive of Seven Valleys, representatives.

Bowman discussed the use of poultry litter in feed rations on his operation of 2000 broilers and 400 steers per year. He and his partners roast the poultry manure, removing about 25 percent of the moisture, and making it more palitable and easier to handle. They have been using it as a protein supplement for three years and have been very pleased with their results, he stated. The roasted manure contains between 27 and 37 percent crude protein, usually averaging 30 to 31 percent.

Burdette advised using poultry manure in feeding brood cows and grazing cattle but not heavyweight cattle, recommending the use of urea instead. Using urea in fattening cattle leaves more room in the rumen for other feed such as corn, Burdette said, and NPN sources of protein are cheap for fattening cattle "You want higher energy feeds in heavyweight cattle," he concluded.

Penn State hosts full house

BY SHEILA MILLER

UNIIVERSITY PARK — Pa dairy and livestock producers packed the auditorium of the J Orvis Keller Building on the Penn State campus Monday for the 1981 Dairy and Livestock Day.

Welcomed by College of Agriculture Dean J M. Beattie, the producers began a full day of management and marketing seminars.

Kicking off the session was Robert H. Rumler, executive chairman of the Holstein Association of America, headquartered in Brattleboro, Vermont.

Rumler advised the producers to use caution in their operations, but added young farmers should not be overly concerned about the economic future of entering the animal industry

"The livestock industry has always offered a great degree of stability," he stated, but warned producers to be careful about over-extending their capital investments. "Each producer must work toward developing an operation with the highest efficiency possible with the least financial investment."

Concerning the recent doom and gloom forecasts for the agricultural future, Rumler commented these types of headlines serve no good purpose.

"I feel there is reason for optimism," he said, "The American public has been well fed at low cost over the years "

Rumler added financial institutions' hesitant attitudes toward investing in the agricultural industry' are a reflection of areas where banks have over-extended credit lines to farmers. These revenue sources, he said, are responsible, especially in the dairy industry, for contributing to surplus milk production.

"The financial community has encouraged more dairy operations to start up, adding more cows and milk to the market. Financial institutions have to be responsible in directing their clients into profitable enterprises This over-extension of credit has led to increased interest and debt," he reflected

Commenting on the future of foreign exports of breeding stock, Rumler called on his experiences in the Holstein Association and said the U.S. has the highest level and largest genetic pool for Holstein cattle than any other place in the world He added as long as the U.S. maintains a level of superiority in the genetic base of cattle, there will continue to be a demand for breeding stock in foreign markets

He noted, however, the market level for the live animals has been somewhat depressed during the last few years. He cited reasons for this market trend which included the fact the domestic market was quite good, the rise in transportation costs, the conservative work economy, and import regulations which tended to be overly restrictive

Rumler spoke about the current popularity of embryo transferring and noted "ET is moving out of the novelty stage and is rapidly seeking its place as a gentic tool in all breeds of cattle."

The Holstein executive closed by expressing his concern with recent 'food fadism".

"The American public hears propaganda ranging from don't eat meat and eggs to don't drink whole milk. The animal industries, however, are producing the greatest percentage of nutrients for the human diet

"People now-a-days hear anti-propaganda which lists almost everything as being carcinogenic These consumer groups will cry wolf once too often.

"What the public needs to practice is common sense eating habits — don't over eat and eat well-balanced meals "

Robert O Martin, director of Farm Systems Research and Development at Agway's Syracuse, N Y office spoke to the producers on energy.

"There is no energy shortage," he said, "but we're facing an energy crisis brought on ourselves by our thirst for a standard of living created by cheap fuel "

He cited energy sources ' all around us" such as water, coal, uranium, wind, wood, methane, solar, and gasohol, as potential energy sources.

Martin discussed research and development done by Agway in the handling of manure and in construction of energy-efficient homes and buildings.

Professor of Dairy Science Larry D Muller spoke to dairy producers on the "hottest topic in the dairy industry' — feeding buffers to dairy cows

"There are many questions on feeding buffers we don't have answered," he stated, ' Buffers have been handled with a shotgun approach on the farm — give them a shot and see what happens."

Muller cited the various buffers available, which include sodium bicarbonate, magnesium oxide and magnesium carbonate, bentonite, cement dust, and calcium carbonate and calcium oxide These buffers, he said, work either in the rumen or small intestine, affecting fermentation and fluid turnover to correct acidosis.

What brings on the acid condition in the digestive tract? According to Muller there are seveal things.

— increased use of concentrates in feeding rations,

— high moisture grains which add to the acid load;

— increased amounts of ensiled forages in operations striving for increased labor efficiency through mechanical labor;

— reduced particle size of feed;

— acid water; and

— early lactation ration adaptation.

All of these items listed result in less chewing, less salivation, and less rumination, he pointed out, resulting in decreased natural buffers.

Muller showed on a graph how ascetic acid in the rumen decreases in higher grain rations Propionic acid, in turn increases, and results in a lower milk test This can occur when the ration consists of 60 percent ensiled forage and 40 percent grain, he noted.

When the rumen pH drops to 6.2 or lower, Muller stressed there can be problems. A natural drop in pH occurs four hours after feeding, he said. With buffers added to the ration, this drop in pH is reduced

Signs that a cow might be suffering from acidosis include going off feed, less cud chewing, loose stools, reduced fecal pH, undigested grain in feces; and reduced milk fat.

Muller emphasized a cow's milk test will not be brought back to normal with the addition of buffers to the ration, but it will be improved. Palatability problems related to buffers in the ration will lower the dry matter intake and will result in lower milk production.

The dairy scientist noted there is a major problem in prepartum rations for dry cows and the rapid change over to a high grain diet after calving. This problem, which can aggrevate acidosis, is not as much a problem in stanchion operations where cows are fed on an individual basis as in operations using group feeding.

The benefits of feeding buffers, he concluded, will be higher milk test, greater feed intake, and better starch utilization which may trigger more milk production

Research compares Suffolk, Finnsheep productivity

UNIVERSITY PARK — Is it possible to get too much of a good thing? According to T.S. Katsigianis, assistant professor of animal science at the University of Kentucky, the answer is "yes".

Katsigianis spoke to sheep producers during the 1981 Dairy and Livestock Day held at Penn State on Monday. He discussed current research which compared Suffolk and Finnsheep-cross ewes in lamb and wool production.

The study looked at Suffolk, which produce the epitome of growth and carcass conformation in lambs, said the researcher, and Finnsheep which demonstrate early sexual development and prolificacy

A major factor in the study involved artificial rearing of lambs According to Katsigianis, ewes were allowed to raise only two lambs, with any extra lambs being taken from the ewe within 24 hours of birth.

' The longer a lamb nurses its natural mother, the more it will resist the artificial system, ' he explained

In the artificial rearing, the lambs were fed a commercial lamb milk replacer with 30 percent fat. They were fed from a multiple-nipple nursing bucket, with two lambs per nipple. Cold milk was available to the lambs at all times, with tepid milk only given the first few days The lambs were then weaned at 30 days and put on feed This 30 day weaning was due to the expense of the milk replacer, Katsigianis said.

The study revealed both breeds had 90-100 percent fertility rates with both producing lambs as yearlings However, the number of lambs varied, with Finnsheep-cross ewes producing two lambs as yearlings and Suffolks only producing singles. This prolificacy difference carried through in the second and third lambing season with Finns having three or more lambs and Suffolks having two lambs

Despite the fact the Suffolks had fewer lambs, the total weights of the lambs were comparable, noted the researcher. The single Suffolk cross lamb weighed 12.6 pounds, while the two Finnsheep-cross lambs totaled 12.6 pounds. The larger Suffolk-cross lambs required lambing assistance for the yearling ewes, Katsigianis said.

In wool production, the Suffolk-crosses sheared slightly heavier fleeces, however there was no difference in quality, the researcher noted.

The study revealed Suffolk-cross ewes produced lambs that had a slight edge on the Finnsheep-cross weaned on the ewe, but the Finns,

Is swine A.I. for you?

UNIVERSITY PARK — Thinking about using artifical insemination in your breeding swine operation? V G. Pursel of USDA's swine research station in Beltsville, Md., recommends producers weight the pros and cons of A.I in swine before plunging in whole hog

Some advantages of A I., noted Pursel during the Dairy and Livestock Day held on the Penn State campus Monday, are.

— greater use of superior boars,

— introducing new breeding lines with less disease risk (most diseases spread through nose-to-nose contact, not through semen,

— large boars can be used to breed gilts, and — a large number of sows can be bred in a short time to farrow at the same time.

Pursel also pointed out, in the swine industry, A.I. has to be a do-it-yourself task in order to keep on-farm traffic to a minimum. And heat checking sows and gilts is a time-consuming job

Another drawback to A.I. in swine is the lower fertility rate and smaller litter size that's produced as compared to natural servicing. Comparable rates and numbers are possible, said the researcher, but only under perfect conditions

One of the major steps in A.I is collecting and storing semen. Pursel explained boars are taught to mount "dummy" sows and are collected, producing 250 c.c. of ejaculate in 5 minutes (compared to a bull's 5-8 c c)

The semen is then dividied into the number of desired doses and placed in 1-2 ounce screw-top bottles These bottles are then filled with an extender, such as BL1 (developed at Beltsville) or IVT

Other types of extenders include skim milk, which stores semen for up to 8 hours, and egg-yolk glucose which keeps the semen for a day after collection

Pursel explained the bottles of semen and extender are then placed in a Styrofoam box and stored at 58-64 degrees Farenheit until the gilts and sows are to be bred.

Advantages of being able to store semen for longer periods of time, and even freezing semen, include.

— samples of the semen could be tested for pathogenic organisms;

— semen storage could be limited to disease-free, fertility-tested boars, and

— semen of good quality" could be used only

Pursel confessed the technique of freezing swine semen has not been perfected A I with frozen semen results in a still smaller litter size and a lower pregnancy rate

The researcher recommended swine breeders consider using frozen semen of top boars only on their best females Then, future breeding boars could be selected from this smaller but better number of offspring

As in the cattle industry, Pursel noted the development of estrus and ovulation control is being studied as a tool to improve on A I techniques However, he concluded so far there has been little difference in fertility and litter size between synchronized and non-synchronized animals bred naturally. A larger litter size only has been realized when breeding with frozen semen -SM having more lambs, produced more pounds of lamb. Over three years, the Finnsheep produced 261 pounds of lamb where the Suffolks had 219 pounds.

Producers will have to assess their facilities and their labor when choosing a breed that produces litters rather than twins, Katsigianis stressed

He noted artificially reared lambs always weighed 10 pounds lighter than their siblings reared on the ewe, and they took 172 days to reach slaughter weight as compared to 150 days for a twin and 137 days for a single The artificial rearing, he pointed out, did not affect carcass traits

In the final slaughter analysis, the Finnsheep-cross lambs took longer to reach slaughter weight and had more kidney fat and a slightly smaller rib eye than the Suffolk-cross lambs -SM

20 cows die from dairy disease

MONTROSE — Pennsylvania dairymen are warned to be on the lookout for revival of an old disease that can bring on pneumonia, systemic infections, abortions and even infertility if not caught in time.

The name of the disease is haemophilus somnus

Dr. Lawrence J. Hutchinson, Penn State extension veterinarian, says H. somnus is not yet widespread in the state, but it is on the increase, usually appearing as pneumonia in calves and heifers. As many as two herd infections have been reported in a single week.

Hank Swartz, who operates Loudon Hill Farms, Susquehanna County, says the disease hit 80 head of his cattle recently. Twenty died before vaccination brought the outbreak under control.

Antibiotic treatment has been "fairly successful" if treatment is started early in the course of the disease, Dr. Hutchinson says. However, he recommends vaccination for herds in which the disease has been diagnosed.

One of the problems with H. somnus is that its symptoms can be mistaken for other, more widely-known diseases unless special culture techniques are used to isolate it.

Such techniques are available at state labs, as well as labs at Penn State and the University of Pennsylvania, Dr. Hutchingon says.

LANCASTER COUNTY DAIRYMEN:

IT'S A FACT: chances are better than 9 out of 10 that your herd of slick, high-producing cows is infected with roundworms. Here are five more facts you should know about worms, the production losses they can cause, and how to help stop them with TBZ, the prefreshening cattle wormer.

FACT 1—Most wormy cows "look healthy" because they eat enough to feed the worms AND to keep themselves looking good. University, Extension and other scientists have proved over 90 percent of all cattle are wormy, even in cold, northern climates

FACT 2—Worms can cut production, even in top herds, by as much as 400 to 500 pounds per head per lactation...shown in trials in Wisconsin, Vermont and other dairy states.

FACT 3—One out of four dairymen now worm routinely, and thousands more are beginning every year.

FACT 4—Worming each cow with TBZ before she calves lets her begin lactation clean, and helps make peak production possible all through lactation.

FACT 5—TBZ is a one-dose, one-time worming treatment available in paste, bolus, suspension and pellet forms. At the stanchion or in the calving pen, TBZ makes worming each cow as she freshens simple, easy, quick. See your Dealer, Feed Supplier or Veterinarian today.

March 19 is Ag Day

HARRISBURG — Agricultural people from across the Commonwealth are preparing to tell the story of Pennsylvania agriculture in an effort to spread a nationwide awareness of the importance of our industry to the daily livelihood of all Americans

Thursday, March 19, has been proclaimed as National Agriculture Day, as a result of Resolution 560 passed by Congress last fall President Ronald Reagan will officially proclaim the national celebration in ceremonies in Washington this month

Governor Dick Thornburgh has signed a proclamation of March 19 as Agriculture Day in Pennsylvania Pennsylvania will play a leading role in the national effort to stress the importance of agriculture

Many state farm and agriculture related organizations have planned activities for March 19, ranging from mail and supermarket demonstrations to luncheons, talk shows and other media events

The Agriculture Department will be conducting a series of media information releases, and will have a display on Pennsylvania agriculture in the rotunda of the Capitol Building in Harrisburg

Agriculture is the heartbeat of our economy," State Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell said 'It's essential that all Pennsylvanians, whether farmer, businessman or consumer, understand how directly their future is linked to a strong, prosperous agricultural industry "

Communicating this idea is the purpose behind National Agriculture Day Volunteers from all phases of the agricultural production, processing and distribution systems are joining in all 50 states to tell the story of agriculture with a united voice

In line with this idea, the Agriculture Department is preparing a packet of information on Pennsylvania agriculture which will be distributed to the editors and news directors of all news media outlets in Pennsylvania

"Those of us in the agricultural community have known all along that Pennsylvania agriculture is truly growing better," Hallowell said 'But we've got to also get that message to the state's 11.8 million consumers Hopefully, Agriculture Day will mark a good start in our efforts "

Bucks NFO members to meet

PLUMSTEADVILLE — The Berks County Unit of the National Farmers Organization will hold their annual dinner on Saturday, March 21, 1981 at 7 p.m. at the Plumsteadville Fire House, Plumsteadville, Pa

The speaker will be H Kenton Bailey, a farmer from Farmington, Maine

Tickets for the family-style beef dinner are $6 each, and may be purchased from County President, Bill Garges 215/348-5514, Raymond Gross 215/766-8785, or Web Singer 215/346-7749 The public is invited

Speaker H. Kenton Bailey was born in 1933, in Farmington, Maine He is married and the father of two girls and two boys

Bailey operates a 600 acre dairy farm. He is the 7th generation on the same family farm

H. Kenton Bailey

Bailey went to work building NFO in March of 1967 He conducted the first meeting held in New England. He was the first County President in New England, and also served as State President He was elected to the National Board in 1971 and served in that capacity for five years

He has worked as Regional Supervisor, and helped build milk, meat, potato, blueberry, broiler, pulp and grain programs in the New England States

Egg output slips slightly

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania egg production in January 1981 totaled 375 million, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service The January production was one percent below the 378 million eggs produced in January 1980

The January average of 16 8 million layers was the same as a year ago Egg production per 100 layers was 2230 compared with 2257 in January 1980

The nation's laying flocks produced 5 99 billion eggs during January 1981, one percent less than the 6 05 billion produced a year ago

The number of layers for January averaged 292 million compared with 295 million a year earlier Egg production per 100 layers during the month was 2052 compared with 2050 a year ago

Why we need an ag secretary

Pennsylvania Governor Dick Thornburgh, left, demonstrated Tuesday why he chose Penrose Hallowell as Secretary of Agriculture. Here Hallowell serves as a desk as the Governor signs autographs on an Adams County dairy farm. Hallowell, it should be noted, bends over backwards for his boss

Schuylkill dairy producers have their day

BY SHEILA MILLER

CRESSONA — Over 80 Schuylkill County dairy producers and commercial exhibitors attended the sixth Dairy Day, held here at the Goodwill Fire Hall on Wednesday.

Providing the participants with management tips for their operations were Penn State's Steve Spencer and Michael O'Connor

O'Connor advised the group there are four ways to improve reproductive efficiency on the farm

—improved heat detection, checking cows and heifers before 6 a.m. and after 6 p.m.;

—breeding back at 50 days after freshening as long as there are no physiological problems;

—increasing conception rates by timing breeding at the end of standing heat and by careful handling of semen; and

—following a better herd health program with a veterinary clinic, with rectal examinations for reproduction problems, pregnancy checking after 35-50 days after breeding.

O'Connor also discussed the advantages of estrus synchronization in the dairy breeding program. He stated this tool allows dairy producers to breed heifers to superior A.I. sires, reduces the time spent in heat detection, insures heifers are bred to calve at 24 months, and is an overall labor saving procedure.

The Penn State dairy scientist recommended heifers be palpated at 15-18 months to determine whether they are mature reproductively, that they have no anatomical abnormalities and that they are cycling so that semen and prostaglandin aren't wasted on heifers that won't conceive.

O'Connor also recommended synchronized heifers and cows be bred by observing standing heat, rather than the 80 hour interval, popularly suggested, after the second prostaglandin shot (given at 11 day spacings).

"For successful estrus synchronization, sound management and planning is essential," he stated. "Decide when you want the calves and work backwards. And keep in mind you have to understand the mechanics of synchronization along with having the physical facilities to carry it out."

O'Connor brought the producers up-to-date on the popular, new tool of embryo transferring. He told the group there are 20,000 ET calves on the ground today.

The dairy scientist stressed ET should be used only with valuable cows. ET allows some valuable animals which are aged, injured, or diseased to produced calves they otherwise could not carry.

One of the reasons why O'Connor emphasized the importance of valuable animals only being used in ET is the cost of the procedure — each successful pregnancy costs around $2000. And, the calves have to be the type that can be marketed two years down the road

Looking into the future of ET, O'Connor predicted it will soon be possible to accurately sex embryos in order to maintain a favorable ratio of heifers and bulls He also projected frozen embryos are on the horizon, which will reduce the numbers of recipient animals needed when superovulating cows.

O'Connor pointed out the average ET calves have ratings for dam's productivity, dam's cow index, and sire's predicted difference of 19,846, 508, and +1063 respectively. But, he expressed some alarm for the range on these ratings which were 9618 to 35,574; -928 to 1753; and -1676 to 2064, respectively.

Penn State's Steve Spencer spoke to the group on the mechanics of milking. He pointed out there is little mastitis caused by machine problems which is the popular blame.

He advised the group to check for mechanical problems such as pump capacity, and suggested comparing vacuum regulators against weighted level regulators and the new, more effective electric ones. He noted the vacuum line size should be adjusted to the number of milking units.

Spencer reviewed some of the latest equipment for the dairy operation, some on the market and some on the horizon.

He caused a stir among D.H.I. supervisors when he cited a new milk meter developed in Denmark which can measure the pounds of milk and sample it too, while reading the cow's identification number from an ankle strap equipped with a tuning fork. He told the supervisors they wouldn t be obsolete just yet since the unit costs $1500 a meter.

Spencer advised the producers to evaluate the advantages of the new equipment and see how it might fit into their own operations But he cautioned them to make their decisions carefully, being mindful of cash flows and methods of investment

J. Allan Shoener, Schuylkill Co. Agent, hosted Penn State's Steve Spencer, center, and Michael O'Conner, right, at Wednesday's Dairy Day.

Corn pest

Through the PL 480 program, USDA researchers also confirmed the pest in Pakistan and Egypt

Kent County Agent W. James Milliken said yield reduction on the local farm may not be due to the nematode but rather to other growing season factors.

Next to nothing is known about the pest's life cycle. Little research work has been done on it.

The cyst, which contains the eggs and larvae, is brown, about one milimeter in lenght, and 500 microns in diameter.

It is related to the soybean cyst nematode.

Plant protection officials say they have absolutely no idea how the pest got to the Kent County farm. But USDA's A M. Golden, a nematode expert, speculates it must have been in the soil for as long as five to 10 years for it to build to its current numbers.

"We know almost nothing about Heterodera zeae," Golden admits.

The pest, like other nematodes, can be spread by machinery, animals, or humans. Custom fertilizer applications to the field also may have spread the cyst on machinery.

It takes a number of years for the cyst to multiply to the point where it shows up in soil assays. It takes a similar length of time again for it to build a population large enough to do damage

Because of the long time factor involved, the researchers said they have to presume the nematode has long since moved beyond the boundaries of the original farm For that reason a fumigation or sterilization program of that farm's fields probably will be impractical.

USDA officials are working on the assumption the corn cyst nematode eventually will cause damage to U S. corn yields, although the India studies which showed yield damage were not done with U S. hybrids

"We kind of wish there won't be much publicity on this," one agriculture official said, adding there was no reason to start a panic

USDA also said it is concerned that all state and international ag pest control officials be informed of the confirmation of the corn cyst nematode before any published reports would appear before farmers or the public.

APHIS said it is moving so fast they don't have the imput from other groups which will be needed to make decisions on how to handle the situation

In coming weeks, USDA and APHIS officials will be working with members of the Maryland Department of Agriculture, the University of Maryland, the county extension service, and other agencies in an attempt to define further the problem, continue efforts to find out how widespread the pest may be, and to develop procedures to combat any damage corn cyst nematode may do to Maryland's or the nation's corn crop.

Maryland Department of Agriculture's Plant Protection Section said it plans to set up a survey of farms in the area of the original discovery, working out from that one data point.

Maryland officials say there is little chance the pest "escaped" from the nematode lab near Middletown since that lab works mostly with potato nematodes, especially Golden nematode.

John Lightfield, an official at APHIS, said the various groups will be gathering information for some time before any firm conclusions or recommendations can be made on extent or control of the pest

Goat owners to hear veterinarian

LANCASTER — Dairy goat owners are invited to the next regular meeting of the Dutch Country Dairy Goat Club, to be held at 7 p m. Friday, March 13 at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center

Dr Richard Stoneback, Veterinarian and goat breeder from Oxford, will be present to discuss care of the kidding doe and the newborn kid, mastitis, parasites and other health concerns

The Amyr goat herd has won Dr Stoneback much recognition in the show ring and in the breeding circles nationally and locally As a practicing veterinarian and goat owner, Dr. Stoneback has much experience to share from his many years working with and treating goats.

The March 13 meeting is free, and is open to the public For more information, call Pat Kauffman (717-284-4340) or the Lancaster County Agricultural Extension Service (717-394-6851) cows and working toward improved milking longevity.

Remember, the first lactation only pays the bill for bringing her to milking age, Shirk said.

She doesn't start paying her way until the second lactation.

To help reduce expenses, the agent suggested tighter culling of non-milkers.

Every two or three heifers you don't need only replace a producing milker, he said.

It might be time to consider reducing the heifer herd.

It might be better to reduce in size and spend more time with fewer cows rather than getting bigger to spend less time with the cows.

A panel of four speakers took a look at various aspects of an economic outlook for this year.

H. Louis Moore, Penn State ag economist, said food prices will likely jump 15 percent in 1981 and more complaints will be heard from consumers.

He also took a look at the Reagan Administration's budget-cutting program to fight inflation.

'I'm not too optimistic about reducing inflation,' he said.

'There's nothing more inflationary than defense spending because it's money down a rathole.'

All in all, he expected that 1981 might be a little better than the past year but nothing to cheer about.

David Poorbaugh, of Poorbaugh Grains, took a look at the feed situation.

He said that corn supplies will depend on the coming season's crop and soybean stocks are quite high due to reduced world demand.

'I think we're finally coming to the point where world demand for grains is going to start outstripping supply,' Poorbaugh said.

'Then, you in agriculture are going to be on the right side of the markets.'

He also took a look at price.

'If there is a medium summer with medium rain in the Great Plains, corn prices shouldn't be too much higher.'

But 'if there is weather trouble, there will be $5 corn with no difficulty at all,' he said.

He doesn't anticipate much fluctuation in soybean meal prices because of the reduced world demand and good crop reports from foreign growers.

Tom Jurchak, Lackawana County agent, took a look at the milk price situation.

It's his opinion that federal efforts won't come in time to eliminate the schedule April 1 pricing adjustment. He further predicted that the Senate bill for further trimming of milk supports will not pass.

'Milk prices for 1981 should be about eight percent higher than 1980,' he said.

But costs of production are expected to increase about 11 to 12 percent.

Robert Bucher, of Commonwealth National Bank, began his comments by stating he thought the story in last Saturday's Lancaster Farming citing gloom and doom was a 'bit overdone.'

He said that net income will be down and described it as 'taking the cream off the top.'

'It will be a time to tighten the belt,' he said.

'It's a time to cut spending and make certain that major purchases are really needed.'

He said that lenders will be looking toward much better management. He expects that the prime rate will average around 15 percent for this year and ag borrowing rates will be about one percent less.

John Shenk, Penn State agronomist, demonstrated his infra-red forage analysis program, which provides fast forage testing and ration programming.

He described the Dodge van containing the analysis equipment as a 'traveling medicine show.' Shenk has been touring the state giving demonstrations to drum up interest in the system.

'If anything is needed in this county,' he said, 'it's a good hay marketing program.'

'With 400 or so loads of hay sold each week, the cost of mistakes runs about $1 million a year.'

A county like this needs several of them.

But it's not going to be until people like you want it.'

TITUS S. KURTZ, Elverson, PA

Titus' dairy herd is housed in a newly-built freestall barn. The barn is equipped with an automated manure-handling system including a continuous alley cleaner, cross-gutter cleaner and piston ram pump. Design of the barn was done with labor-efficiency in mind. All dairy manure and waste water from the milkhouse and parlor is stored in the 4223 SLURRYSTORE® . Cows are milked in a parlor. The old tie-stall barn was gutted and is presently being used for dry cows and heifers. Titus is feeding a Total Ration of HARVESTORE® -processed High Moisture Ground Ear Corn with Oats and Haylage Plus Corn Silage along with 38% Supplement. Top cows receive additional 16% Feed by means of a DeLaval Challenger Feeder. His herd, which is half first-calf heifers, has an average of over 15,500 lbs. milk and tests at 3.8% B.F.!

JACOB L. STOLTZFUS, Narvon, PA

The Stoltzfus' 57-cow Holstein herd is housed in a tie-stall barn. The herd is on an all-Haylage forage program and High Moisture Shelled Corn with 38% Supplement. As soon as calves are off milk replacer, they are fed HARVESTORE Haylage, High Moisture Shelled Corn and some 16% Feed. Before switching to HARVESTORE-processed feeds, Jake's herd averaged 11,000 lbs. milk. In February, 1981, the herd averaged 16,142 lbs. milk with 643 lbs. B.F.!

Holstein award winners lead busy lives

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

WHITE HAVEN — The Pennsylvania Holstein Association wrapped up a successful 69th annual convention last week with recognition of the accomplishments of four outstanding members

Clark Bowen and Harry Firth were named to the prestigious Pennsylvania Holstein Hall of Fame, while Debra Stump and Alan Hostetter were honored as 1981 distinguished junior members during an awards breakfast held in the elegant ballroom of the Pocono Hershey Resort

Clark Bowen, Wellsboro R3, is a Tioga County native, born in 1906 on the farm next door to the family s noted Wildmoor registered Holstein farm

"I was almost born in a stable," Bowen quipped as he remembered a boyhood of helping with the family's milking herd.

Registered Holsteins since 1942," reads the Wildmoore advertisement in the convention's annual publication Those 1942 purebreds, five of them, were the foundation of the first Bowen milking herd of 11 cows And every one of these five registry certificates traced to Clark Bowen's first calf, given to him by his parents when he was 12

From a 1929 start, the Bowen operation has today grown to encompass some 600 sprawling acres over four farms

Bowen is in partnership with his son Neil, and their 50-plus Holsteins maintain a current rolling herd average of over 17,500 lbs of milk and 660 of fat Seven Excellent cows and 23 Very Goods help boost the herd's B A A to over 105

Son, Glenn and his family also operate a registered Holstein herd, Bowen-Vale Holsteins, on an adjoining farm

Registered Holstein enthusiasm continues strong as a Bowen family tradition Bowen began showing his black and whites in 1930, and the family still participates in some showring activity He's served the local and state Holsteins in a variety of Distinguished junior member awards are presented by John Cope, president of the State Holstein Association, to Alan Hostetter and Debra Stump. They will compete for national honors, which will be announced at the June convention in Baltimore.

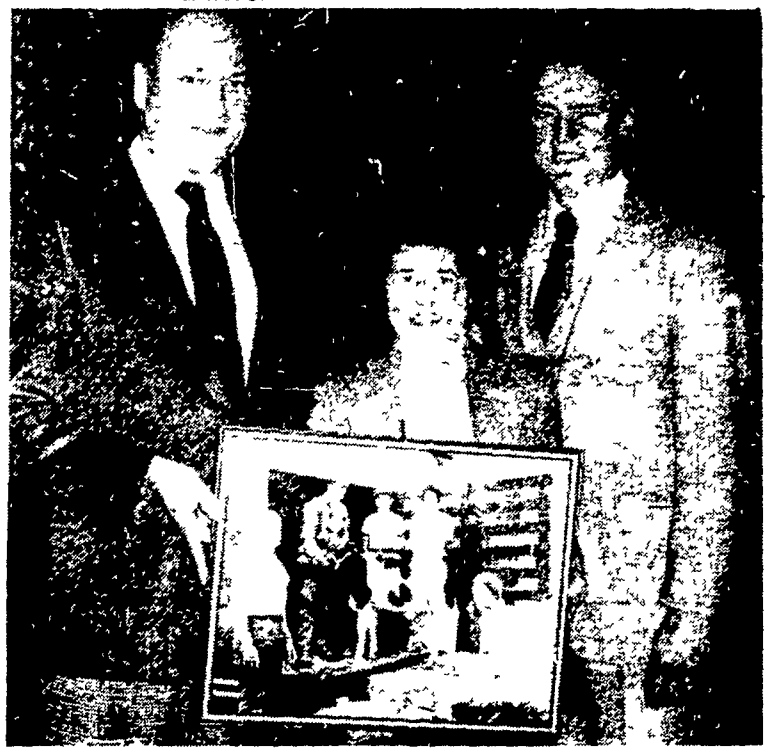
Honors as members of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association's Hall of Fame are conferred on Mr. and Mrs. Clark Bowen, left, and Mr. and Mrs Harry Firth. The portraits will hang in the Hall of Fame gallery at the association offices at State College.



Special award is given to Don and Gerry Seipt by Bill Nichol, executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association. One of their Keystone Farms' bred sires has received prestigious honors in the Netherlands capacities, especially helping to select sales consignments.

Son, Neil, has held the office of state association president and granddaughter, Diane is in an administrative assistant at the Holstein office in State College. The Bowen have five grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

A former director of NEBA, Bowen was chairman of the sire committee of the breeding cooperative for many years. He's a Grange member, Mason, active in the church and a 4-H leader who's helped a great many dairy members get a start with a heifer project.

"I've seen lots of changes in farming since the way we did everything by hand when we started," Bowen reminisced. "Now, everything is mechanized I'd never want to go back to farming that way, but I would like to see family life change back more to what it was then."

While Bowen allowed that he hoped he accomplish just a few things over the past 50 years of dairying, he added that, "Friends are still the most important thing, far more important than money."

"Harry Firth has done an awful lot for several generations of young people," was part of the biographical tribute shared by chairman Dave Slusser as he introduced the second Holstein Hall of Fame award recipient.

Firth, Spartansburg R2, is best known across Pennsylvania as a familiar face behind the steering wheel of a truckload of cattle headed to or from a sale or show.

At almost 80, he's "still truckin"

and Harry's loyal customers are urging him to go ahead and buy that new cattle truck he dreams about from time to time

Firth also entered the dairy industry in 1929, "the year everything went", as he vividly puts it Money was tight; and the Firth's milked four times a day to make ends meet, while lumbering with horses in between milkings to scratch together a couple more dollars toward farm bills.

The family's first registered Holsteins, a cow and two heifers, came into Firth's father's herd in 1913.

"One of those old cows kept producing until she finally died at age 18," he remembers 'In fact, the association wouldn't register her last calf, they wouldn't believe a cow that old could still have a calf."

In 1934, Firth purchased his Firtholm Farms in Crawford County He still raises the heifers on the 340-acre operation, but has turned the dairying over to his son and grandson

A former state director and executive committeeman for the Holstein association, Firth is lauded for his untiring efforts on behalf of dairy youth Friends and fans are quick to share tales of how Harry would round up cattle and truck them several hours to Harrisburg for youth dairy shows

Several years ago, Firth was honored at another Holstein convention, hosted in his Northwest region, by appreciative breeders who gifted him with a toy truck Harry s wife, Lois, says that the truck is still cherished and a favorite toy for some of their 17 grandchildren and 17 great-grandchildren who visit

Senior distinguished junior members, Debra Stump and Alan Hostetter, were also recognized at the awards breakfast with plaques presented by state Holstein president John Cope

Debra is 20 and the daughter of Mr and Mrs John Stump, Bernville, Berks County She has an impressive herd of 21 registered Holsteins, 18 of them her own breeding

Since her graduation from Tulpehocken High School, Debra has taken over as herdsman at the family s Stumpland Farm She does the milking chores, with some assistance from her younger sister, and handles the breeding and health care of the animals

Adept at the technological art of artificial insemination, Debra uses classification and AAA coding to select sires for herd mating program She also maintains all the herd records, orders pedigrees yearly and handle the herd advertising, including showing the cattle at local and statewide shows

Winner of the numerous showing and fitting awards, Debra is a leader in 4-H dairy work and served as chairman of the Junior Holstein Association's fund-raising calf drawing at the Pocono convention

Alan Hostetter, 20-year-old son of Mr and Mrs. Dale Hostetter, is young stock specialist at the family's Dale-Pride Holsteins, Annville R2. That job entails the management and raising of almost 100 heifer calves yearly He also helps manage the 100-head dairy herd feeding program

A devoted showring participant Alan has exhibited some of his 13 head - nine of them he bred himself - at numerous 4-H, FFA and open class shows Two of his favorite homebreds are twin daughters of Paclamar Bootmaker, with three-year projected milk records of 21,000 and 22,000 pounds

A graduate of Annville-Cleona High School, Alan was a member of the FFA chapter and treasurer in his senior year He earned his Keystone Farmer degree and was named the Eastern region star farmer in 1978. During the next few months, Alan will apply for his American farmer degree

Other senior finalists in the distinguished junior member contest were M Jane Bombgardner, Annville R3, Lisa Beth Cooper, Slippery Rock R1, Karen R Sattazahn, Womelsdorf, RD, and Donald Stoltzfuz, Morgantown R1

Six junior division distinguished Holstein youth were also named and recognized at the breakfast program They are Debbie Cashell, Franklin County, Kim Kreibel, Perry County, Connie Ohlinger, and Claude Miller, Berks County, Brad Ludwig, Warren County and John Stamy III, Cumberland County

One special surprise presentation went to Don and Gerry Seipt, Keystone Farms, Easton R4.

Several years ago, the Seipts sold a young registered Holstein bull, Keystone Ivan Silver, to the Netherlands Recently, Silver won the Preferred Award, the first Holstein-Friesian sire ever to win this highest possible honor given to a dairy sire in Holland

In honor of their accomplishment in the breeding of Silver, the Association presented the Seipt s with an enlarged, framed photograph of the Seipt family as they loaded the young bull on the truck for shipment

Don Seipt is a past state Holstein president and a national director of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America.

Five Holstein members were honored for having solicited 10 or more new members in 1980. They are Lazlo Mozes, Mercer County, 13 members, Kenneth Nixon, Fayette County, 13, D Lamar Witmer, Lancaster County, 13, Wendell J Smith, Butler County, 11, and Byron Over, Bedford County, 10

Holstein group sets 6,000 goal

WHITE HAVEN — A membership goal of 6,000 has been set for 1981, William C Nichol, executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association, said in his annual meeting report last week

He told the attending Holstein breeders at the Pocono Hershey Resort that present membership stands at 5,703

Nichol urged that all members review the directory in the Pennsylvania Annual and visit two or three dairymen not included.

It is hoped that the 6,000 figure could be reached by March 19 – National Agriculture Day The State Board of Directors is planning to recognize member 6000 and the solicitor

Association involvement in sales was reported at an all-time high of $6.3 million for 1980

During the 1980 season, local clubs sponsored 30 shows with more than 3500 animals exhibited.

Premiums will be increased for the Holstein Show at Harrisburg on September 24 and 25. Total Holstein premiums, excluding the state herd class, will be $14,340

Nichol told of the planned visit this week of a buying team from Japan The executive secretary is planning a trip there in April to promote exporting of Pennsylvania Holsteins

He said that a brochure is being prepared to feature the tops in brood cows with male offspring on the ground or prospects in dam He invited breeders to submit nominations for the brochure

Nichol concluded his report at the annual meeting by stressing the importance of agriculture to the overall economic health of the country

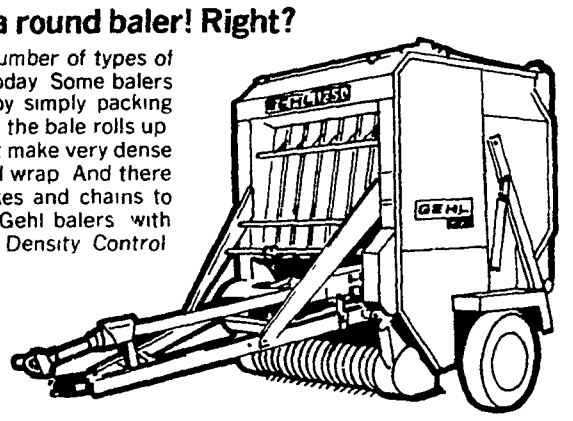
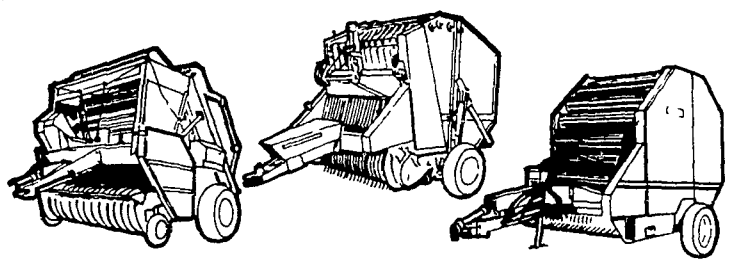
With T.D.C. - The Simple System

A round baler is a round baler! Right?

Wrong! There are a number of types of round balers available today Some balers form soft center bales by simply packing and packing the crop 'till the bale rolls up Some are belt balers that make very dense bales with tight core and wrap And there are balers that use spikes and chains to form round bales Only Gehl balers with T D C give total Total Density Control total operator control over the type of bale he makes – small core less dense more dense or anywhere in between





We Sell More Than Price - We Sell GEHL Quality

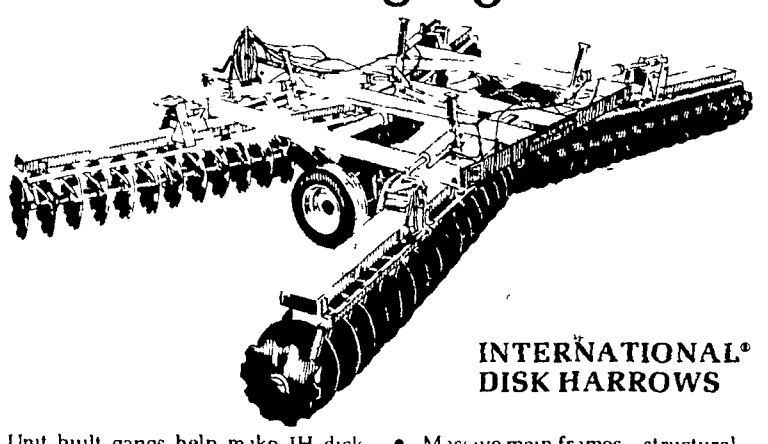
Secret to long-life superiority? Unit-built disk gangs.



INTERNATIONAL® DISK HARROWS

Unit built gangs help make IH disk harrows the strongest of any line on the market Big square spring-steel arbor bolts are high torqued to make a rigid exceptionally long-life assembly of the cast spacer bearing spools and blades Crimp center blades mean long wear less breakage Triple sealed self-aligning bearings are rubber mounted so they flex in their housings to absorb shocks

- Massive main frames—structural steel welded into high strength rectangular tubing
- Extra strong structural steel gang bars keep disk cutting
- Proven components throughout for maximum disking productivity
- Unit built gangs on all IH disk harrows mounted wheel controlled tandems and wheel-controlled off sets Wide range of sizes and sub-types

GUNITE Silo Relining & Repairs

Extensive tests have been conducted on Gunite Below are some of the properties of Gunite
1 Excellent bonding
2 High Density
3 Extreme strength and hardness
4 High resistance to absorption
The excellent physical properties of the material are due to the water content being only the amount needed to satisfy chemical hydration
Reseal and re-strengthen your silo with Gunite

Magic and love transform corn husk to dolls

Eva Smith of Northampton County works on her corn husks dolls in her own home. Here she is creating her "Miss Clara" doll, one which she claims has become very popular.

This corn husk bride doll is detailed with pieces of antique lace.

BY VIVIAN PAUL
Staff Correspondent

When most folks pick up a discarded corn husk nothing happens

But Eva Smith has magic in her hands For her, that discarded husk is the starting point for the creation of an extraordinary line of corn husk dolls

I had seen several of Mrs Smith's dolls in the past and had heard of her talents as well But when I visited her home I was dazzled; from exquisite Victorian costumed women, to circus clowns, all of corn husks, and all so beautifully detailed.

Mrs. Smith, who has been a secretary at the Northampton County Extension office of 15 years, has always been interested in hand crafts Five years ago she was introduced to corn husk dolls It was an introduction that soon blossomed into a long and loving friendship

She began by copying designs from old pictures and Christmas cards She still uses these old favorites for inspiration Most recently she created an entire scene of Norman Rockwell's 'Doctor and the Doll" as a special order for Christmas

Her latest project, and one of which she is very proud, is the creation of a special doll for the Jacobsburg Historial Society. Mrs Smith had been a member of the Society for some time and had even exhibited her dolls in their annual fair in early July.

She got the idea of creating a special doll as a fund raiser to promote the organization's efforts to restore the Henry Homestead near Nazareth. The Henry family manufactured guns during the Revolutionary War.

The doll, named Miss Clara" developed after conversations with Mary Henry Stites, a family descendent. Miss Stites recalled her Aunt Tal and found a picture of her in an old family albumn Aunt Tal became Miss Clara

The design of the doll came directly from the old photo, detailed even to the handkerchief, the watchfob in the bodice pocket, the color of her dress, and her hairstyle

From the beginning

The process of creating Miss Clara, or any corn husk doll begins in the corn field

Just before harvest, Mrs. Smith collects the dried corn silk. She pulls it off out of the husk and it looks just like a hank of hair.

Immediately after the corn husker goes through the field she collects the husks and puts them in plastic garbage bags which have holes to keep the air flowing.

The husks are simmered in a commercial dye until just the right color is reached Mrs Smith has found that the best effect is reached with deep colored dyes Pastels, she said, are not as effective

Then cutting, tying, and glueing at her living room work table, Eva Smith performs her magic.

Miss Clara presented special challenges, Mrs Smith said An authentic hairstyle required showing her hair parted in the middle without a hat. The trim on the dress was especially delicate She finally found an antique shawl of fine wool. Tying the puff on the sleeve required particular attention.

After five hours, Miss Clara stands on her own Although all Jacobsburg dolls are essentially the same, each has her own personality with a special tilt to the head or shoulders or position of the hands.

In just a few months since her development, Miss Clara is already a popular doll for collectors, and at $20, Mrs Smith has a waiting list for customers

Finds dolls popular

Finding customers has never been a problem. In fact, the opposite is probably true.

Many of Mrs. Smith's early dolls were given to family and friends When she began getting inquiries for sales she had a hard time parting with her creations

"It hurt to give them up,' she said

At the few craft shows in which she does decide to show, she reports, "I am surrounded by buyers, other folks are surrounded by lookers."

Her dolls are sold in Bethlehem by the Moravian Book Shop on Main Street and the prices are remarkably low A Moravian doll, another exclusive design, sells for less than $15

But there are some she will not sell. Under a glass dome in her living room is her first bride-doll Trimmed in antique lace, she was inspired by a gown worn by her daughter-in-law. A similar doll is available by special order.

There's a Mary Poppins doll and an exquisite Victorian lady in a pink gown complete with a feathered hat.

Even though Mrs Smith finds it hard to part with her dolls, she loves to talk about how to make them and has given many demonstrations She even wrote a booklet on her techniques which she sells

What simply began as a hobby has become a very important part of her life She may work six hours a day on her dolls

Mrs Smith says her husband has been very cooperative and he makes the dome bases and any furniture she may need for a miniature scene

"I have so much fun doing it, she said I love to make something people will be proud to own, something I'll be remembered for."

Mrs. Smith has been approached by two major department stores which want to market her dolls.

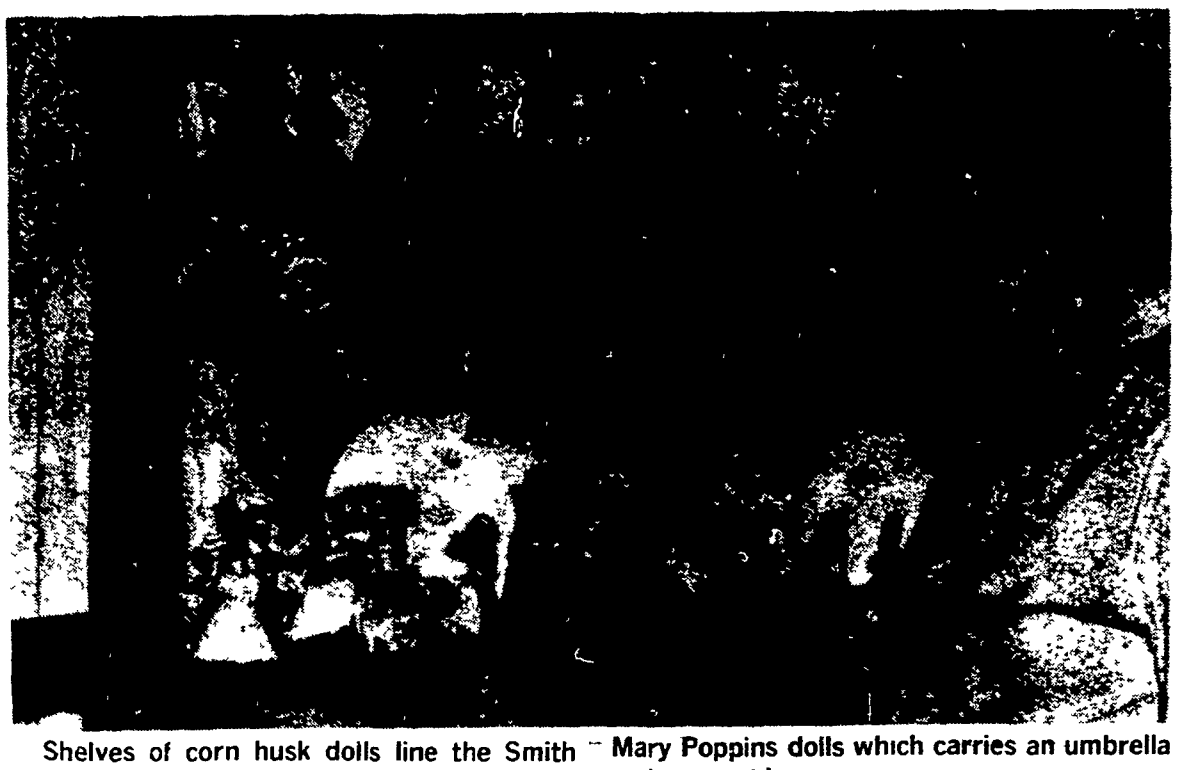
But she says the reason her dolls are so successful is that she is able to give each one individual attention She is concerned that even when she is retired from Extension in a couple of years, and has more time to work on the dolls, the pressure of mass sales may put too much pressure on her

She has hopes of setting workshops in her home so that she can teach others the techniques she has developed

She wants others to develop their own dolls so they can get the kind of pleasure she has enjoyed

Homestead Notes

To the right is a close-up of Mrs. Smith's Jacobsburg doll, Miss Clara. To her left stands a Moravian doll.



Shelves of corn husk dolls line the Smith home. Here Mrs. Smith shows the dolls she makes for both fun and profit. She is holding a Mary Poppins dolls which carries an umbrella and a carpet bag.

Two N.Y. produce firms closed down

RIVER HEAD, N.Y — D'Agostino Produce, of Syracuse, NY, was barred from operating in the produce industry after it failed to pay a reparation award of $1,290.

Marketing officials of the U S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Marketing Service, said that the award was issued in favor of a North Carolina shipper for a truckload of mixed vegetables shipped during July 1978. The firm failed to answer the charges, and USDA ordered payment of the amount due.

The firm, owned by Dominic D'Agostino and Giuseppe D'Agostino, may not conduct business under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act (PACA) and its owners may not be employed by or affiliated with any PACA licensee without USDA approval

Riverhead Food Terminal, Riverhead, NY, was barred from operating in the produce industry after it failed to pay a reparation award of $2400

Marketing officials of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Marketing Service, said that the award was issued in favor of a New Jersey shipper for a trucklot of peaches shipped during August 1979. The firm failed to answer the charges, and USDA ordered payment of the amount due.

The firm, owned by Philip Melfi, may not conduct business under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act and Melfi may not be employed by or affiliated with any PACA licensee without USDA approval.

Under PACA, all interstate traders in fresh and frozen fruits and vegetables must be licensed by USDA.

Potatoes, a basic to every diet

There are so many ways to prepare potatoes as you'll see in the recipe section this week

But don't hesitate to make potatoes just because you think they're fattening Try "Potato Crust Ham and Cheese," a low calorie potato recipe with only 250 calories per serving Another diet favorite is "Manhattan Clam Chowder," with only 100 calories for each serving. Enjoy

HAM, POTATO AND CHEESE CASSEROLE

3 c cooked cubed ham
3 c. cooked cubed potatoes
1 medium onion
3 T green pepper
1/2 stick oleo
2 1/2 T flour
2 c milk
3/4 c. shredded cheese
salt and pepper to taste

Cook onion and pepper in butter 5 minutes. Add flour and stir Add milk and cook until thickened, season and add potatoes and ham. Put in 2 quarts casserole and top with shredded cheese and bake at 350 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes. Weiners can be used to replace ham if desired.

Mrs. Merle Mishler, Hollsopple

PARTY POTATOES

8 - 10 medium potatoes
1-8 oz. pkg cream cheese
1/4 cup dairy sour cream salt butter
paprika

Pare potatoes Boil till tender and drain Beat softened cream cheese and sour cream (with mixer at medium speed) until well blended Add hot potatoes gradually, beating till light and flutfy. Season to taste with salt. Spoon potatoes into greased 2 quart casserole Brush with butter and sprinkle on paprika Brown in 325 degree oven 20-25 minutes

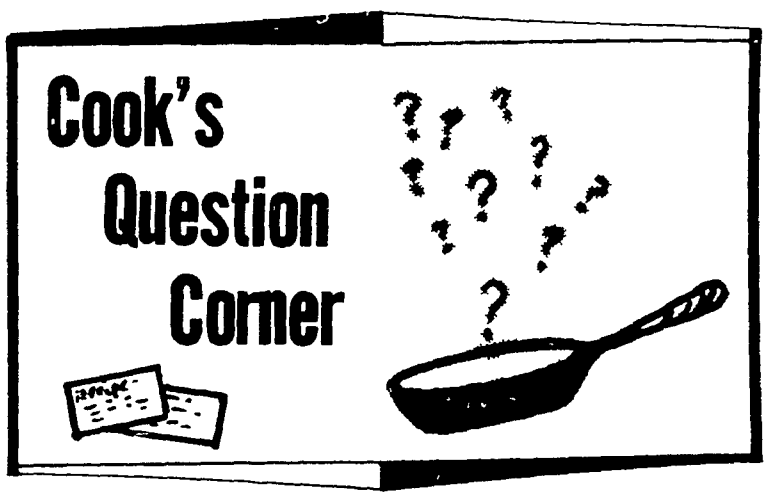
OVEN FRIED POTATOES

4 large potatoes, peeled, cut into 3/4 inch strips and soaked in ice water about an hour
4 T butter
1/2 t salt
1/4 t. pepper

Set oven at 450 degrees. Melt the butter in a baking pan. Drain and dry the potatoes. Roll them in the butter and arrange them in a single layer in the pan. Bake 30 minutes. Turn once during baking Season with salt and pepper and serve.

Mrs. Leon Martin, New Providence

Potatoes can be used in a variety of ways. You can bake them whole, boil them and make mashed potatoes stir fry them or make them into french fries. And potatoes will go with almost every main dish imaginable



QUESTION-Can anyone help me with some recipes for diabetics? I would especially appreciate ones for lemon meringue pie or a coconut creme pie.

Kathy Dietch, R8, Box RW4C, Carlisle, Pa

QUESTION-I would like a recipe for making jams and jellies using clear-jell purchased by the pound.

Mary Reinecker, York Springs, Pa

ANSWER-I am writing in the answer to the request as to why instant pudding tastes soapy. I had the same problem myself and I wrote to General Foods. They told me that using raw milk with products like instant pudding and/or Cool Whip will cause a chemical reaction with the enzymes in raw milk. It will give a soapy or metallic taste to the dessert you make. They suggested using only pasturized or homogenized milk with these products.

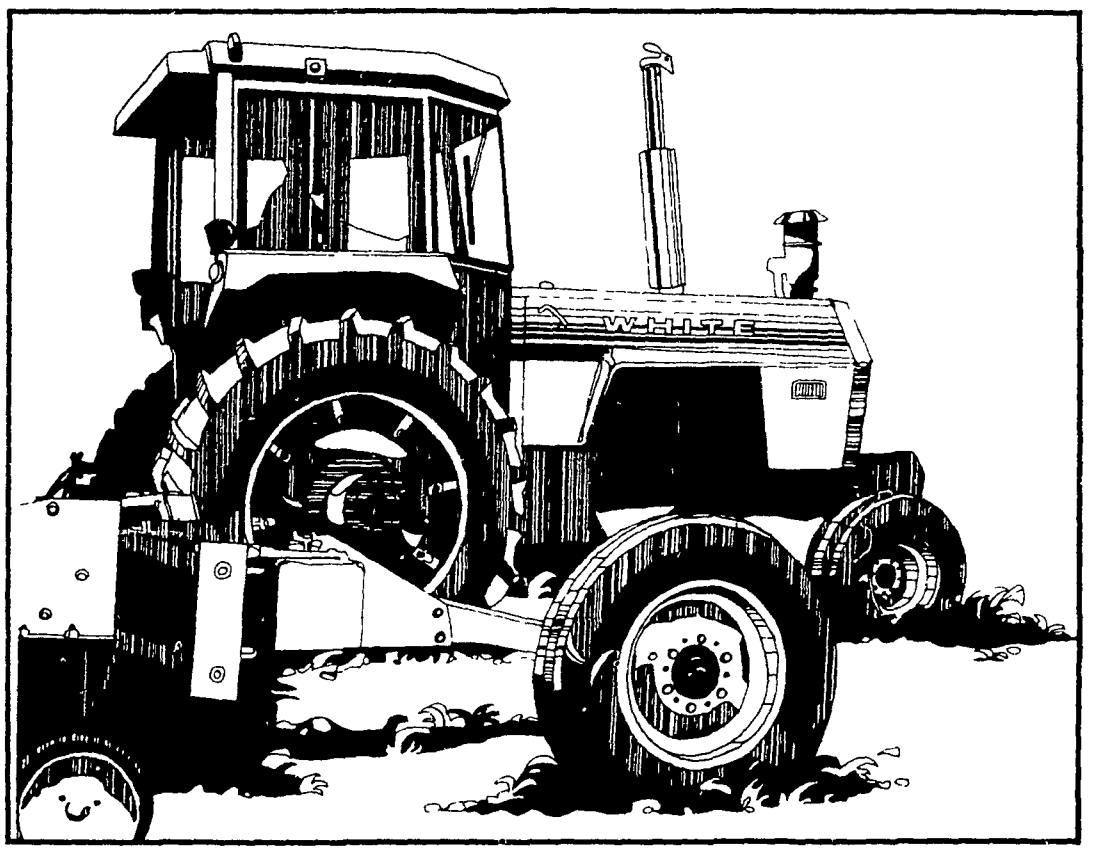
The White 2-85 and 2-105...85 and 105 hp performance that's hard to outgrow.



With 18 forward speeds in three shift-on-the-go power ranges, hydrostatic power steering plus optional power front axle, the 2-85 and 2-105 give you flexibility equal to the biggest 2-wheel drive tractors.

Today, you probably still find it difficult to be without that 85 or 100 hp tractor. That's why we still offer you dependability in tractors of this size...the White® 2-85 and 2-105 Field Boss® Tractors.

The respective 85 and 105 hp 2-85 and 2-105 are among the heaviest candidates in their class with the weight coming from built in components such as the 3x6 Over/Under Transmission. Closed center hydraulics, Cat. II 3-point hitch, and independent dual-speed 540/1000 rpm pto also add up to standard features and value.

We've not forgotten the tractors you rely on most. And our 2-85 and 2-105 Field Bosses won't let you down. Stop by and see for yourself.

On being a farm wife -And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

There's a lot of dialogue these days about how very difficult it is for a young farmer to get a foothold in the modern agriculture business

And let's face it Annual interest rates of twelve or thirteen percent on a half-million worth of land, equipment, buildings and livestock, adds up to a real pile of money that must be paid back each month

But tough times for young farmers is not a new problem, according to stories I recently heard at our Pennsylvania Holstein Convention

The tellers of these tales are two fine, fine breeders of dairy cows and are highly respected, loved would be a better word, by their peers across the state

And both got their start in the dairy business in the black year 1929.

"If you think times are tough now," mused one of these gentlemen, "you should have been trying to start out then "

These were the days when milk brought 84 cents per hundredweight, probably set out at the end of the lane in battered milk cans

Today, those cans are worth a hundred times — or more — that amount.

A poignant smile flickered over one weathered face, deeply lined from years of making hay and milking cows twice a day, as memories came out to be shared

"I remember one month when our milk check came to just over $29, and $25 of that had to go to pay our hired man "

That thought put our farm economy of today into a slightly different perspective in my mind

Somehow our ever-dwindling checkbook didn't pinch quite as painfully on my conscience.

One gentleman related how he scratched together meager dollars by milking FOUR times a day In between, he did lumbering work with horses

This is all probably little comfort to young would-be farmers out there faced with a consuming dream and a banker who says No '

But there were, there are, and there will continue to be ways for some with a strong back, plenty of determination and maybe the blessing of a bit of luck with cattle and crops, to reach that magic dream of being a farmer

Fertilizer factories

A single 150-lb hog yields about $11 00 of fertilizer value a year Multiply that by the number of hogs you raise and you have a substantial supply of N, P, K you don t-have to buy

But it has to be managed That means the right handling and spreading equipment Calumet vacuum tanks are built to last with heavy-duty components and a choice of two vacuum pumps — both engineered to load fast and run cool

To get the most value from hog manure, pair your Calumet vacuum tank to a Calumet 2 or 4-shank soil injector and put manure where it does the most good

Pennsylvania's Three Top Alfalfa Producers

Champion growers Norman and Harold Davis of Huntingdon, owners of Daland Farms, and Apollo variety alfalfa from RP Seeds.

When Harold and Norman Davis entered the 1980 State Alfalfa Growers Program, they knew the competition would be tough, that it would take a lot to win first place. A lot of yield... pounds of protein... and TDN produced over the entire growing season.

That meant careful planning, proper management and a little luck with the weather. Plus the best alfalfa stand on their entire dairy operation.

The Davis brothers' choice to win? A two-year old field of Apollo, the alfalfa variety bred to beat Phytophthora root rot ("wet foot" disease) and deliver high yields of consistently top quality hay.

The result: Apollo yielded 8.6 tons per acre, with 3,410 pounds of protein and 9,765 pounds of TDN.

And Harold and Norman Davis won first place to become Pennsylvania's 1980 State Champion alfalfa growers.

ROUND STEAK, A THRIFTY CUT OF MEAT

One way to get the most for your meat money is to know individual meat cuts Round steak, for example, has very little waste, plenty of lean meat and can be prepared in a variety of ways

Round steak is sold either as a full round steak or cut into its different parts. There are three distinct parts to every round steak-top round, bottom round and eye-of-the-round. Theses parts differ in tenderness because they contain different muscles, and they are priced accordingly if sold separately.

The most tender section is the top round, easily identified because it is the largest section of the full round steak. If the top round steak is a USDA choice grade, it can be broiled or pan broiled If it is a lower grade, it should be braised For greatest tenderness, broil only to the medium rare or medium stage.

The bottom round is the least tender section and must be cooked with moist heat. The bottom round is the second largest section It's also often sold with the eye-of-the-round attached

Bottom round can be used for Swiss steak or can be cut into cubes or slices for stews extended with vegetables. If very thinly sliced, it can be successfully used for quick cook, stir-fry dishes.

The eye-of-the-round is the smallest section of the round steak and is circular in shape Though it's not quite as tender as the top round, it can also be broiled or pan fried if it is USDA choice grade When sold separately, the eye-of-the-round is usually the most expensive of the round steak sections

To save money on round steak, consider full round steak, the least expensive cut of round steak. If you can't use that much steak for a meal for your family, buy it anyway and cut it into three different sections for three different meals A two-pound round steak provides ample meat for two people for three separate meals

If you extend the meat with other foods that are lower in cost, such as vegetables or noodles, it will make four meals.

CHOOSING KITCHEN KNIVES

Before you choose new kitchen knives, consider three basic features-design, construction and material. All are important

When considering design, hold the knife to get the feel and fit of it You should be able to get a comfortable but firm grip on the handle And a good knife should balance in your hand so that neither end feels heavier than the other.

A well-constructed knife has a long-lasting blade and a tight handle. Many knives have blades extending partially or all the way through the handle. This extension, called a tang, is usually riveted to the handle Select a knife with a full tang and three rivets, or a half tang and two rivets.

Look for handles that resist moisture, grease, and heat Wood impregenated with plastic is an excellent material since it has all three qualities. Hardwoods such as hickory, beech, rosewood, or walnut are also used for knife handles, but can be damaged by heat. When buying knives with hardwood handles, look for a smooth or polished natural finish rather than a painted or varnished finish. Other materials used for handles include plastic, metal, nylon, resin, and ebonite-a hard, black rubber

The blade of a knife should be made from a high-carbon steel or a high-carbon stainless steel. Both take and keep a sharp edge. Stainless steel is also an option, but the edge is not as easily maintained on a stainless steel blade as on the high-carbon steel types

Chrome plated blades are attractive, but will rust or tarnish if scratches expose the steel. Also, salt and fruit juice will harm chrome-plated blades

If you make your selections carefully, you can expect years of excellent service from kitchen knives

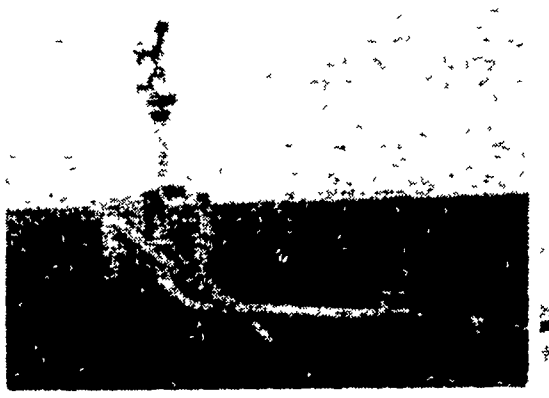
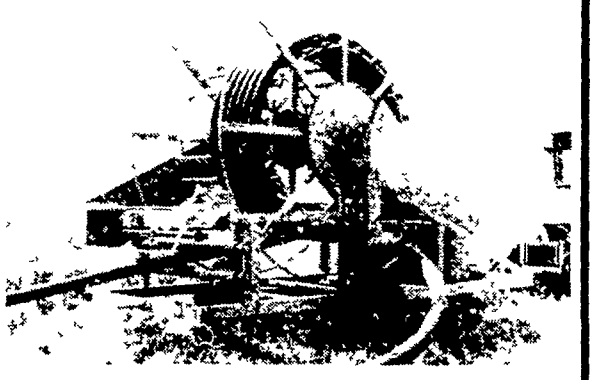
Model SR-1000

Vermeer Irrigation Traveler





Now irrigate up to 9 acres of your crops in one setting with the Vermeer Model SR-1000 and up to 20 acres per day with 1" of water or effluent. This combination unit works together as winch and trailer. Set the winch at one end of the area to be irrigated and pull the trailer and position at the other. The trailer with the sprinkler is pulled through the field using the hose. The reel capacity is 1,200 ft. (optional 1,000 ft.) with a capacity of up to 450 gpm. A Wisconsin S-14D gas engine is used to turn the reel. Ease of operation and no hose loop to damage crops are just two reasons to consider the SR-1000 Traveler from Vermeer...innovators of irrigation products.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Can this be the first week of March? Two months of 1981 are already past. It is said that as one gets older, time seems to pass more quickly. I am reminded of an ailing and aged man who said, "When did I get old? I was always young! When did I get old?"

That is a rather haunting question. Our lives really are rather brief and soon we simply have our lives to look back on.

A local minister once commented that, when he attended his mother's funeral, it suddenly struck him that he was next in line. Now "he" was the oldest generation and soon it would be his turn to move on. As is said of the river, "men may come and men may go, but I go on forever."

But even as Winter brings thoughts of death, even so March brings thoughts of new life. Many people are anxious to get outside and work in their gardens. To seed and plant is to expect great things. Already pussy willows are pushing open their silvery-pink buds and the wild geese have been traveling north in great flocks recently.

Our own geese, that we thought were lost, have come home. It seems that when the Conestoga froze over for eight straight weeks, they moved about one-half mile upstream where there was open water. They came home too soon though and a neighbor's dog came across the ice and killed one and scattered the rest as they had no water to rush to for safety.

Now they sit in my front yard and squawk and quarrel among themselves. Hopefully the meadow will soon be green again and they will move to it.

Apple holdings up 6%

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania apples in cold storage on January 31 totaled 167,998,000 pounds, up 10,084,000 pounds or six percent from a year ago, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service.

Of that total, which converts to 4 million bushels at 42 pounds each, York Imperial apples comprise the largest variety in cold storage for processing at 1,297,000 bushels.

York Imperial apples are followed by Red Delicious apples at 742,000 bushels, Rome apples at 693,000 bushels and Golden Delicious apples at 627,000 bushels.

Apples in cold storage in the continental United States on January 31 totaled 62,383,000 bushels, up 9,815,000 bushels or 16 percent from a year ago.

Horse owners shortcourse scheduled

NORRISTOWN — A special shortcourse for horse owners has been planned for March 24 and 25 to be held at the Montgomery County 4-H Center in Lansdale The course is open to all horse owners but particularly aimed at the professional or interested private owner

According to County Agent Nancy Kadwill, the program will feature two well-known speakers, Susan Harris of Courtland, New York, and Dr. David Marshall of Kennett Square

Susan Harris is the author of "Grooming To Win" and "Horsemanship In Pictures." Recently a series of her articles on teaching and grooming have appeared in the "Practical Horseman" magazine

Ms Harris travels throughout the country giving clinics and teaching. She also works with the National Camp Horsemanship Association and was the former manager of Carousel Farms and 5-H Acres School of Horsemanship in New York.

A very versatile horsewoman, Harris judges stock, hunt and saddle seat classes, participates in eventing and jumping and has conducted overnight trail rides.

Ms. Harris will cover topics such as advertising, buying and selling horses, legal hassels involved in marketing, selecting the right horse for your needs and pre-purchase try-outs She will also cover conditioning your horse from rough shape to basic show or sport condition, interval training and grooming tips.

Dr. David Marshall is with the large animal surgery department of the noted New Botton Veterinary Clinic in Kennett Square. Dr. Marshall will cover basic herd health and first aide for your horse, elaborating on the major issues of bleeding, wound care and colic.

Another special feature will include a program on barn fire safety conducted by Richard Stover and Michael Martin of Bucks County Fire School

Both men are licensed instructors, have a farm background, and have taught safety courses throughout the state. Particular areas of interest will include proper hay storage, barn "housekeeping", farm chemicals and wiring concerns.

Completing the program will be Nancy Kadwill who will explain the availability and use of the Penn State University soil and forage testing services.

The course will run from 9:30 A.M -3.30 P.M. both days with registration and coffee from 9 00-9:30 The course fee is $32.00 per person (which includes registration, coffee breaks, lunch and written materials for both days). Pre-registration is required

For information or a registration application contact Nancy Kadwill at (215) 277-0574 or write 400 Markley Street, Norristown, Pennsylvania 19401

One Extension Quality Credit will be awarded to participants successfully completing the two-day program sponsored by the Montgomery County Cooperative Extension Service

4-H sports critter club

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — Small wild animals hold a special interest for members of three Hunterdon County 4-H Clubs. Herpetology Club meetings feature and such creepy creatures as snakes and turtles.

Members have learned how to identify poisonous snakes, what kinds of frogs live in Hunterdon County, and how much a salamander thinks.

Special events have included trips to the Box and Staten Island Zoos, and a chance for older members to participate in the annual meeting of the Herpetological Society of America. The Nature Study Club has tackled a more diverse group of living things. Insects, trees, birds and flowers have all been the subject of a program at one time or another. This year's highlight will be a weekend stay at Pocono Environmental Education center

The Veterinary Science Club provides an opportunity for those who want to help animals, to observe the care required in nursing a sick or injured animal back to health. Also they learn about the attitude and behavior of an animal, feeding, grooming, the organs and systems of the animal body, and maintaining animal health.

The popularity of such 4-H clubs is growing so rapidly among young people, that the County 4-H Office is having difficulty finding additional club leaders rapidly enough to meet the increasing demand. Leaders need not be professionals in these areas. The important ingredients are an interest in these subjects and a desire to help young people grow in knowledge and leadership ability.

Your county 4-H agent can show you how to get started and help you develop a successful program.

4-H grows in cities

YORK — Almost as many 4-H'ers live in cities and in the suburbs as live on farms, according to Anthony G. Dobrosky, County Agricultural Agent. Seventeen percent of all Pennsylvania 4-H'ers live on farms, 12 percent in the cities and 4 percent in the suburbs. Even though 4-H had its origins in the farm population more than half of today's 4-H'ers live in the country or in small villages and their parents are not farmers.

Where are most of the 4-H'ers in Pennsylvania concentrated? The largest number, nearly 5,000 members, is in Luzerne County–Wilkes-Barre. The next largest 4-H population is in Lancaster County with just over 4,000 enrolled.

Delaware County has more than 3,000 4-H'ers and Beaver, Berks, Bradford, Clarion, Dauphin, Montgomery, Philadelphia and Westmoreland each have over 2,000 youngsters enrolled.

Cameron and Potter counties have the fewest 4-H'ers by comparison. But even in these counties where the kids are outnumbered by the deer, 4-H appeals to a large percentage of the youth population.

Altogether, according to the statistics, just under 90,000 youth were members of 4-H during 1980.

Delaware 4-H clubs win grants

NEWARK-Three Delaware 4-H clubs have been awarded National 4-H Council Citizenship-In-Action grants for special community service projects. The grants are made possible through funds provided by the Reader's Digest Foundation.

Clubs to receive grants are the ABC 4-H Club and the West End 4-H Club, both of Wilmington; and the Clever Clovers 4-H Club of Newark.

The ABC 4-H Club, which is located in Southbridge, received $100 which it plans to use for a community beautification project along South Heald Street and New Castle Avenue (Route 9), two main thoroughfares which pass through the area. The club's 31 members plan to make plantings of rose bushes, azaleas, rhododendrons, tulips, crocus and daffodils in available plots of land along these streets. They will seek additional funds from local sources.

Goals of the project are to improve the physical appearance of their community for the benefit of residents and passing motorists and to develop basic horticultural skills. Last year the group participated in a successful 4-H urban garden program, so they're not new to gardening. They're eager to get started on the new project, which will involve selecting sites for the plantings, locating property owners, and obtaining permission to use the plots. Club youth will also need to work with representatives of the Department of Public Works and other city departments as their plan develops

According to extension urban 4-H agent Mark Manno, besides benefiting their community, the experience will help participating youth develop citizenship skills as they work with these government agencies.

A grant of $150 went to the West End 4-H Club, another urban group which meets in the West End Neighborhood House, a community center partially funded by the United Way. Limited funds to advertise its programs have prevented the center from reaching many potential clients The West End 4-H Club hopes to help remedy this problem by creating an eye-catching, giant 8'x16' mural to go on permanent display outside the center.

The third group to win a grant is the Clever Clovers 4-H Club of Newark. They received $100 to help develop a program which they hope will enrich the lives of elderly shut-ins at the Little Sisters of the Poor Senior Citizens Home The youths plan to start by holding a "Rocking Chairs to Rockets" party where they can meet residents and get to know their interests and needs.

"It is our hope," say the 4-H'ers, 'that the interaction between our club and the senior citizens will help break down some of the barriers society has put up between the aged and youth" The experience will help members develop concern for the well-being of others in the community and become aware of the "vast untapped wealth and resources available through association with the elderly."

Forty-three 4-H groups in 20 states, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands received seed-money grants this year under the Citizenship-In-Action program. Sponsored since 1965 by the Reader's Digest Foundation, the program is designed to encourage 4-H youth to devise creative and innovative projects relating to citizenship, community service and community development. Grants are administered through the National 4-H Council, a part of the Cooperative Extension Service.

Cumberland extension officers meet state law makers

HARRISBURG — Cumberland County Cooperative Extension members met with state legislators at a banquet in Harrisburg as part of the fourth annual State Capital Day

Duane Duncan, Cumberland County Extension Director said the banquet, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Council of Cooperative Extension Associations, gave committee members the opportunity to visit with legislators and discuss the impact of extension programs carried out across the state and at the county level

Cumberland County delegates who took part in the day's activities were Wayne Baker, Shippensburg, Representative Harold Mowery, Camp Hill, Shirley Chamberlain, Carlisle, Senator John Hopper, Harrisburg and Lynn Wingert, Mechanicsburg

State Capital Day is an annual event that provides PCCEA the chance to thank legislators for their support The organization is comprised of representatives of county Extension executive committees whoo serve in an advisory capacity to local Extension programs

In Cumberland County and across the state, PCCEA functions primarily to provide advice to The Pennsylvania State University so that Extension Service can develop programs that will improve the quality of life for Pennsylvanians

At the legislative banquet, Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Penrose Hallowell welcomed the committee members and read a statement sent by Governor Dick Thornburgh

"The Cooperative Extension Service of Pennsylvania State University provides valuable information and educational programs in the areas of agriculture and natural resources, family life, and 4-H youth and community development," said Hallowell quoting from the Governor's message

"Last year, over two million citizens were the direct recipents of these services which provide information that can benefit all Pennsylvanians.

'Capital day provides an opportunity for legislators to become further acquainted with vital work of the Cooperative Extension Service in the hope that even more citizens will take advantage of its programs during the coming year," Hollowell concluded

The Secretary was introduced by Mary Grim, mistress of ceremonies, and PCCEA representative from Adams County Other speakers on the program included Christy Bail, Washington County state 4-H public speaking winner, Enos Sage, chairman of the Legislative Committee of the PCCEA and Rolland Herring, President of the organization

Agri-Women to celebrate Ag Day

EAST BERLIN — York County Agri-Women have announced extensive plans for the celebration of Ag Day on March 19 as a result of last week's meeting at President Emilie Welsh's home.

State President Gail McPherson attended the March 3 signing ceremonies of Pennsylvania Ag Day in Governor Thornburgh's office for advance publicity purposes

A York County Ag Day baby will receive special recognition The first baby born on March 19 from time schedules provided by the three area hospitals will receive a banner, a basket of York County agriculture products for its parents, and a 1981 membership in Agri-Women for the mother

Participating in the 4-H auction March 20, county Agri-Women will be donating farm products and two home cooked meals for bidding couples at their farm homes Ethel Gross, Manchester, and Gail McPherson, Gatchellville, will be the chefs for the occasion

Mayor Marshall has been requested to make a proclamation in the city for Ag Day and join the festivities by shopping for her weekly groceries at the expense of Agri-Women to point out the real bargain of food separated from non-food in the supermarket

Local supermarkets are asked to join in the festivities with tie-in food ad specials using the "Heartbeat" logo for the Ag Day celebration.

"All in all," comments county president Walsh, "our women are eager to let others know the value of agriculture production and exports to the economy. We urge schools, stores, clubs to book members during this special week."

N.J. to offer pesticide training

FLEMINGTON, N J — A two-hour training session for pesticide applicators is scheduled for Tuesday evening, March 10, 8 p m in the Hunterdon County Extension Center, Flemington

The program is designed for those interested in the basic, or Core level, says C G Wettstein, County Agricultural Agent The material presented will prepare farmers and others who use pesticides for the CORE examination, a pre-requisite for certification

Most of the farmers are certified by the Department of Environmental Protection, however, there are still a few who have not been through the process, reports the agent And, a few have allowed their permits to lapse

Pre-registration is strongly suggested by the Extension Service Anyone interested in participating should contact the office 201/788-1339

For applicators already certified, the scheduled training session will provide continuing certification credits in the CORE area

IPM moves West in Maryland

HAGERSTOWN, Md — Washington and Frederick county farmers can be included this year in the Maryland Extension Service integrated pest management program

Participation will offer farmers the chance to fine-tune cropping operatons for the most economical treatment of insect, plant disease and weed problems

Minimum use of insecticides also avoids killing off beneficial parasitic insects, according to Galen P Dively, extension entomologist at the University of Maryland in College Park Dively has headed the the IPM program in Maryland since its inception in 1972

Dively said he is hoping for a 1500-acre signup in Washington county and an 800-acre signup in Frederick county in order to operate on a break-even, self-supporting basis. The signup deadline is March 15 at county Extension offices.

Participating farmers will be charged $2.25 to $3 50 per acre, depending on the acreage in each case

The smaller fee applies to farmers entering 76 acres or more or corn and soybeans in the program The higher fee applies to alfalfa fields

For this expenditure, farmers can expect weekly monitoring services for possible insect, weed and plant disease problems in designated fields Scouting will begin during the second week in April and will continue through the end of August

All pest counts are recorded on a weekly scouting report for each participating farmer. Copies are sent to the scout supervisor and to the appropriate county Extension agricultural agent These reports form the basis for personalized agrichemical control recommendations.

In Washington county this year, field representatives of five cooperating agribusiness organizations will also receive the weekly scouting reports

Dively notes that such cooperation from grower organizations is encouraging His aim is to turn the day-to-day monitoring and decisionmaking for individual farms over to private consultants and grower organizations at the earliest opportunity so that the Extension Service can begin new related projects with its limited government funding

He reports the integrated pest management program will move almost entirely into the private sector this year on Maryland's Eastern Shore, except in Dorchester County.

The University of Maryland Extension program began operating as a pilot project in 1972 in sweet corn fields on the Eastern Shore in cooperation with commercial processors By 1975, its scope had broadened to include soybeans and small grains, in addition to six commercial vegetable crops, in cooperation with the University of Delaware

In 1978, the program was put on a self-supporting basis, with participating farmers and homeowners paying for its services That year, it was also expanded west of the Chesapeake Bay to include corn and alfalfa growers

As part of the integrated pest management program for soybeans on the Eastern Shore, and Maryland Cooperative Extension Service has collaborated with the state Department of Agriculture in conducting a regional biological control campaign against the Mexican bean beetle

For 1980, the corn-alfalfa IPM program involved 41 Upper Shore growers and 3370 acres in Baltimore, Carroll, Cecil and Kent counties

In Howard county last year, 50 homeowners in two central Maryland communities participated for the second year in a highly successful urban IPM program for yards and gardens, conducted by the Extension Service

Chester, Berks farmers speak out on issues

MOHNTON — Half of 16 farmers surveyed in northern Chester and northern Berks counties believe that the Reagan Administration will have more favorable farm policies than the Carter Administration.

The survey was conducted among the farmers by Victoria Lingg, R1 Mohnton, prior to the announcement of the proposed Reagan budget cutting efforts and how they might affect farm programs.

A dairy farmer was encouraged at the appointment of John Block as secretary of agriculture.

"Bob Bergland wasn't so bad," he commented.

"But it's a blessing to agriculture that Under-Secretary Carol Foreman has departed."

Pointing out that the government has only supported dairy farmers in the past, another farmer felt that Reagan would help all farmers. He favored Reagan's promise to turn more local decisions back to local agencies, which will be in closer contact with needs.

Yet another respondent to the survey felt the Reagan Administration will work hard to take government out of agriculture He hoped the new administration would support alternative sources of energy, such as solar, methane and alcohol.

Four farmers responding to the survey said they didn't expect much difference in the policies from the two administrations.

"Reagan has a lot to learn about agriculture," one of these commented.

"During his campaign he had a lot of answers even before he knew what the problems were."

All of the farmers have been affected by the drought. Some said that their hay and grain crop was 20 to 25 percent below normal. One said he has had to buy hay. Another explained that in normal times he harvests 125 bushels of corn per acre, but this past season he harvested only 70 bushels.

Concerning the ailing economy, several mentioned a lack of productivity. One farmer said he was taught to "earn his bread by the sweat of his brow". Today, that's not heard anymore, he said. Another replied that there should be less giveaway programs and fewer free handouts.

One said imports have to be controlled. Another replied that Americans must learn to work for a wage that makes the costs of American goods competitive with foreign products.

Several mentioned that people are forgetting God. People must learn to give and forget the prevailing spirit of self interest. Government spending has to be controlled said another.

Welfare funds should only be available to those in real need, the farmer said. Another added that all people on relief who can work should be made to work for what they get. Another agreed.

Still another suggested that the United States government should stop subsidizing this and that and allow the concept of supply and demand to work freely. The economy would take care of itself. He did not approve of subsidizing the Chrysler Corporation.

One replied, "People must learn to live within their means and stop being wasteful". People should take pride in what they do and do it to the best of their ability". "Don't charge so much for repair work and make things that will last."

A dairy farmer said that labor unions should be eliminated, government regulations should be cut and the minimum wage law repealed. Another agreed, that the power and demands of labor unions must be controlled. Higher wages and benefits are just passed on to the consumer.

A young farmer who raises corn, hogs, pullets and dairy heifers had much to say about the rules and regulations set by the department of agriculture and other agencies.

He felt that the Department of Agriculture must work more for the farmer in overseas marketing The government exerts too much influence in the market place by setting quotas or placing subsidies, issuing bonds or boycotts.

The farmer also commented on local concerns

"Our school taxes are entirely too high to permit farmers to buy more land," one farmer said

A dairy farmer said that farmers have been told that local "zoning would protect farmland" However, some court cases have been unfavorable to farmers by concluding that local zoning was discriminatory, he said.

Most farmers do not feel they are being paid fairly for what they produce.

One explained that his hourly wage is less than the minimum set by the government. Another said he has to pay outlandish prices per hour to have machinery repaired.

"We have paid a repair bill where the part cost less than $2. Labor brought the bill to almost $40 and there was not even an hour's work done on the repairs."

One farmer mentioned that his biggest problem is that he has no bargaining power. When he buys something, the prices are firmly set and again when he sells, the prices are set. Another agreed that the markets he deals with are his biggest obstacle. High interest rates are his greatest problem, said another. Another said his production costs rise much faster than the income he gets for his produce. Another said the costs of fuel, machinery repairs and equipment are way out of proportion. A tomato grower is concerned with getting enough dependable help to pick tomatoes.

Another complained about people who throw beer cans and whiskey bottles in his fields.

Regarding the effects of the embargo on grain sales to Russia, several said that if it was used as a political issue, is does not help American farmers One said that food should not be denied to an enemy as punishment Another disagreed.

International food board meets

Universities seen as answer to world hunger

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — A larger international role in agricultural affairs on the part of land-grant universities could help ease the world hunger situation, according to Earl H Brown, dean of the College of Agriculture at the University of Maryland in College Park

In dealing with the global food problem, academic institutions have focused mainly on helping to produce enough food to feed the world's growing population They also need to be concerned with encouraging an equitable distribution of this food, as well as initiating educational programs to help control rampant population growth

"There is considerable evidence that the world's food system is not working," says Brown 'Food production in less-developed countries must be increased to avoid large-scale malnutrition and starvation

'Some countries will have to double their available food supply just to maintain current levels of consumption " Population figures indicate a twofold increase within the next 30 to 40 years

The greatest contributions land-grand universities can make are in those areas they do best–research, teaching and Extension services–and in building and helping organize research and educational facilities in third-world nations

University participation in international aid programs comes under the auspices of Title XII of the U S Foreign Assistance Act as amended in 1975 The long-term goals of the Act are to improve the welfare of the poor majorities overseas and to increase the overall role of women in development

The U S Agency for International Development has requested more academic involvement in a variety of programs, including their own and those of the United Nations Development Program and Food and Agriculture Organization, as well as in the local institutions of developing countries

Land-grant universities' efforts have already seen success in many less developed countries The universities have been instrumental in helping to build agricultural colleges, introducing modern technology and setting up training programs.

The University of Maryland's Title XII grant has a geographic focus on Sri Lanka and Egypt Colloborative agreements have been signed to help strengthen the agricultural colleges of the Universities of Sri Lanka, as well as Cairo and Assuit Universities in Egypt

Maryland also has a cooperative arrangement with the Central University of Venezuela Last year, concordance was reached with Beijing University and the Academy of Science in Anhui Province of the People's Republic of China

Speaking at the eastern regional seminar of the Board for International Food and Agricultural Development recently in College Park, Md , University of Maryland president, Dr John S Toll, said he was 'pleased to report that all of these international agreements are bearing fruit this year

The College Park campus has itself been enriched by its global role, agriculture, dean Brown says "Having more foreign students in our classes and having professors work and travel in foreign countries' makes for a more diverse educational experience

Brown has called for international additions to the University of Maryland libraries He also favors altering the content of some courses to give a better understanding of the problems–both cultural and agricultural–confronting other nations

The University of Maryland's Title XII grant is assured only until October 1982, according to John R Moore, assistant provost for international programs in the Division of Agricultural and Life Sciences Moore says the university will be in the third year of a current five-year plan by that time

Although federal funding for this plan was appropriated by the Carter administration, hopes are high that President Reagan will continue support of academic involvement in the Foreign Assistance Act

Dual covers more than twice as many acres as Lasso, on most soil types.

You can see for yourself on the rate chart. The Lasso[1] rate is more than double the Dual® rate. In almost every case.

The same relationship holds true for tank mixes, too. Just ask your chemical dealer to show you the labels.

Sure Dual costs more per gallon, but because it goes so much farther than Lasso, your cost per acre should be pretty close. Whether you apply alone or in combination. In soybeans or corn.

If that's not what you've heard, compare for yourself. At labeled rates for Dual and Lasso alone, a gallon of Lasso covers only 1 to 2 acres. Dual covers 2.6 to 5.3 acres per gallon.

And Dual really has the edge when you plan to incorporate. In every case Dual covers more than twice as many acres per gallon. Lasso requires higher rates when you incorporate, Dual doesn't. The one rate of Dual established for your soil type is the only one you'll need. No matter how you apply.

And at a comparable cost per acre, Dual provides you with 2 to 4 weeks longer grass control. So before you make your final decision, make sure you've seen the bottom line. Dual costs less than you think.

Dual stretches 2 to 4 weeks

When you're looking for good grass control, Dual can give you more of what you're paying for. 2 to 4 weeks more than Lasso.

In Ciba-Geigy test plots, in private research and in actual use on farms like yours since 1977, Dual has proven that it won't fizzle out too soon. That it can give you a cleaner harvest. Even when the season's a little on the wet side.

Dual gives you the extra weeks of grass control that can get you to shading. Longer control of foxtails, yellow nutsedge and most of the problem grasses in corn and soybeans. Control that's safe to the crop. Control that lasts 2 to 4 weeks longer than Lasso.

In fact, in several plots last year, Dual actually lasted 4 to 6 weeks longer than Lasso under test conditions.

Get the advantage of longer grass control on your fields. Ask your dealer for Dual. And stretch your control 2 to 4 weeks longer.

In these tests, Dual lasted 4 to 6 weeks longer than Lasso.

Delaware group proposes voluntary land preservation

DOVER, Del. — The Governor's Advisory Committee on Farmland Preservation has just released its Final Report outlining a proposal for a voluntary farmland preservation program for Delaware.

The proposed program would involve voluntary agreements between farmowners and the State, and the formation of voluntary agricultural districts In return farmowners would be eligible for various forms of State and local tax relief and a limited purchase-of-development rights feature

Similar programs are in effect in other states, but this particular combination of features has been developed to meet Delaware's unique requirements. A voluntary approach has been proposed in response to the objections that were raised when a mandatory farmland preservation program was discussed in public meetings around the State last fall.

"We're not urging a 'no growth' policy," states Wills Passmore, the Odessa farmer and master of the State Grange who chairs the Advisory Committee.

"Non-farm businesses are essential to a well-balanced economy, even in rural areas. Enough land has already been subdivided to accommodate the State's projected population growth through the year 2000 What's needed is development that's compatible with agriculture, to the fullest extent possible."

Some observers feel the proposed program has a chance of being effective because it offers farmowners high incentives to participate while asking of them a high level of commitment to future agricultural land use (at least 10 years).

The incentives are even higher for farmowners who commit to 15 or 20 years of preservation, and for farmowners who participate as a group instead of individually

The cost of this voluntary program cannot be estimated with precision, since the amount of land farmowners would enter into the program is difficult to predict. The program will cost less during the first few years of startup than it will later when in full operation

However, the Committee estimates that at peak the program might cost up to $8 million yearly in 1980 dollars. Of this, tax relief would account for up to $5 million, and limited purchase of development rights for $3 million.

The Committee hopes that the voluntary program will attract such participation that a mandatory approach, for example exclusive agricultural zoning, will never become necessary However, the report provides readers with the elements of the zoning concept in case it becomes needed.

Representatives from farm groups, real estate, government, and the Delaware Extension Service were appointed by the Governor to comprise this Committee in March 1980.

Since then they have met regularly to study reasons for Delaware's longterm farmland losses and recommend suitable public policies to protect the productive land base of the State's vital agricultural industry

The Committee predict that, without action, farmland will decline from 86 percent of Delaware's total land area a hundred years ago to only 35 percent by the year 2000. Farmland now is 53 percent of Delaware's land area

The repot devotes much analysis to Delaware's competitive edge in agriculture over other northeastern states and to the unique potential of agriculture in Delaware's economic development.

It notes that land well suited for farming makes up a higher proportion of the land area in Delaware than of even such an agricultural heartland state as Iowa.

With effective farmland preservation and an urban growth policy more compatible with agriculture, the economics of commercial farming seem very favorable in Delaware.

The report asks whether the time has come for Delaware and the rest of the northeast to reduce its overwhelming dependence on other food production regions. As western water sources are being critically depleted, there is mounting concern that crop production in western states, which relies heavily on irrigation, cannot sustain past levels of food shipments to the East.

Agriculture's open space contributions to Delaware's quality of life also come in for plenty of attention. Near urban areas especially, farmland is a major source of scenic beauty, wildlife habitat, and outdoor recreation.

Farmland is perhaps even more critical to water supply and air quality.

The report indicates that interest in farmland preservation is greatest in urban states, where people appreciate agriculture's open space and economic contributions as well as production of food and fiber.

The Committee's report offers 17 recommended actions. The first seven are initial steps the Governor and General Assembly can take to reduce State and local government's own adverse impacts on agricultural land use and to prepare for launching the voluntary farmland preservation program. Most of the remaining recommendations constitute the voluntary program, with its tax relief and other measures.

For a copy of the Final Report of the Governor's Advisory Committee on Farmland Preservation, write to Stephen D. Corazza, State Office of Management, Budget and Planning, P.O. Box 1401, Dover, DE 19901, or call 302/736 4271.

Plan before you plant

NEWARK, Del. — With all the spring catalogues coming out now, many home gardeners are planning this year's vegetable garden. Before you order every vegetable variety in the catalogue, it is wise to consider some important factors to insure a successful garden.

The first and one of the most important considerations is location. Most vegetables do best in full sunlight at least five to six hours during the middle of the day

Soil is another consideration It should contain adequate organic matter and be porous enough to allow for good drainage, root penetration and aeration

A deep, fine, sandy loam or silt loam is best. It's a good idea to have a soil test taken. This test indicated if the soil is too sweet or too sour for optimum growth.

Vegetables do best when the pH range is between 6.0 and 6 8 or the soil is just below neutral (midway between sweet and sour). Soil that is too acid can have lime applied to neutralize this condition.

After you've completed soil preparations, it's time to plan your crops. Before doing so, it is best to plan your garden on paper. Decide which vegetables you like best and the quantity you wish to plant.

For a family of four who likes tomatoes, eighteen plants assures enough tomatoes suitable for canning and fresh use. Yellow tomatoes are not suitable for canning because of their low acidity. Remember to plant the tall crops facing in such a way as not to shade the smaller plants from the sun. Spacing is an important consideration. Crops such as sweet corn, squash and melons take up a lot of room. Peppers, spinach and lettuce may be planted close together.

Your paper plan should include such things as: A list of the crops to be grown, number of rows, distance between rows, and planting dates for each vegetables. Using graph paper and setting up a scale will help.

Now comes the dilemma! What seeds to buy! Enough seed to last through the season should be purchased. When seeds are purchased they should be bought by variety name. Varieties differ as to time of maturity, quality, and inherited disease resistance

The success or failure of your garden may hinge upon the varieties chosen. Whenever possible, purcahse a variety which is disease and insect resistant and buy seed from a reputable company

E-town Young Farmers honor top members

MOUNT JOY — The Elizabethtown Young Farmers honored top members and installed new officers at their Sixth Annual Banquet held here Saturday

A crowd of about 250 farmers, spouses and guests also heard U S Representative Tom Coleman from Missouri's Sixth District deliver a powerful talk on past problems and the future of farming under the new Reagan Administration

He's a rousing speaker cast in the same mold as the late Missouri Congressman, Jerry Litton

Elizabethtown's 1981 Outstanding Young Farmer under the age of 30 is Jim Hershey Hershey runs a string of Holstein cattle which also brought him other honors

Hershey won the award for most improved herd in both the milk and the butterfat categories He increased his milk average by 1944 pounds and his fat output by 55 pounds per cow

Outstanding Young Farmer over 30 went to Ken Myer who has compiled a fine record as a dairy farmer

Mr and Mrs Robert Kauffman swept several coveted awards including the Community Service Award which they earned because of their civic, youth, and educational contributions to the community

Kauffmans also were cited for having the high herd in the E-town group for both milk and fat

Their rolling herd average last year was 18,049 pounds milk and 675 pounds fat

The award for high mature cow for milk went to Joe Wivell His Brandy cow made 25,282 pounds milk at three years 11 months of age.

Meadow Vista Farms, run by the Risser Brothers, took the remainder of the dairy awards

They had the high mature cow for fat, Hazel, who produced 950 pounds at five years, two months of age; the high two year old for milk, Amanda, who made 22,221 pounds at two years ten months, and the high two year old for fat, Cora, who pumped out a record of 811 pounds at two years, nine months

In addition to dairy awards, three corn tropheys were presented

Irwin W Engle was honored for making the highest corn silage yield. Gilbert Martin was cited for the highest ear corn yield. And Galen Kopp was named as having the highest shelled corn yield in the group.

Chapter Advisor William Erikson was honored by the group for his outstanding service and dedication to the group.

New officers of the Elizabethtown Young Farmers were installed Saturday night by James Fink, at podium. From left they include: Gilbert Martin, president; Jim Hershey, vice president; Mary Seward, secretary; Bob Brandt, treasurer; Joe Wivell, public relations director; Ken Myer, nominating committee chairman; and William Erikson, advisor.

The lion's share of awards presented Saturday night to members of the Elizabethtown Young Farmers went to Jim Hershey, left; Ken Myer, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kauffman.

Congressman tells E-town farmers about Reagan ag plans

BY CURT HARLER

MOUNT JOY — In a strongly partisan speech, Missouri Congressman Tom Coleman told Elizabethtown farmers of the Reagan Administration's plans to keep the family farmer off the endangered species list

Coleman spoke to the Elizabethtown Young Farmers Sixth Annual Banquet held in Mount Joy Saturday night

The Young Farmers also honored their outstanding members and installed new officers at the meeting

Rep Coleman, a republican from Missouri's sixth district, called the recent election a mandate for change He said the people are calling for fiscal responsibility and an end to government regulation.

Missouri Representative Tom Coleman, standing at mike, delivered a rousing talk to the Elizabethtown Young Farmers Saturday night. He was hosted by Pennsylvania Representative Robert Walker, left. Looking on at right is Irwin W. Engle, retiring president of the group.

"America was faced with a crisis of self-reliance, self-confidence, and leadership," he told the farmers in a talk baited with sweet talk but later barbed with an outline of what budget cuts will face the farmer

Coleman pointed out the rising costs faced by farmers throughout the country

He said the cost of producing an acre of soybeans has risen 21 percent in the past year, wheat 23 percent, corn 24 percent, fertilizer 26 percent, equipment 40 percent and fuel 41 percent

To add insult to injury, the American farmer gets just 32 percent of the food dollar

Coupled with that, the farmer is languishing under high interest rates, Coleman noted And, he said, that interest is not going for fur coats or stereos, but to feed the nation

Coleman, himself a third term representative and a member of the House Agriculture Committee, pointed out that only 40 of the 435 seats in the U S House of Representatives are for districts that have 10 percent of their people on farms

Both Coleman, and his host for the evening U S Rep. Robert Walker from Pennsylvania's 16th District, represent such groups

"We almost have a quorum," Coleman quipped.

Still, he pointed out, there are more farmers in the United States than there are auto industry and transportation workers

Coleman said he felt sorry for former Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, who served under Carter

He never really did run the Agriculture Department, Coleman snipped.

Coleman noted that half of the Department's budget goes for food stamps Coleman is head of the House Subcommittee which oversees the food stamp program

He said just 15 percent of USDA's budget goes to farmer-oriented programs.

"We are going to rectify that," he promised.

He said business has the Commerce Department, labor the Labor Department.

"We intend to make the Agriculture Department for farmers, not a statistic-collecting department," he said.

Coleman said there will be a change of direction in USDA under Reagan

Noting the National Debt is almost one trillion dollars, he promised the Administration would work to cut government spending and balance the budget.

Pointing out interest on the debt comes to $95 billion each year, he said one of the reasons the farmer has to pay such high interest rates is competition from the U S. Government for funds

Then Coleman listed the fiscal tightening that will take place within USDA.

He said he expects a reduction of $80 million this year and $90 million next year in the Farmers Home Administration budget. Disaster loans will be eliminated

In return, the government will allow $500 million more in operating loans.

$500 million will be cut from the rural water funding

The Rural Electric Association's direct loan program will be cut Gasohol promotion will go from USDA to the Energy Department.

In an item of interest to local farmers he noted the dairy subsidy will be cut by $1 6 billion in surplus dairy purchases

He said a reduction to 75 percent of parity and a one time per year review would result in a savings of $1 1 billion

"We don't know if we have the votes to get that done, he admitted But he promised food stamp cuts and close budget control

He said he sees an increase in ag research budgets, continued support for farmer cooperatives, and restraint on embargoes.

Calling the current grain embargo leveled against Russia for invading Afghanistan a no win situation for Reagan" he proposed paying farmers 100 percent of parity for any commodity that is embargoed

Even when it was hot and dry in Pennsylvania,
DEKALB hybrids came through.

XL-25a Yield plus standability.

Tough XL-25a stood up to the drought—and came out with big early yields. XL-25a is a winning combination of yield power, disease resistance, high test weight grain and standability that's second to none.

XL-55a Yield plus fast drydown.

Even in stress-filled 1980, XL-55a came through with top-notch yields. And Pennsylvania farmers like the way fast drying XL-55a helps beat the bad fall weather and the high cost of drying grain. Medium maturity.

XL-70 New for full season yield power.

Exceptionally long ears packed with big, deep kernels make XL-70 a winning hybrid for hefty full season yields. Really fills up the bin or silo fast. And XL-70 is bred to stay healthy and productive all season long.

Southern Lancaster dairymen cited for herd averages

QUARRYVILLE — Six area dairymen were honored for having high producing herds this past year at the seventeenth annual District 5 Meeting for Atlantic Breeders Cooperative held a week ago at United Methodist Church, Quarryville

Receiving Certificates of Merit for having top Dairy Herd Improvement Association averages were Gusty Crest Farm, Lancaster, (31.0 Holstein cows, 18,295M, 688F); John M Harnish, Lancaster, (158.0 Holstein cows, 19,323M, 682F); J. Robert Kindig, Conestoga, (55 0 Holstein cows, 16,967M, 665F), J. Ray Ranck, Paradise, (44 0 Holstein cows, 17,463M, 650F), Thomas C Lapp, Gap, (59 0 Holstein cows, 17,399M, 621F), and Don Ranck, Paradise, (70 0 Holstein cows, 17,588M, 566F)

All herds were at least 15 percent above the state average for milk or butterfat production last year, while at least two-thirds of the cows in these herds are progeny of Atlantic sires

Awards were presented by C P Brantley, Atlantic's Field Supervisor for this area

District 5 Director James G Kreider, Quarryville, informed members that 1980 was the most successful business year in Atlantic's history Service Technicians provided more than 300,000 services, and semen sales increased to all members who used the Cooperative's services last year

A narrated slide program presented by management representative N Alan Bair, Lancaster, covered the topics of proper sire selection, good conception, and finances of the organization.

Members present voted for District representatives for the coming year. Election results will be announced in the next issue of the Cooperative's monthly newsletter, since more than one meeting is held in most of Atlantic's 16 Districts

Purebred cattle get appraised on individual basis

LANCASTER — Effective Monday, indemnity payments for purebred cattle slaughtered because of brucellosis will be based on appraisal of individual animals, a U.S. Department of Agriculture spokesman announced.

The new procedure, affecting purebred cattle only, replaces rates in effect since June 27, 1980, when brucellosis indemnities for cattle were revised to reflect the changing market value of replacement animals

Paul Becton, director of the national brucellosis eradication program for USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, said interested persons have until April 24, to comment. Meanwhile, the new appraisal procedure will be in effect through the 60-day period at which time the action will be reviewed in the light of public comment.

Becton said the rates for purebreds announced June 27 were found to be excessive Since that time, about 30 percent of available indemnity funds have gone to pay for purebred cattle, although they accounted for only about four percent of all brucellosis reactors.

"This obvious disparity had to be corrected," said Becton. "We were paying rates that were equitable for top quality purebreds. But many purebreds turning up as brucellosis reactors were not top quality."

Brucellosis also called Bang's disease, is an easily spread bacterial disease of cattle, swine and other animals that may be transmitted from animals to human beings.

Though greatly reduced, the disease still costs U.S. cattle owners about $45 million annually in reduced calf crops and lower milk yields brought on by abortions, weak calves and slow breeding

The revised indemnity rates for nonregistered cattle, also announced June 27, will remain in effect. These rates are reviewed quarterly and revised as necessary to make sure they reflect current average replacement values.

The indemnity change for purebred cattle was scheduled to be published in the February 23 Federal Register. Anyone desiring a copy or wishing to comment on the change may write to the Deputy Administrator, USDA, APHIS, Veterinary Services, Federal Bldg., Room 805, Hyattsville, Md. 20782

Maryland honors state corn champs

EASTON, Md. — Farmers in the Upper Bay area continued their six-year domination of the official Maryland corn yield contest. The 1980 results were announced in Easton during the seventy-fourth annual meeting of the Maryland Crop Improvement Association.

Baltimore, Kent and Queen Annes counties accounted for all of the top 12 placings, with an average yield of 167.11 bushels per acre in a hot, dry summer. This was 2.3 times the estimated 1980 state average of 72 bushels per acre.

The winning yield was 175.66 bushels per acre, produced by Vernon R. Foster of Hereford (Baltimore County). Foster planted De Kalb XL 71 hybrid in cornstalks by the no-till method on May 16. So he has also been honored as Maryland's no-till corn champion for 1980.

Another Baltimore County farming operation, Chilcoat and Peters, Inc., of Sparks, placed second in the state contest with a yield of 173.86 bushels per acre.

Chilcoat and Peters won the 1976 state contest with a near-record yield of 205.37 bushels per acre

This was the sixth consecutive year that a Baltimore county entry has won the state corn yield contest. And it is the fifth time in those six years that the winning yield was produced by the no-tillage method.

Third highest yield in the 1980 contest was produced by Craig Higgs, 9, of Henderson (Queen Annes County), a first-year 4-H member. His yield was 171.82 bushels per acre.

Two Kent county growers placed fourth and fifth with nearly identical yields. William B. Bankhead II of Rock Hall produced 169.8 bushels per acre, and Edgar B. Lusby of Kennedyville had 169.3 bushels per acre. Both used a chisel plow and planted Pioneer hybrid corn in 30-inch rows.

Close behind was William H. Warns, Jr., of Freeland (Baltimore County) with a yield of 169.27 bushels per acre. Warns used conventional tillage methods.

Soil pH in the top 12 Maryland cornfields last year ranged from 6.0 to 6.6. Nearly all of the top contestants used atrazine in combination with another herbicide as a pre-emergent treatment for broad spectrum weed control.

Furadan was used in every case for insect control.

The official Maryland state corn yield record has stood since 1965. That mark is 207.59 bushels per acre. It was set by an Eastern Shore partnership which included Edward H. Boyd of Wye Mills (Talbot county).

The official state corn yield contest has been conducted each year since 1952 as part of the crop improvement programs of the Cooperative Extension Service at the University of Maryland.

Yield measurements are supervised by Extension agricultural agents in participating counties, and awards to state winners are presented each year by the Maryland Crop Improvement Association. An official state soybean yield contest is operated in a similar manner.

Two award recipients from west of the Chesapeake Bay compare notes during the seventy-fourth annual meeting of the Maryland Crop Improvement Association last week in Easton. They are Vernon R. Foster of Hereford, Baltimore County, right; and Charles B. Osborn III of Aberdeen, Harford County. Foster won the 1980 state corn contest with a yield of 175.66 bushels per acre. He was also named state no-till corn champion. Osborn received the MCIA award for outstanding service to Maryland agriculture. And he was elected to the association's board of directors for a three-year term.

Unpaid fines cause trouble

HARRISBURG — Hunters who have neglected or refused to pay their fines for violating the state's game laws will have their hunting privileges suspended as the result of new legislation enacted during 1980.

Under a recently-adopted amendment to the Game Law, it is now possible for the Game Commission to suspend hunting licenses for failure to pay the fines, or for failure to respond to citations for Game Law violations filed before magistrates.

Game Commission Law Enforcement Chief Gerald D Kirkpatrick said, "There are numerous cases where Game Law violators who have been found guilty by district magistrates are placed on a variety of time payment arrangements, and, in many cases, for extended periods of time. In many instances, they make required payments for a time, and then simply ignore future time payment obligations

"When this happens, the cases are already several months old, defendants may move and cannot be located, and, as a result, many of the cases are never finalized and eventually are discontinued."

As a result, the Game Commission's files are growing with these kinds of cases, which are classic examples of "beating the system." At the moment, Game Commission records show that more than $100,000 in penalties is due in these cases

License suspension will not be imposed on those who are meeting their time-payment obligations There are hundreds of hunters who have been found guilty of violating the Game Law, but the offenders are taking lots and lots of time to pay off their fines.

The dragged-out procedure is extremely expensive to the sportsmen of the state and a drain on the Game Fund, since many man-hours of time are involved in keeping track of unsettled prosecutions and recording and depositing all of the payments.

Some offenders are paying off their penalties at the rate of five dollars a month. Others are paying as little as one dollar per month. In one case, the offender is paying a $200 fine at the rate of 60 cents a month.

In all of the time-payment cases, the size of the payments and the duration of the time involved have been established by the courts.

Those who are making an honest effort to meet their payments will not be affected by the new Game Law amendment Only those who fail to meet their obligations face hunting license suspensions.

The Game Commission is hopeful that the suspension of hunting license privileges will constitute a pressing reason for violators of the Game Law to respnd to citations and/or pay the full penalties imposed for infractions of the law

USDA changes crop report date

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Department of Agriculture will issue a Prospective Plantings report on March 19 at 3 p m. EST, rather than on April 16 as previously announced, according to James L. Olson, chairman of the Crop Reporting Board.

The report will reflect farmers' 1981 intentions for the 48 conterminous states for soybeans, corn, durum, and other spring wheat, oats, barley, flaxseed, cotton, rice, sorghum, sweet potatoes, dry edible beans and peas, sunflowers, peanuts, sugarbeets; and acreage for harvest of hay and tobacco.

The acreage intention estimates will be based on a survey taken as of March 1 for 36 states and combined with data collected as of January 1 for 12 states.

The Crop Reporting Board issued acreage intentions of farmers in 16 states on January 21; however, for the March release four of these states-Texas, Arkansas, Louisana, and Mississippi-are being surveyed again to update information.

His previous offices include treasurer of the University of Maryland's Board of Regents, president of the Cecil County Fair and the Cecil County Farm Bureau, director of the Cecil County Governmental Study Commission, and legislative chairman of the Cecil County PTA. He served as president of the Maryland Farm Bureau for six years.

Maryland dairy farmer and agricultural leader F. Grove Miller, is 1981 recipient of U of D Agricultural Alumni Association's George M. Worrilow Award.

The George M. Worrilow Award has been presented annually since 1970.

Previous recipients include: Ed Schabinger, J. Frank Gordy, Edward V. Carmean Warren C. Newton, Edward H. Ralph, Preston C. Townsend, Claude E. Phillips, Ralph J. O'Day, J. Allen Frear, Jr., William R. Ratlege, and Thurman G. Adams, Jr.

This is the first time the award has gone to the Maryland resident.

Del. to hold horse clinic

HARRINGTON, Del — Delaware 4-H Horsemanship Clinic will be held on March 14, 1981, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Delaware State Fairgrounds in Harrington.

The clinic, which is sponsored by the University of Delaware Extension Service, the Delaware Quarter Horse Association and the Delaware 4-H Horse Advisory Committee, is open to all interested horsemen, but young people are especially invited to attend.

Cost is $3 per person pre-registered, $5 on the day of the clinic. Luncheon may be purchased for an additional $2.50.

Horse trainer and showman Marc De Champlain, of Rockwell, N.C. will discuss proper dress, selection of horses, equine careers, showmanship and horsemanship.

De Champlain, who holds an American Quarter Horse Association judge's card, has trained such premier horses as Cold Stream Guard, Rugged Dell, Jacket's Gypsy and Reward's Choice

Dr. Joseph Haines, of Fair Hill Equine Veternary Clinic, Fair Hill, Md. will discuss first aid for horses, with emphasis on care of leg and foot problems.

To pre-register for the clinic, contact the State 4-H Office 302/738-2509 or Dr. C.M. Reitnour 302/738-2523. Both offices are located in Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark, DE 19711.

Protein may help detect disease early

LITITZ — Research is currently underway to determine whether a protein found in cow's milk and human body fluids can be used as a marker for early detection of disease.

The protein, beta-2-microglobulin, identified by U S Department of Agriculture scientists in cow's milk, is being examined by researchers at Rockefeller University in New York to determine what possible role the protein plays in the human immune system.

At the same time, researchers at USDA's Beltsville Agricultural Research Center in Maryland are studying the protein to determine whether the presence of elevated amounts of beta-2-microglobulin in the milk or body fluid of cows is an early warning signal of disease

Anson R Bertrand, USDA director of science and education, said the researchers are in the first stages of the project, trying to develop specific antibodies that will lock into the beta-2-microglobulin and measure its level in cow's milk

Bertrand said these research efforts stem from what began as a basic research project 17 years ago to study the fundamental properties and components of milk That groundwork now appears to be leading to new methods of detecting certain diseases and a better understanding of how animals and humans fight disease

In 1963, M L Groves, a dairy research specialist, and his colleagues at USDA's Eastern Regional Research Center in Philadelphia, discovered a new protein in cow's milk

Named lactollin, meaning a proteinaceous substance derived from milk, it was isolated in a very pure form, crystallized and characterized in terms of composition.

Although samples were made available to scientists who wished to conduct experiments with this new protein, no new information concerning lactollin, it turned out, would be forthcoming for many years

"A discovery had been made but its relevance had not been realized or appreciated," said Groves

In 1968, two scientists from the Institute of Medical Chemistry in Sweden discovered a protein in the urine of cadmium-poisioned people This protein, which they named beta-2-microglobulin, has received a great deal of attention by medical research scientists because of its relationship to immunoglobulins and its association with other cell surface proteins involved in the human body's defenses against disease

Immunoglobulins are antibodies which offer protection against viruses and bacterial pathogens. Beta-2-microglobulin is a protein complexed with certain cell surface proteins and is present in minute quantities in body fluids Although its specific biological function still is not known, its relationship to the immunoglobulins and to cell surface proteins suggest an important role in the body's disease defense mechanism

Scientists do know that beta-2-microglobulin is present in elevated amounts in mammals suffering from certain diseases For example, in the urine of animals with kidney damage, it is secreted at levels 1,000 times normal

Studies on beta-2-microglobulin isolated from several mammalian species were reported in 1976. After reading those studies it became apparent to Groves that the composition of beta-2-microglobulin resembled the protein lactollin, which he had discovered 13 years earlier.

Further research in collaboration with Rae Greenberg, another USDA scientist, established that lactollin was the bovine form of beta-2-microglobulin. This discovery has led to a readily available supply of beta-a-microglobulin which can be easily crystallized for further examination. Bovine beta-1-microglobulin is the only type that can be crystallized

Researchers at Rockefeller University are conducting x-ray crystallographic studies on the bovine beta-2-microglobulin to develop a three-dimensional picture of the substance. This three-dimensional view should provide scientists with more information on the actual function of the protein

At the same time, Groves and Greenberg are determining the sequence of amino acids which make up the protein, to allow for more detailed interpretation of the x-ray data.

The researchers hope that one day they can answer such basic questions as what role beta-2-microglobulin plays in the body's immune system and how certain cell surface proteins recognize foreign substances in the body, leading to a series of events which ultimately destroy the invaders.

When they do, they will be cashing in on an investment in basic research made many years ago.

Berks goatherders to meet

LEESPORT — Mike Moore, Nutritionist from the Ralston Purina Company will be the guest speaker at the March meeting of the Berks Goatherders.

To be held on March 18th, at the Berks County Agricultural Center, the meeting will start at 7:30 p.m.

Moore will discuss nutrition in relationship to goats for proper growth, and milk production.

All goat owners are invited to attend and join the goatherders club.

Talbot County again tops Maryland soybean yields

EASTON, Md. — For the second consecutive year, Maryland's top soybean growers hail from central Talbot county on the Eastern Shore The 1980 state champions are Cecil H. Gannon and Sons of Easton with a yield of 57 2 bushels per acre.

They were honored in the Tidewater Inn at Easton during the seventy-fourth annual meeting of the Maryland Crop Improvement Association

The Gannons' winning field is located about five miles northwest of Easton-less than five miles from last year's winner, Maurice E. Collins, also of Easton They planted certified Essex soybeans in June in 30-inch rows at a rate of 43 pounds of seed per acre.

Lorox and Lasso were used for pre-emergent weed control This was followed by one cultivation during the growing season.

Fertilizer application during 1980 had a heavy emphasis on phosphorus and potassium Lime had been applied in the previous year at a rate of one ton per acre

Thimet was used for insect control. But last summer's hot, dry weather was a major force helping to depress insect populations in Maryland fields and gardens

Runnersup in the 1980 official Maryland soybean yield contest were the Taylor brothers—Claude and Wesley—of Preston (Caroline County) Their yield was 55 8 bushels per acre; and they, too, planted Essex soybeans But cultural methods were considerably different from those used by the Gannons.

The Taylors double-cropped their soybeans with barley, planting the beans on June 17 in the narrow 14-inch rows. They utilized conventional tillage but did not cultivate

Caroline County also furnished the 1980 state no-till soybean champion-William Greenage, operator of Beechwood Farm at Preston

His yield was 53 8 bushels per acre with Williams soybeans planted in 20-inch rows on June 15 Greenage placed fifth in the overall statewide standings.

Seven of the top 12 contestants in the 1980 Maryland soybean yield contest came from Talbot county, three from Caroline county, and two from Somerset county. All of the high three Caroline county fields were irrigated.

The top 12 contestants produced an average yield of 53 3 bushels per acre in a hot, dry summer which saw the over-all state average yield for soybeans fall to 24 bushels per acre

Last year's top 10 soybean growers in Maryland had an average yield of 54 0 bushels per acre In 1979, the top 10 averaged 57.38 bushels per acre

Nine of the top 12 planted Essex soybeans; two planted Williams, and one had Union, a new variety from the same breeding program as Williams

Maryland's yield record for soybeans, 69.8 bushels per acre, was set in 1976 by Dale Reagan of Federalsburg (Caroline County) with irrigated Williams soybeans

The official statewide corn and soybean yield contests have been conducted each year since 1952 as part of the crop improvement programs of the Extension Service at the University of Maryland.

Yield measurements are supervised by extension agricultural agents in participating counties

Delaware County suffers worst gypsy defoliation

LIMA — Damage by the leaf-eating gypsy moth caterpillars during the Summer of 1980 was the greatest ever in Delaware County, according to James Balsama, Delaware County Gypsy Moth Coordinator, and James J McKeehen, Delaware County Agricultural Agent.

The insect has been found in very small numbers in the county for many years and only in a few locations prior to 1980 was the gypsy moth larvae causing homeowners serious problem.

However, in the Summer of 1980 the homeowners in about eight municipalities suffered significant tree defoliation involving many hundreds of acres.

Unfortunately, Fall and Winter observations of gypsy moth egg masses, the overwintering stage of the insect, indicate that the 1981 Spring and Summer season will see a continued explosion of the gypsy moth caterpillar population in the same municipalities and perhaps several new locations

The gypsy moth is probably the most important defoliating insect of hardwood trees especially oak in the Northeastern United States. This insect has infested and killed hundreds of thousands of acres of woodland. Much effort and money has been spent to control or eliminate this pest. Yet, it continues to spread

Delaware County Council Members were aware and concerned about the damage by the gypsy moth to the trees on the properties of county residents, public parks, and other wooded areas. Consequently, the County officials arranged for more than 1500 acres of seriously infested areas to be aerial sprayed in mid-Spring of 1981.

The spraying will be done by The State Bureau of Forestry, Department of Environmental Resources in cooperative arrangement with Delaware County Government.

The guidelines of the Bureau of Forestry require that aerial spraying can only be done in residential areas that are heavily wooded and over 50 acres in size. In addition, to qualify for spraying, there must be a minimum of 250 egg packets per acre.

Landowners or residents in the spray areas will be notified by mail in early March

Legal notices will be published in local County newspapers in early March defining the exact areas to be sprayed.

Grangers offer farm cookbook

The cookbook contains about 600 recipes from Maryland Grange members

There are seven indexed categories 1-appetizers, pickles, relishes; 2-soups, salads, vegetables; 3-Main Dishes; 4-Bread, rolls, pastry, 5-Cake, cookies, desserts, 6-Candy, Jellies, preserves; 7-Beverages and miscellaneous

A3127....94 bu/A

This yield of A3127 was reported in a summary of results, Maximum Yield Soybean Experiment, by Dr. Roy L. Flannery, Rutgers University. In this trial A3127 and Elf were compared in various fertility and irrigated environments. A3127 was the top yielder in 26 or 32 different environments.*

Farmers are reporting record yields of A3127 also. Kenneth Gatton, What Cheer Iowa won the Iowa Master Soybean Growers Contest with a yield of 71.01 bu/a of A3127.

NOTE - Asgrow A3127 is rated 5 days earlier than Williams

Asgrow suggests growers review entire test results for complete information

1980 Yield Results at Landisville, Pa. Research FARM of Penn State Univ. show Asgrow A3127 as a top yielder for second cropping.

For solid seeding soybeans in 1981 - Choose A3127.

Water needs meeting set for March 18

PHILADELPHIA — Lt. Governor William W. Scranton will address the Eleventh Annual Pennsylvania Environmental Conference at 1:30 p m. March 18 in Harrisburg.

"Meeting Pennsylvania's Water Needs in the 80's" is the theme of the Conference, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Environmental Council, a state-wide, citizens' action organization

More than 200 leaders of government, industry, labor, academia, citizens groups and the environmental community are expected to attend the two-day conference at the Marriott Motel in Harrisburg March 18 and 19 Delegates will have an opportunity to hear 70 experts on water discuss how Pennsylvania can solve its water problems.

Among the speakers will be Congressman Robert W Edgar, Clifford L Jones, Secretary of the Department of Environmental Resources, Dr Ruth Patrick, former Chairman of the Academy of Natural Sciences; former State Senator Franklin Kury and Leo Eisel, former Director of U.S. Water Resources Council, Washington.

During the two-day conference, delegates will participate in nine Discussion Groups dealing with water quantity and seven workshops concerned with specific problems affecting water quality

Panel and Workshop participants include Penrose Hallowell, Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture and Deputy Secretary J. Luther Snyder; William Marrazzo, Philadelphia Water Commissioner, and Richard Cosentino, Pittsburgh Water Director, as well as three Depty Secretaries of Environmental Resources, Peter S. Duncan, Walter A. Lyon and William B. Middendorf, and Dr. Maurice Goddard, prominent environmentalist and former Secretary of the Department of Environmental Resources.

Trends complicate buying

UNIVERSITY PARK — It takes a consultant to pick the right machinery mix for a farm these days, lament many crops farmers of the East.

An advisor may be a good idea, according to an agricultural engineer at The Pennsylvania State University

Practices such as use of minimum tillage can conserve fuel and reduce erosion on hilly fields common to the East But different equipment may be needed The right type and size of equipment also enhances efficiency of field operations, states Donald R Daum, an equipment specialist with the Cooperative Extension Service

Equipment choices are influenced by numerous trends Those trends include greater fuel economy, bigger equipment, and minimum tillage concepts In addition, farmers are seeing more diversity in types and sizes Some implements are new to the East and a few are multi-operation tools

The net result of these trends is more choice and confusion in selecting a mix of implements and tractors for a specific range of uses Many of these machines are new to the East

Selecting modern machinery systems involves substantial capital risk

"We see the need for professionals who can advise farmers in the selection of machinery systems This advisor must be knowledgeable in helping farmers select equipment systems tailored to a particular operation, specific cropping systems and interests of a manager," says Daum

An advisor has resources available, such as economic studies, research data, and computers These resources enable him to consider many more factors in these important management decisions

Even an informed farm operator might benefit from assistance of a professional farm consultant or a specialist from the Cooperative Extension Service

How to outfox foxtails

LITITZ — If foxtails are so easy to control, why do corn growers from coast to coast rank them as their number one weed pest?

One reason is that plant's tremendous ability to produce seed. A single foxtail plant can produce as many as 20 panicles, each of which can produce up to 1000 viable seeds. That's up to 20,000 seeds from just one plant.

Even if you get 99 percent control from your grass herbicide, the one percent that does escape can produce enough seed to reinfest the field the following year.

University agronomists speculate that farmers may have become "spoiled" by the reliability of today's popular grass herbicides, and many now take foxtail control for granted.

This, coupled with the spread of unfamiliar, more vigorous varieties, has made foxtail what it is today: a pesky nuisance to almost every corn grower in the nation.

Accordingly, many corn growers have taken the same undiscriminating approach when selecting a grass herbicide and adjusting application rates.

Green and yellow foxtail are the most common varieties in the United States, and corn growers can control them readily with a medium rate of Sutan +, Eradicane, Lasso, Dual, or Prowl.

More vigorous varieties such as giant yellow, giant green, bristly, robust white and robust purple are reportedly increasing every year, particularly in the Northcentral and Midwestern regions. Knotroot foxtail, a rhizome-producing perennial variety, has been spotted in isolated areas of the Southeast.

As their names imply, each foxtail variety differs in color, size, texture and vigor.

However, they also differ in root growth size, weight and density of panicle, and in the way they react to herbicides at different rates.

It's important corn growers familiarize themselves with these varieties so they can use effective herbicide rates and still stay within product label guidelines

Each one has distinct characteristics, but in the spring, an untrained eye may not be able to distinguish green foxtail from giant green foxtail The variety of foxtail in a farmer's field may not even be on his herbicide label.

For this reason, agronomists urge farmers to scout their fields when foxtails are mature and easy to identify. Peculiar varieties can be brought to the local extension office for positive identification control advice

Field scouting will also help farmers evaluate the herbicide or herbicide rate used in the spring.

Low rates of atrazine are not usually effective in controlling foxtails Each foxtail variety has shown varying degrees of triazine resistance, especially the two robust varieties

Agronomists generally recommend a grass herbicides to control foxtails in corn, and atrazine to pick up the broadleaf weeds.

Bladex will control more annual grasses than atrazine, so farmers might get better foxtail control if they tank mix a grass herbicide with Bladex instead of atrazine.

If broadleaf weeds are still a problem, he can apply a three-way tank mix of a grass herbicide with low rates of atrazine and Bladex. Sutan+, Eradicane and Lasso have been cleared by the EPA for three-way mixes with atrazine and Bladex.

Incorporated herbicides will give farmers an edge in controlling foxtails during dry springs, since surface-applied materials require rain within seven to 10 days of application for activation. Farmers can count on getting this needed rain in most years, but agronomists caution that it is a gamble if aggressive annual weeds such as foxtail are a problem.

When the herbicide is incorporated, growers know it's in the soil working, catching the foxtails as they germinate. Since foxtails have tremendous reproductive potential, farmers are taking a big risk if they don't incorporate.

Foxtail seed can remain dormant for about five years. Robust foxtails, however, do not require cold, wet weather for germination, making them a more tenacious variety.

Robust foxtails can also germinate from as deep as four to six inches, although emerging plants will be weak.

If a field has a severe infestation of foxtails, or if some of the more vigorous varieties are a problem, Eradicane might be preferred over the other grass herbicides. Eradicane is a little stronger, but it will not last as long in the soil as the other grass herbicides.

Conservation tillage systems will keep foxtail seed close to the surface, but this doesn't mean it will be more of a problem. Competition from more aggressive annuals such as fall panicum and crabgrass — both common in minimum tillage — may outcompete foxtails and the weed will be less noticable.

This, of course, is just trading off one weed problem for another. It's a good idea to plow reduced tillage fields every few years to prevent a heavy buildup of weed seeds.

Agronomists also say that commonly used grass killers in corn will not be as effective when applied to reduced-tillage surfaces. Clods of soil will actually shield foxtail seed from herbicide treatments.

For good foxtail control, fields should be disced before applying preplant or preemergence herbicides to prepare a smooth surface and ensure uniform herbicide distribution.

Rotating fields from row crops to hay is still considered an excellent means of foxtail control, but this is not always economical in terms of land use.

While late-emerging foxtails are not considered a threat to a good stand of corn, they cannot be ignored. In addition to being sources of seed, these foxtails and other weeds represent a direct loss in yield.

In terms of BTU and calorie intake, the energy consumed by these weeds is energy that could have gone into the corn instead. The total dry weight of foxtail in the field can be subtracted from the total dry weight of the corn.

Planting corn in narrower rows, says 30-inch rows instead of 38-inch rows, will help shade foxtails and prevent germination late in the season. But again, the few plants that do emerge will have the potential to reinfest the field next year, especially if a combine or corn picker helps to spread the seed.

While easy to control, foxtails continue to plague row crop producers.

Weed specialists say a foxtail plant will only grow as tall as it has to. In field corn, for instance, foxtails will grow much taller than they would if growing on the side of the road.

Some of the foxtails in the Corn Belt can reach heights 10 feet. When they blow in the wind and lodge, they can spread seed in a 10-foot radius of the plant

Farmers can take every precaution when applying their herbicides, but their efforts will be in vain if the foxtails growing in fencerows and uncropped areas are not controlled. Mowing foxtails before they go to seed will help curtail infestations. Spot spraying is another alternative, but agronomists say this is not always economical.

While it's not possible to totally eradicate foxtails, farmers can rely on the various control programs to prevent economic crop competion.

N.J. fruit growers to meet

PLUCKEMIN, N.J — The Extension Service of Rugers University will host the 1981 North Jersey Fruit Growers' Meeting on March 10, at the Watchung View Inn, Route 206, just south of Pluckemin, N.J.

This is an all-day educational update meeting for commercial fruit growers in North and Central Jersey.

The meeting is scheduled from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., with a luncheon served at the Watchung View Inn

The meeting will feature guest speakers from Cook College, Rutgers University, on such topics as insect, disease, and weed control in tree fruits. Also, an apple and peach roundup, will cover modern cultural practices.

Steve Blizzard, research pomologist at the University of West Virginia, and Professor Tara Auxt, extension specialist in Pomology at the University of West Virginia, will talk on tree fruit training systems around the world, and growth response to different tree fruit planting systems in West Virginia, respectively.

In addition, Win Cowgill, area fruit agent, Rutgers University, will moderate a grower discussion panel on Trickle Irrigation in Tree Fruits, a timely topic in lieu of our drought situation.

For additional information and a copy of the program, contact Win Cowgill, at the Warren County Extension Service, Court House, Belvidere; Telephone: 201/475-5361, Extension 131.

How to save N in livestock waste

LITITZ — Livestock producers can improve the value of manure by fortifying it with nitrogen, but to get an added boost, researchers have found that a nitrogen stabilizer can reduce the amount of supplemental nitrogen needed and improve results at the same time

'Anhydrous ammonia and nitrogen stabilizer added to hog manure have increased yields in corn considerably," says Darrell Nelson, agronomist at Purdue University "Our tests were done using fall, and in some instances, spring applications of manure, nitrogen and n trogen stabilizer."

Purdue trials over the past three years show that adding N-Serve 24E nitrogen stabilizer to manure can reduce N losses caused by leaching and denitrification

By using stabilized nitrogen, the levels of nitrogen, phosphorous and potassium are brought closer to corn requirements, with the stabilizer serving to keep N available to the crop throughout the growing season

Fortifying manure with stabilizer and N can justify injecting the same volume of liquid waste over twice as many acres.

"There are three things to remember when using fortified manure," Nelson states "First, use the correct amount of manure and know its composition Second, use one pound of N stabilizer per acre and mix it into the manure thoroughly Third, be sure to inject or incorporate the mixture quickly "

In test plots of field corn at Purdue, an unfertilized control plot yielded 53 bushels per acre

Another plot with 14 tons of manure with 82 pounds available N yielded 75 bushel per acre; adding 0.7 pounds of N stabilizer produced 142 bushel per acre

Another plot spread with 27 tons of manure containing 158 pounds of N produced 117 bushel per acre; adding 1.4 pounds of N stabilizer pushed the yield up to 181 bushel per acre

A comparison plot yielded 185 bushels with 150 pounds of anhydrous ammonia; with 0 5 pounds of stabilizer, the yield edged up to 189 bushel per acre.

These tests were conducted on silt loam soil, using slurry from anaerobic pits under slotted-floor confinement buildings Since manure varies in composition, it is important to analyze it before adding anything

Nelson found that when he used a 1800-gallon tanker and planned to apply two loads of manure per acre, considering the fact that one quart of stabilizer contains 0.5 pounds of active ingredient, he needed one quart per load That brought the cost of the nitrogen stabilizer to about $10 per acre.

Not all experiments have been limited to universities An Illinois farmer, for example, had a six bushel per acre increase by using nitrogen stabilizer and N with his hog manure

He added nitrogen stabilizer to a tank about half filled with manure, then injected anhydrous into it by removing a pressure gauge near the tank bottom and inserting a half-inch steel pipe drilled with holes A nitrogen regulator was used to meter in the anhydrous

Nelson says stabilizer and nitrogen can also be used to fortify cattle and poultry waste, sewage sludge and food processing wastes. However, research with these materials has not been extensive

The purdue tests used N-Serve 24E, an emulsifiable formulation Another form, N-Serve 24, is more commonly injected directly into anhydrous nurse tanks or impregnated on urea. To date, Dow's N-Serve is the only commercially available nitrogen stabilizer.

In all applications where a stabilizer is used, the fertilizer should be mixed into the soil to prevent volatilization of the stabilizer.

If surface applied, the slurry should be incorporated soon after application

N.J. vegetable growers to meet

HACKETTSTOWN, N J — The Northwest Jersey Vegetables Growers Meeting will be sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Services of Sussex and Warren Counties

It will be held on Monday, March 16, at the Clarendon Hotel, 109 Grand Ave., Hackettstown, from 9 a m to 3:30 p.m.

This educational meeting is open to all commercial growers in the North Jersey area The program will include specialists from Cook College, Rutgers University, who will update growers on the latest information regarding insect, disease, and weed control for vegetable crops.

Featured on the program will be Professor Bruce Barbour, Sussex County agricultural agent, who will moderate a grower panel on farmers markets in 1981

In addition, the latest developments in Integrated Pest Management will be discussed by Professor Win Cowgill, Warren County Agricultural Agent, and Professor Dan Prostak of Rutgers University.

Also featured will be Professor Arthur Brown, Atlantic County Vegetable Agent, who will speak on his work with plastic mulch and trickle irrigation in South Jersey.

Other topics will include cover crops and gel seeding for vegetable crops

Reservations for the buffet luncheon, available at the Clarendon Hotel, must be made by March 9 The cost of the luncheon will be $6 Coffee and Danish will be served in the morning, courtesy of the commercial companies who will have an industry show and tell at the meeting.

For reservations and additional information, contact Win Cowgill, Warren County Agricultural Agent, at teh Court House, Belvidere, telephone 201/475-5361, Extension 131

Hats highlight Holstein convention

WHITE HAVEN – A hat-design contest added a touch of competition, and fun, fellowship to the state Holstein convention's annual ladies luncheon in the Tree Top Dining Room of the Pocono Hersney

The highest of the high-fashion creations was on the head of Roxanne Kauffman, who covered a cardboard base with bright green felt and appliqued a farm scene over the hay and broad brim. Her design took top honors in the largest category.

Most creative designation went to Lancaster County's Pat Landis, who sliced a square plastic jug to fit her head, covered it with milk filters and black felt cutouts in the fashion of a Holstein cow.

Most dairy related was a toy cow on a hat base fashioned by Ruth King.

But the hat that won the most laughs, and the most humorous award, was one modeled by Lily Nichol, wife of Holstein executive secretary Bill Nichol.

Designed by a friend, Lily's hat was a knitted ski-cap type, with four knitted mitten fingers working into the top of the cap. Labeled the udder warmer, the white yarn hat was emblazoned in blue with the initials of Penn State University, which the Nichol family ardently supports.

Carry on the fun theme of the day was the luncheon fashion show, dubbed Tongue and Chic, which featured a satire of styles aimed at farm women.

Keynote speaker for the women's session was Jacquelyn Townsend, Miss America of 1962. In the early 1970's, the former pageant winner suffered a debilitating stroke, and her touching story related the obstacles she had to overcome in a recuperation that has taken several years.

Also featured on the women's program was Schuylkill County home economist Ruth Hand.

Corn hybrids for reduced tillage farms

LITITZ – As the public and farmers become increasingly concerned about the loss of farmland, the methods of farming are changing. Each year prime agricultural land is lost forever due to new highways, shopping centers, factories and homes. Some state, county and local governments are beginning to react to this disturbing trend by adopting laws to make it much more difficult to convert prime agricultural land to other uses.

In addition to the losses described above, farmers are spending even more time and money to prevent the loss of irreplaceable land due to wind and water erosion.

During the past three years many farmers in the traditional fall plowing regions of the country have switched to various methods of reduced tillage on corn ground. And as the equipment for reduced and no-till farming becomes more sophisticated, you will undoubtedly see more reduced tillage in the future. (Iowa presently has 43% of its cropland in some type of reduced tillage system.)

When selecting hybrids for reduced tillage or no-till systems, there are some points to consider.

1. Excellent seedling vigor, especially in continuous corn, heavy crop residues, and heavy or Fast emergence reduces the potential of insects, rodents, birds and seedling disease, reducing the percent emerged.

2. Disease and insect resistance. The crop residue offers some degree of increased disease and insect problems.

Northern and southern corn leaf blight and anthracnose are probably the most important. In northern areas, eyespot and yellow leaf blight might be seen. European corn borer, common stalk borer and grasshoppers are insects to stay alert for as they overwinter in crop and weed residue.

3. Rapid plant growth allows the plants to get above the residue and absorb more sunlight at the critical stage when potential ear size is determined, approximately 35 days after emergence.

4. High yields. No matter what criteria are used to select hybrids, the one which pays the bills is yield. More and more no-till plot [illegible] from farmers, state yield trials and county extension agents.

Therefore, it is becoming less difficult to obtain performance data on hybrids.

If no-till or reduced tillage is in your plans for the future, be prepared to learn all that you can before you employ this system. It can work if you take the time to do it right.

Good records improve efficiency

LITITZ — Many farmers are now using fuel needs to boost their operational efficiency. Besides showing which tractor is practical for which job, good fuel records can spot an engine in need of repair, tell how much fuel can be saved by combining two field operations, or determine the most energy-efficient tillage scheme

Farm machinery experts at Massey-Ferguson cite sound reasons for keeping accurate fuel records Fuel-use averages for nearly every field operation are, of course, available But fuel-use varies widely from farm to farm One university study, for example, shows that diesel fuel consumption for moldboard plowing ranged from .91 to 3 64 gallons per acre

Factors that influence fuel consumption include the tractor's age, size and condition, ground speed, slippage, soil type and condition, tillage depth, and condition and adjustment of the implement.

MF farm machinery experts report it takes only a few minutes each day to keep completely accurate fuel records Start with a fuel meter for each storage tank on the farm, they're available from your fuel dealer for about $85 Also needed will be one notebook for each tractor, combine or other power unit

Provide for at least six entries in tractor notebooks type of operation, tillage depth, speed, acres, fuel used, and hours. Additionally, columns may be provided for soil condition or other influencing factors Make entries each time the fuel tank is filled so that the amount of fuel used per acre can be determined

For cars, trucks and pickups, only keep track of miles traveled and fuel used.

With these figures at hand, it can be evaluate where each gallon of fuel went, and why Then, operators can more effectively match equipment to field work, and trim back or eliminate inefficient operations

As one university agricultural engineer put it

You can't make wise fuel management decisions without complete, accurate fueluse records.

Adams-York calfarama

YORK — "Trade a bit o' green for some black and white and make your own St. Patrick's Day good luck with a calf from the Adams-York Calfarama Sale."

That's the invitation issued from Phil Laughman and Stanley Weimer, co-chairman for the third annual Adams-York Calfarama registered calf sale, set for March 17 at Avalong Farms, York, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Fifty purebred heifers, from calf to yearling ages, will be offered through the sale ring. Popular sires represented in the listing include Astronaut, Jemini, Mars, Milestone.

Fifteen of the consignments are from dams with over 18,000 pounds of milk and these calves are all well-suited for 4-H and FFA dairy project animals. Also included in the sale line-up are two red and white calves.

Additional information is available on the consignments from Phil Laughman, Thomasville R2, or Stanley Weimer, New Oxford R2. Sale manager is Remsburg Sale Service of Jefferson, Maryland.

Avalong Farms is adjacent to the Route 30 bypass at the Mt. Zion Road exit, and the barn is just west of the Avalong Farms Dairy Bar and Restaurant, on Whiteford Road.

Avalong Astro Martha Margo, by Astronaut, is one of the headliners of the March 17 Adams-York Calfarama. Margo's dam is by Elevation, and milked a three-year record of 19,015 of milk with 814 of fat. Helping with her selection were, from left, Larry Amspacher, Ed Johnson and Doug Cope, representing the York Holstein Association.

To farm successfully, know your limitations

NEWARK, Del — It's good to be aware of your opportunities, but if you want to farm successfully, know your limitations as well This is the advice of University of Delaware extension economist W T. McAllister

He describes the Delmarva peninsula as a "land of economic opportunity" for farmers.

Favorable growing conditions and nearness to a vast potential urban market along the Eastern seaboard offer many profitable alternatives in crop and livestock production But success in any of them requires knowledge, self-discipline and a good business sense

"When it comes to making the most of opportunities, the greatest limits are those that are self-imposed," explains McAllister "During my training as an economist and farm management specialist, I heard a lot about maximizing income. The trouble is, most people don't want to discipline themselves hard enough and work hard enough to do this "

Take dairy farming, for instance. This can be one of the most profitable farm enterprises in Delaware. Yet the number of dairy farms in the state has steadily declined because dairying is a 12 to 14 hour a day job, seven days a week Even with good help this can get to be a drag

Besides tying you down, there are all sorts of government regulations to deal with when you're producing milk As a result, unless a farmer really loves cows and needs the income, he's likely to sell his herd as soon as he gets the mortgage paid off and raise something else instead

Vegetable growers are another group with a special set of problems

Instead of manure disposal and routine milk parlor inspections, they've got to deal with seasonal labor and all its attendant regulations and frustrations

In both cases, how well a farmer handles the limitations is basically a matter of attitude, says McAllister

"If you're doing what you really want to do, you can tolerate these problems," he says

Limited knowledge is another self-imposed limitation

"There are some farmers who already know so much that they aren't using, that they've never bothered to find out that it's out of date," he says "Farming is a fast moving industry, a fast moving science, and you can be out of date in a year if you don't keep up "

And then there's the matter of management ability.

"If you're a poor manager, heaven help you," he says "But if you're a good one, you've got lots of opportunities. Poor management is the greatest self-imposed limitation on success in farming."

By management he means the ability to plan, to organize resources In other words, what combination of resources will enable you to take advantage of the economic opportunities that exist for you today?

It doesn't matter what farm enterprise you choose, so long as it offers a good chance for profit It could be a vegetable business or corn and soybeans, it could be dairying, growing broilers or hogs, or almost any other type of local farming

Whatever you do, it's not going to be worth anything unless you can put it all together

Summing it all up, the economist says that success in farming depends largely on how you combine and use the resources available to you in a farm enterprise with high profit potential These resources include, land, labor, capital and credit. They also include farming knowledge and skills, a high level of motivation and personal discipline, and a good business sense including a basic understanding of economic principles as they relate to managemenet decisions.

If you can put all these together, you can succeed as a farmer because the economic opportunities for agriculture are here

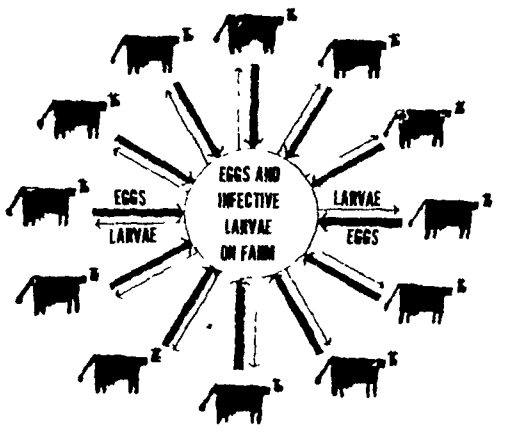
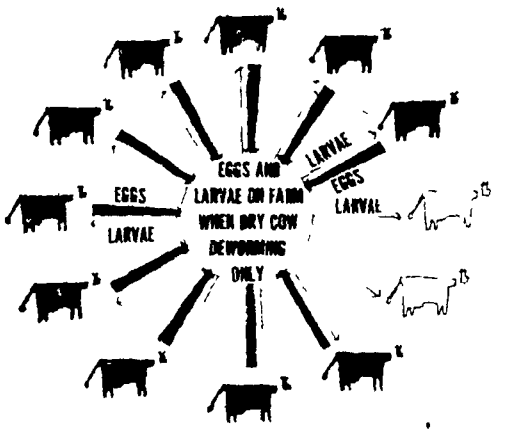
Anything other than BAYMIX Crumbles is only a one-cow solution to a whole herd problem

THE LOGIC BEHIND WHOLE HERD DEWORMING

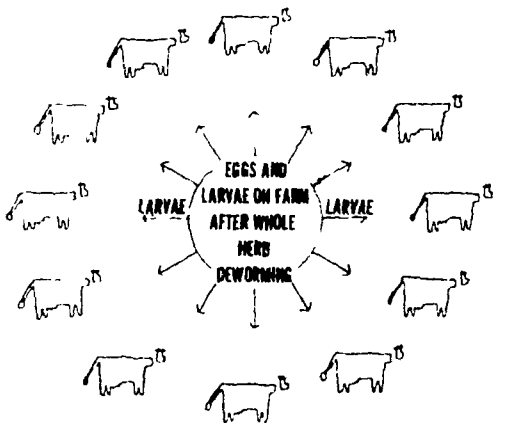
In an unwormed dairy herd, all animals deposit worm eggs on the farm and all animals are subject to further recontamination from infective larvae as herd parasitism continues unchecked.





In a herd dewormed only at freshening, an average of 10 out of 12 animals have not been dewormed. Because egg deposition has not been significantly reduced, and because of infective larvae already present on the farm, all animals are subject to heavy further recontamination.

After whole herd deworming with Baymix, egg deposition is dramatically reduced, and as a result herd recontamination is also significantly reduced with herd productive efficiency maintained. In fact, a recent study shows a benefit of 4 8 lbs /milk/cow/day average when cows are dewormed as late as 200 days into lactation despite the fact they were dewormed at freshening.



SINCE CUTTER 1897

How fertilizer stretches moisture

LANCASTER — Last summer's dry, hot weather hurt crop yields over much of the nation It was the worst growing season in six years, according to USDA

The yield estimate for corn in 1980 was about 91 bu/A, down from 109 bu/A in 1979 Even so this makes it the sixth best year for corn on record — not bad for such a poor growing season

How does good soil fertility help stretch available water into more bushels?

Adequate fertility stimulates deeper root growth and exploration of the soil This makes more soil water available to the plant

Adequate fertility speeds maturity. It is very important for corn pollination to occur before summer drouth hits. On an Illinois soil high in K, corn receiving no extra K was 14% silked and with adequate K was 67 percent silked on a given date.

Adequate fertility reduces the crop's water requirement Potassium reduces water loss in plants by lowering transpiration rate and aiding the closing of stomates (pores where plants expel water).

Adequate fertility compensates for lower nutrient uptake Such nutrients as N, P, and K need to be swept into plants along with the water Drouth can damage crops worse when nutrient uptake is reduced. A higher fertility level allows more nutrients to be taken up by a water-stressed crop to help lessen the yield loss

Crops often respond to fertilizer as well or even better in dry years than in normal years.

In Ohio, the first year had ample rain Yields were high (160+ bushel, but there was no response to potash The second year was dry. Yields were down (120 to 130 bushel). But there was a 50 bushel response to K.

In Virginia, corn yielded much better in good years than bad years But phosphorus increased yields about the same in both — 40 bushel an acre in good, 37 bushel an acre in bad years.

In another Virginia study, high fertility more than doubled in the yield in a poor year — from 53 to 111 bushel an acre High fertility also gave an excellent increase in a good year — 127 to 205 bushel an acre.

Indiana spent many years measuring corn's response to potassium. When yields were reduced by too little or too much rain, fertilizer gave the greatest response Potassium increased yield 39 bushel an acre in low rainfall, eight bushel an acre in medium rainfall, and 48 bushel an acre in high rainfall

A main force behind today's higher yields is nitrogen. Still more nitrogen will be necessary for tomorrow's even higher yields, squeezing more bushels from every inch of water

Grain sorghum in Texas needed 240 lbs per acre of N for the highest yield and for the greatest amount of grain per inch of water Without N grain sorghum produced 45 hundredweight per acre and 1.9 hundredweight per inch of water. With 240 pounds per acre of N, grain sorghum produced 73 hundredweight per acre and 3.5 hundredweight per inch of water.

Farmers get deeper rooting through a healthy, well nourished plant. It has a deeper rooting system that can extract more water from greater depths in the soil profile

Breeders co-op to meet

LANCASTER — The Seventeenth Annual Meeting of Atlantic Breeders Cooperative will be held Wednesday, March 25, at the Quality Inn Motel located at the Centerville Road exit of Route 30, about three miles west of Lancaster

Registration, with refreshments, will begin at 10 a.m

Starting at 10 30 the business session will include reports and certification of Director and Resource/Promotion Committee elections.

Following dinner, Penrose Hallowell, Secretary of Agriculture, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, will speak on future developments affecting Pennsylvania agriculture

Farm Talk

Jerry Webb

With all of the reports about crime in the city, it's easy to overlook the problems of crime on the farm.

Statistically, it doesn't show up as much, but farmers and farm organizations are worried about a spiraling crime rate in rural America that runs that gamut from breaking and entering to cattle rustling.

There was a time when there wasn't much around a farm worth stealing, except perhaps some livestock and that was hard to move, disguise, or even resell. But nowadays big-time agriculture means big investments in equipment and supplies, and that makes it a prime target for burglary

Today's farms are just loaded with burglarable items, and yet the general level of concern and security in agriculture is appalling It's nothing to see a $100,000 combine, or a $50,000 tractor left standing in the middle of a field overnight during the busy harvest season, or parked in an unlocked or open-fronted shed a half-mile or more from human inhabitants for an entire winter What an inviting target for an agricultural thief--one who specializes in farm items.

These guys know the value of modern agricultural imputs They know how to get onto a farm and get off in a hurry and take with them just those things of marketable value that are easy to peddle

One such farm thief was interviewed recently. He said he specialized in farm burglaries because they were easy and profitable. He estimated an annual take of $80,000 – tax free – and figured he could easily steal $2000 worth a day, even more if he went for large machinery.

This particular bandit stole anything of value – tractors, livestock, fuel, antiques, even copper wire And he said it usually was quite easy

This guy's preferred method of operation would be to ride around the country in the daytime, looking for a place with unmowed grass in the summer or unshoveled snow in the driveway in the winter. He would watch for other signs of activity and note hazardous conditions such as security systems, barnyard lights and barking dogs

When he found a likely place he would return later, usually at night, with the proper vehicle to haul away whatever he was after. He would drive right up to the door, and if no one answered, it was open house

Suprisingly, this thief said farmers are genial hosts, hardly ever locking their homes, and securing valuable equipment and supplies with flimsy locks and lightweight hasps. Entry was usually easy and escape, due to the relative isolation of the selected farm site, was hardly ever a problem.

So what does this thief think farmers should do to keep from being ripped off by the agrarian bandits?

* A loud-barking dog – no professional thief wants to tangle with one of them.

* Plenty of lights at night, a radio playing in the house and in the barn.

* A lived-in appearance by keeping the grass mowed, the mail and papers picked up and cars in the driveway.

* Good locks on all doors and windows for all buildings where things of value are kept.

* A security system -- professionals will pass them up rather than take a chance on tripping an alarm. Even one of those signs that says the place is protected by a security system is an important determent.

Never leave machinery and livestock or other valuable items where they can't be watched. There have been many instances of modern cattle rustling where a farmer would lose several animals from a herd kept some distance from the farmstead and not even for several days they were gone.

Dependable power begins with John Deere-built diesel engines All models pack a potent torque reserve. All of them pull more at the drawbar, lift more on the 3-point hitch, crank out more at the PTO, and carry a bigger hydraulic reserve than models they replaced. See us for details on your power size We'll be happy to answer all your questions on the NEW IRON HORSES.

New baler line builds solid, stackable bales

To build solid, square-cornered bales consistently, you need consistent control of the hay. And John Deere's new 327, 337 and 347 Balers give that control from the moment hay touches the pickup

First of all, we added two extra rows of teeth to help you take in all the hay in today's wider windrows. The 337 and 347 have 156 teeth. The 327 has 88 There's even an improved compressor that floats right with the pickup to give you consistent compression as you go over bumps and dips

Next, our floating tapered auger and adjustable feeder forks take over to keep material flowing evenly. Consistent control continues right up to the time our new knotter puts the finishing touch on the solid bales

Stop by today and start making solid, stackable bales with John Deere's solid new 14x18 balers

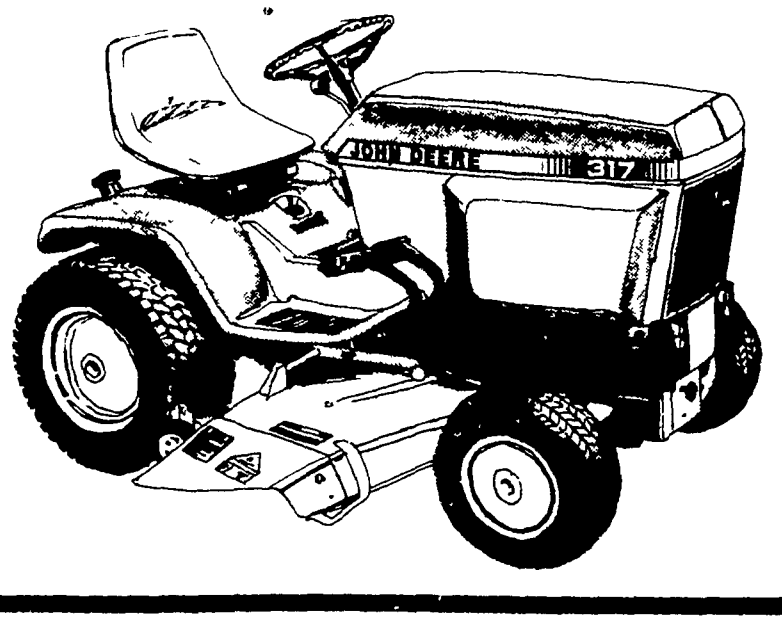
POWER SIZES FOR ANY JOB!



Take the strain from lawn and garden chores with a John Deere Tractor

John Deere Lawn and Garden Tractors are "human engineered" for your comfort and safety All feature adjustable padded seat, roomy operator's area, 2-position footrests, and a fully enclosed engine for quieter operation. Triple-safety starting to guard against accidental starts. Easy-to-use color-coded controls. Built-in headlights And a switch that automatically shuts off the engine if you leave the seat with the PTO engaged

The 200 Series offers three power sizes — 10-, 12-, and 14 hp.

All have 4-speed transaxles and variable-speed drive that lets you slow down or speed up within each gear without clutching or reducing the working speed of power-operated implements Mechanical lift is standard, with electric lift or hydraulic lift available as options.

The 300 Series — Versatile and Dependable. The 314 has a 14-hp engine; the 317, a 17-hp twin-cylinder engine. Both have super-smooth hydrostatic drive for an infinite number of travel speeds — ½ to 6½ mph The 314 has single-function hydraulics, the 317, dual-function hydraulics.

The 19.9-hp 400 is our most powerful lawn and garden tractor. It has a twin-cylinder engine, two-speed rear axle, and super-smooth hydrostatic drive. Power steering provides superb maneuverability in tight areas. Triple-function hydraulics handle a wide range of front-, mid-, and rear-mounted implements.

By the time the incident would be reported, the livestock would have been sold to some unsuspecting customer miles and miles away

There are other things farmers can do to protect themselves against being ripped off. Mark all equipment with identification numbers. Be suspicious of strange vehicles and strange people Jot down license numbers of unfamiliar vehicles that show up in the driveway

Beware of strangers asking directions for someone you've never heard of, or providing some other excuse for their presence Notify law enforcement agencies when you plan to be away from the farm for a few days and ask them to keep an eye on things

Talk with your neighbors and agree on what might be suspicious activity around your place You hear those stories about how a moving van backed up to a house and loaded up everything in it while the unsuspecting neighbors pour iced tea for the perspiring movers.

There was a time when the neighborliness and isolation of rural America made these kinds of crimes very difficult. A stranger would be watched from the time he entered a community until he left

Nowadays farmers have become accustomed to the invasion of outsiders, and they probably don't think much about it when a truck rolls into the neighbor's place and loads up a tractor And that's where some good old-fashioned suspicion comes in handy

After all, how many tractors get a ride to town without the farmer-owner being there to supervise the trip? And how many farmers load cattle in the middle of the night or send a truckload of fertilizer back to town?

Another contributing factor to some of the farm burglaries around the country is a new kind of absentee farming There used to be a family living on every farm and it was easy to keep track of things. But not a farmer may live many miles from the farm where he stores his equipment or bins his produce. Those kinds of vacant farms are easy targets for the professionals They're in and out in a matter of minutes, taking whatever they want without a trace, and it may take the owner days or weeks to figure out he's been ripped off

It may it a long time before the crime rate around the farm catches up to some of our large cities. But it is a growing factor – something that farmers must come to grips with

Farmers discuss hog diseases

MILLERSVILLE – Kelly Applegate of the Pennfield Corporation recently presented a program on Swine Disease Identification.

To best illustrate the Penn Manor Young Farmers meeting's topic, two sows and three young pigs were disected to determine various diseases and reproduction problems Among the diseases discussed were T.G.E, pseudorabies, and many others. The dissected sows were used to explain and identify the parts of reproductive system.

Applegate later outlined the signs to look for in healthy swine; normal temperature, skin color and texture. It was stated that a swine producer should learn to identify healthy qualities of a normal pig.

University of Delaware's Dick Fowler relayed current information on swine selection, development and gilt breeding at the meeting. Fowler based his finding on the University of Delaware's swine housing system and explained new management improvements on breeds and growth rated through experimentation.

Tethering as an alternative to caging was also discussed. The advantage of tethering maybe more economically feasible.

Another improvement in management is efficient record keeping. These records should include the number of sows; number of gilts; number of open animals; number bred; number recycling; number culled and number farrowing.

Agri-business meetings are presented at Penn Manor High School throughout the year. For further information, contact Jeff Hart, advisor of the Penn Manor Young Farmers, 717/872-5431.

O'Donnell named head of Rural Development

HARRISBURG — Matthew J O'Donnell, of Camp Hill, Cumberland County, has been appointed chief of the division of rural services for the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, according to State Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell.

O'Donnell, 40, assumed his duties February 25 at an annual salary of $19,951.

Hallowell said he was pleased that O'Donnell had accepted the appointment He cited O'Donnell's background in all levels of management, business administration and marketing as positive attributes for his new position

"Matt has a strong background, including years of experience in farm marketing, food distribution and farm equipment sales. I am sure he will be able to apply that experience on behalf of the state's farm and rural community," Hallowell said.

As chief of rural services, O'Donnell will be responsible for the supervision of rural coordinators in the Department's seven regions of the state.

The rural services program is geared toward improving rural economic development in Pennsylvania, through the state's Rural Development Council, economic development initiatives and promotional activities to increase sales of Pennsylvania agricultural products.

The division also works with agribusinesses in helping them adapt the "Pennsylvania Agriculture — We're Growing Better" logo as a marketing tool.

O'Donnell has been involved in marketing and sales since his graduation from Upsala College with a B.S. in business administration and marketing in 1960. He previously had received an associate degree in business administration from Windham College in 1958

He most recently worked as district manager for the Stull Equipment Company of Chester, supervising the eastern area of the state with marketing of agricultural lawn and garden equipment.

He had previously served as marketing representative for the Pennsylvania Agricultural Cooperative Marketing Association of the Pennsylvania Farmers Association, where he developed a marketing program, sold and coordinated delivery of farm products to schools, institutions, wholesale and retail food distributors.

Representative to serve on development group

HARRISBURG — Rep. Noah Wenger has been appointed to serve on the Rural Development Committee of the National Conference of State Legislatures for the 1981-82 State-Federal Assembly.

Wenger said the NCSL is an organization which officially represents the nation's 7500 state legislators and their staffs.

"Its purpose is to improve the quality and effectiveness of state legislatures and assure that states have a strong, cohesive voice in the federal decision-making process. In addition, interstate communication and cooperation is also improved," Wenger said.

Appointments to the State-Federal Assembly are made by the leadership of each state.

"As vice-chairman of the House Agriculture Committee it will be a particular advantage to serve on NCSL's Rural Development Committee," Wenger said.

"Priority issues which we expect to face include:

—effects of federal energy programs on rural areas;

—domestic and international marketing of agricultural products;

--foreign and corporate ownership of farmland;

—coordination of federal and state rural development programs.

"We will continue to study issues such as land conservation and preservation, financing rural development, rural energy needs and resources, and transportation regulatory reform from the rural perspective

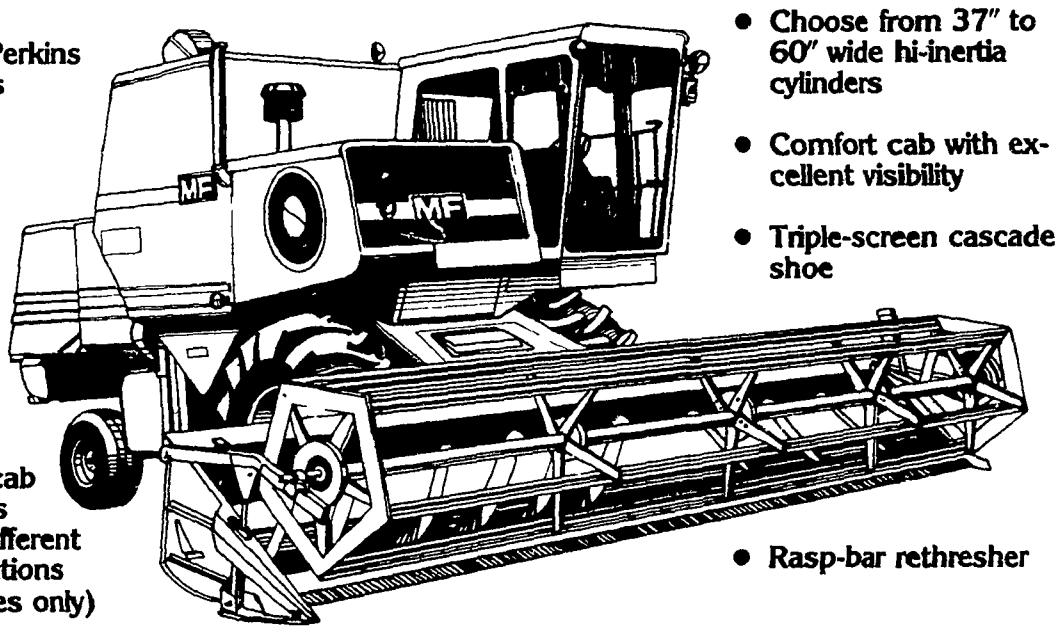
"Let's deal on a new MF combine!"

• Dependable Perkins diesel engines
• Electronic in-cab monitor keeps tabs on 22 different combine functions (MF 700 Series only)



• Choose from 37" to 60" wide hi-inertia cylinders
• Comfort cab with excellent visibility
• Triple-screen cascade shoe
• Rasp-bar rethresher

Act now for special factory allowances . . . plus waiver of finance charges 'til season of use.

There never was a better time to step up to the combine leader. An MF combine will get your crop in under all kinds of conditions, putting more clean grain in the tank. That's why they're the choice of North America's farmers.

Right now we've got some extra-special factory allowances to work with on MF 500 and 700 Series combines . . . so we can make our everyday good deal even better. Finance with Massey-Ferguson and you won't pay any finance charges until season of use: August 1, 1981 on grain combines, September 1, 1981 on corn/bean combines.

Don't wait though, the earlier you act the better the deal we can make! Selections will be better, too.

"So let's talk. . . NOW!"

WIC BEDDING CHOPPER

No Competitor Can Beat The WIC CHOPPER For Performance And Cost

The Wic bedding chopper chops straw, hay or corn fodder and spreads it uniformly under your cows, all in a single operation. When you use chopped bedding, you save on straw and your cows stay much cleaner. On top of that, cleaning up is a breeze...

All models of Wic's bedding chopper have four rows of knives insuring a better spreading action

Wic has also forseen an adjustable grill in 5 positions, to avoid overloading the motor while using different bedding such as damp straw old hay etc

With a simple adjustment that either speeds up or reduces the rotation of the tub, you can cut the bedding to the desired length Wic the futuristic chopper now!

Penn State offers commercial swine producers course

UNIVERSITY PARK — In swine production, as in any manufacturing enterprise, profits depend on the difference between cost of production and gross return received for the product Farmers have little control over the price they get for hogs, but they can do much to reduce production costs and thus increase profits

"Commercial Swine Production and Marketing," a correspondence course available from Penn State, is a comprehensive guide for the commercial swine producer or farmer with a hog enterprise

The 16-lesson course included information on planning and financing the enterprise, buildings and equipment, improving the swine herd through breeding, feeding and nutrition, marketing live hogs, and all aspects of swine health

Complete information is given on levels of performance of boars and gilts, reproductive problems, and swine ration formulas, etc The course is available by sending $8.50 plus $1 25 postage to SWINE, Box 5000, University Park, PA 16802 Make checks payable to Penn State

Vo-ag teachers develop energy course

UNIVERSITY PARK — New teaching materials in energy conservation have been developed in a combined project between high school teachers of vocational agriculture and faculty members in the Department of Agricultural Education at Penn State.

Published in a 114 page manual, the guide to energy conservation includes many hands-on experiences.

Students learn how to determine if a home has adequate insulation, how to reduce use of electricity, how to caulk a home, and many other ways to conserve energy in the home and on the farm.

Entitled "Energy Conservation in the Home and on the Farm," the manual was named the outstanding publication in the eastern region in 1980 by the American Association of Teacher Educators in Agriculture.

"Ideas and suggestions from teachers of vocational agriculture were used throughout the development of the manual," stated David L. Howell, in charge of the project for the Department of Agricultural Education at University Park.

"We figured that early involvement of teachers would enable them to be very knowledgeable and interested in using the material as it was intended," Howell commented.

Cooperating on the project were personnel with the Bureau of Vocational Education in Harrisburg and the Pennsylvania Farm Electrification Council.

The same high school teachers assisted the agricultural education faculty at Penn State in instructing other vocational agriculture teachers in methods of conserving energy in the home and on the farm. After completing such a course, these teachers provided instruction in conservation to home-area high school students.

The completed manual has three sections. The first deals with the need for energy conservation, showing how nonrenewable sources of energy are being depleted at a fast rate.

The second section covers energy conservation in the home. The third section is devoted to energy conservation on the farm.

This manual is now available from the Agricultural Education Curriculum Laboratory at Penn State. Interested people outside of schools can obtain a copy by writing to the Department of Agricultural Education, 102 Armsby Building, University Park, PA 16802.

Goat course available

UNIVERSITY PARK — Demand is up for goats and goat producers. Penn State dairy specialists attribute the upsurge to the renewed interest in home-produced foods and the interest in organic foods.

To help both the established and new dairy goat owners, Penn State's correspondence course on Dairy Goats offers feeding and breeding information with special attention given to optimum management techniques. Origin, characteristics, and adaptation of breeds of milk goats are given with general standards for size, dairy character, body capacity, strong toplines and udders, along with other evaluations for specific breeds.

Illustrations of equipment (feed racks, hay and grain feeders); plans for a milk house, milking room, and walk-through milking parlor; and blueprints of facilities for loose housing, goat and kid barn, and a buck barn are given in this nine-lesson course.

Additional lessons cover hygiene, internal parasites, and related management practices. To order a copy of this course, send your check for $5.00, plus 75 cent handling, payable to Penn State, to GOATS, Box 5000, University Park, PA 16802.

Penn State has short course on growing fruit

UNIVERSITY PARK — Early spring is the best time to prune fruit trees," says Marhsall Ritter professor of pomology at Penn State

Pruning should be done after the worst of winter has passed and before leaves come out on the trees

In a Correspondence Course just updated by Ritter and titled Commercial Fruit Growing, he cautions not to prune trees while they are frozen because wood is liable to split and the trees are more subject to winter injury

Step by step details are provided for rejuvenating old trees (25 years old) so they will have five to ten more years of life

Other lessons in the course cover location, planting, soil management, pruning, packing and marketing of commercial fruits Apples, peaches, pears, plums, cherries, and quinces are the fruits emphasized

This 12-lesson course, intended for those interested in growing tree fruits as a business, is available from Commercial Fruits, Box 5000, University Park PA 16802 A check for $6 50 plus $1 00 for handling should be made payable to Penn State

In a 3-year average of university rootworm control test results, COUNTER® came out best

COUNTER® outperforms all others.

Before you decide which insecticide to use, compare performance.

It's year-after-year consistent control that pays off in top yields and return on investment.

Take a good, hard look at insecticide performance.

After you do, we think you'll choose COUNTER® 15-G soil insecticide-nematicide.

Broad-spectrum Control At One Low Rate.

COUNTER is the only pesticide that controls rootworms, wireworms, seedcorn maggots, symphylans and nematodes all at one rate, the low rootworm rate of application.

Only COUNTER can give you that kind of performance.

The Best Rootworm Control You Can Buy.

When you apply COUNTER at the recommended corn rootworm rate, you'll not only get broad-spectrum control, you'll also be getting the best rootworm control you can buy.

These published university tests of commercially available insecticides prove that none can equal the performance of COUNTER against corn rootworms.

Real Cost Per Acre.

Real cost is not the price per bag, but the cost of the amount of product you need to effectively treat one acre.

For example, if the amount necessary for corn rootworm control costs $8.00 an acre, and control of wireworms or nematodes requires 1-1/2 to 2 times the rootworm rate, then effective broad-spectrum control costs $12.00 to $16.00 an acre. That's why the single-rate control of soil pests that COUNTER provides can save you money.

Rebate. $100 Or More.

If you grow soybeans as well as corn, you can take advantage of the COUNTER/PROWL rebate. Here's how. Just buy at least 25 gallons of PROWL® herbicide, and Cyanamid will rebate directly to you $2.00 per gallon.

That's a minimum $50 rebate on PROWL.

The more PROWL you buy, the larger your rebate.

Buy 800 pounds of COUNTER along with your PROWL purchase and get a bonus of another $50. That's a total of $100 or more. See your dealer for details.

So when the time comes to choose an insecticide, look around and compare.

Then get the one that gives you top corn rootworm control and broad-spectrum control at one low rate plus a rebate. COUNTER.

FEEDER SALES
"Cattle + Pigs"

We've got a reputation of selling clean, local home raised cattle at these sales. Farmers come here from all over the Tri-State area to buy or sell. Plan to market your cattle in these widely advertised sales.

Demand for pigs is also good at these sales since many farmers who feed cattle also feed pigs.

Let us know one week in advance, and we'll advertise larger consignments on our market report card, free of charge.

PA GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY SALE — 3rd BLUE HALTER CALF SALE — 320th SPECIAL SALE

To be held at the Guernsey Sales Pavilion, 6 miles East of Lancaster, on Route #30 East.

Sale starts 12:30 P.M. — SATURDAY, MARCH 21, 1981 — Luncheon preceeds sales

These sales are being held in conjunction with the Pa. Guernsey Breeders' Association's 50th Annual Meeting at the Brunswick Motor Inn, Lancaster, march 20th.

The Pa. Golden Anniversary Sale will feature a selection of top young cows and bred heifers. Four of the early consignments are already scored Excellent and mor eint he sale have the potential to do so. One such outstanding candidate is a Choice daughter consigned by maplevale Farm who looks the part and works well too. One of the best Choice daughters we've ever seen.

The Blue Halter Calf Sale will feature a group of outstanding calves, "BRED RIGHT, BUILT RIGHT, AND BORN RIGHT", for the 1981 show season. Guernsey Junior Members from any state will receive a 10% discount from the selling price of any calf purchased in this sale.

The 320th Special Sale has one of the best lots of cattle ever sold in a Lancaster Sale. Greystone Farm, Auburn, N.Y. consigns 27 head - 17 cows all with good records - 7 bred heifers due in late spring and early summer - and 3 open heifers. Jon Bon Farms, Orangeburg, S.C., are sending 20 bred heifers all from high plus A.I. sires and tested dams. They will calve in June to a son of Dari Fayvor whose dam has 2 records over 15,000 lbs. Sires represented include: Dari Fayvor whose dam has 2 records over 15,000 lbs. Sires represented include: Dari Fayvor (3), B Maverick (5), Choice (3), Nances Nobleman (2), Prince Extra, Jeans Jason, etc. These heifers are young, well grown, and will freshen just right for base milk. Norren Farms, Queripel and Leedom, Pipersville, Pa. have their usual top consignments of heifers due at sale time including (2) Deacons. Their dams average over 12,000 lbs. Milk including a Dari Fayvor whose dam has 19260-920-7 yrs.-2x.

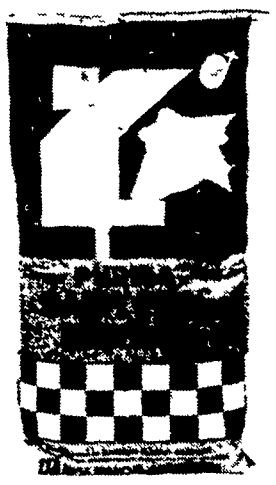
$12.00 per 50 lb. Bag*

PURINA® DAIRY MINERAL

16% CALCIUM
16% PHOSPHORUS

Plus: Sodium, Chlorine, Magnesium, Sulphur, Potassium, Iron, Copper, Cobalt, Iodine Zinc, Manganese, Selenium

Purina Dairy Mineral is formulated especially for cows on grass pasture, hay or haylage and for cows on a heavy feeding program of corn or sorghum silage. All of there roughages are low in calcium as well as phosphorus. It is very important to feed with them a mineral mixture with a 1:1 calcium-phosphorus ration, to supply both elements. Purina Dairy Mineral has a 1:1 calcium phosphorus ratio, plus all the other essential minerals.



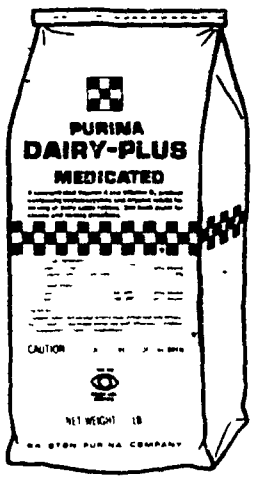
$13.50 per 50 lb. Bag *

PURINA® DAIRY PHOS MINERAL

0% CALCIUM
16% PHOSPHORUS

Plus: Sodium, Chlorine, Magnesium, Sulphur, Potassium, Iron, Copper, Cobalt, Iodine, Zinc, Manganese, Selenium

Purina Dairy Phos Mineral is formulated to provide cows with the phosphorus they need when they are getting a high calcium, low phosphorus forage such as alfalfa, clover or other legume pasture, hay, haylage or citrus pulp. Dairy Phos Mineral contains 0% calcium, 16% phosphorus and all the rest of the essential trace mineral elements. Dairy Phos Mineral is the product of choice whenever the calcium to phosphorus ratio in the total ration is greater than 2.2:1.



$33.00 per 50 lb. Bag*

PURINA® DAIRY-PLUS

1,000,000 units Vitamin A per lb.
200,000 units Vitamin D3 per lb.
100 units Vitamin E per lb.
1.5 grams Oxytetracycline per lb.

Dairy-Plus supplies additional Vitamins A, D3 and E during low intake periods or periods of stress. It helps to prevent and treat bacterial diarrhea (scours). Helps to increase milk production in lactating dairy cows.
